COURSE DESCRIPTION

This one-semester course is an introductory survey of Native American cultures, spirituality, productivity, history, contemporary life, and current social issues. It is also a sampling of some topics that are explored in more depth in the other NAS department course offerings. The subject matter of the course includes study in: oral history, economics, arts, architecture, medicine, sports, traditional environmental-friendly technology, politics, education, U.S. federal Indian policies, Indian/non-Indian intercultural relations, as well as some other topics. We will attempt, wherever possible, to connect the past to the present in our consideration of all of these areas of study.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to:

- a. have a good general knowledge of the history, and present circumstances of the Native Peoples of the land that is now called the United States of America.
- b. better understand the traditional religions, philosophies, spirituality, and general world-view of the First Americans.
- c. be much more familiar with the diversity of cultures, ways of life, and collective experiences of the Indigenous Americans of the U.S.
- d. better understand the history and present nature of the political and legal relationship between the Native American tribal nations and the federal, state, and county governments within the U.S.
- e. be familiar with the vast scope of contributions that the American Indians have made to the cultures, health, and humanity of the other peoples of the world.

TESTS AND GRADING

Student grades will be based on the combined scores of three exams (two mid-terms and a final). The exam questions will be mostly multiple choice, with one essay question on each of the first two exams, and two essay questions on the final. I realize that multiple choice questions are not the ideal testing and assessment format for every student, but, with our large class sizes and lack of graduate teaching assistants, it is the only method that is practical. Please bring more than one sharpened #2 pencil and a small, red Scantron sheet (available in the UM Bookstore) to each exam.

The grading scale for this course will be the normal 100-point scale, as follows:

91.5 to 100 = A	81.5 to 87 = B	71.5 to 77 = C	61.5 to 67 = D
89.5 to 91 = A-	79.5 to 81 = B-	69.5 to 71 = C-	59.5 to 61 = D-
87.5 to 89 = B+	77.5 to 79 = C+	67.5 to 69 = D+	Less than 59.5 = F

The two midterms will count for up to 33 points each, and the final will be worth a maximum of 36 points. There will also be a small extra credit writing opportunity.

Make-up tests and other special arrangements must be arranged in advance, and approved by the instructor. Only very dire, unavoidable circumstances will be considered.

Students with University-recognized disabilities who have registered with DSS will be accommodated according to University regulations. Such students should communicate with the instructor as early in the semester as possible about their special needs.

ATTENDANCE

All students are individually responsible for acquiring the information made available through lectures, reading assignments, and materials handed out in class or posted on our website. Neither the Instructor, nor the Native American Studies Department are obligated to provide copies of the lecture notes to students. You may be able to get notes from other students, but there is no better way to understand both the lectures and the notes than to actually be there. Attendance is not taken for this class (see note at end of “Student Conduct” section on the next page). The lectures will be recorded and available on iTunes through the UM One Stop web page. See our Moodle page for details. The power point outlines for the lectures are posted on the Moodle page.

ACADEMIC HONESTY

Exams will be monitored and students must work individually. Talking to other students during the exam, copying another student's paper, or other forms of cheating will result in an "F" grade (zero points) for that exam. But, with a zero point F, a student would be worse off than with a 17 or 16 point F, and it would be very hard to earn a final point tally of more than 60-something points, or a D for the final grade.

STUDENT CONDUCT

Because of the ongoing problem of disruptive behavior in the large lecture hall classes, many students have asked me to address the issue. The following paragraph is taken from the UM Student Conduct Code, Section V, General Conduct, section A, "Standards of Student Conduct" (The entire code is available on the UM website):

"Students have the responsibility to conduct themselves in a manner that does not impair the welfare or educational opportunities of others in the University community. Students must act as responsible members of the academic community; respect the rights, privileges, and dignity of others; and refrain from actions which interfere with normal University functions."

This policy definitely includes classroom behavior, as stated in item 10 of that same section: "Intentional obstruction or disruption of normal University or University-sponsored activities, including, but not limited to, studying, teaching, research, administration and disciplinary procedures, or fire, police, or emergency services."

Penalties for violations of this code include: expulsion, suspension, disciplinary probation, and other sanctions, depending on the administrative evaluation of the circumstances. Section D, "Temporary Suspension", item 2, states: "Faculty members have the independent authority to exclude a student from any class session in which the student displays disruptive behavior that threatens the learning environment or safety and well-being of others in the classroom. The student remains eligible to return to the next class session. The faculty member maintains the authority to remove the student from each class session during which the student is disruptive. The student may be suspended permanently from a class upon recommendation of the Dean of the College or School under the disciplinary procedures outlined in this Code."

If you know you are going to have to leave class early, please sit near an exit that day and leave quietly. Since the lectures will be recorded and available on iTunes, on days when you don't feel like sitting quietly and listening courteously to a lecture PLEASE, out of respect for everybody else, DON'T GO TO CLASS!
