County Attorneys' Conference at Montana State University

University of Montana--Missoula. Office of University Relations
FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, OCTOBER 30

Montana county attorneys will meet at Montana State University Dec. 9 and 10 for a conference jointly sponsored by the Office of the Attorney General, the Association of Montana County Attorneys and the MSU School of Law.

Law Dean Robert E. Sullivan said the conference program, stressing the role of the county attorney as the chief legal officer of the county, will deal with both criminal and civil matters. State and federal as well as county officials will participate.

Beyond the immediate objective of airing subjects of concern to the county attorney in his day-to-day operations, the conference aims to promote greater uniformity in practice and procedure throughout Montana, the dean added.

Conference speakers and their topics are Gene Daly, Cascade county attorney, "The Technique of Preparing for and Prosecuting a Felony"; Dean Jellison, Flathead county attorney, "The Technique of Preparing for and Prosecuting a Misdemeanor"; Harry Maynor, F.B.I. special agent in charge, Butte, "Marshalling Evidence"; Tom Hanrahan, former F.B.I. agent and former assistant attorney general, Lewis and Clark county, "Interrogation of Witnesses and Investigations."

George Bennett, attorney, Board of Equalization, Helena, "Board of Equalization and the County Attorney"; William Cheney, executive officer, Montana Livestock Commission, "Montana Livestock Commission and the County Attorney"; William F. Crowley, assistant attorney general, Helena, "Perfecting Civil Appeals for the County," and Les Alke, first assistant examiner, Helena, "Office of the State Examiner and the County."
