Conservation education programs of five states to be examined at Conservation Education Association national conference

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/newsreleases

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.umt.edu/newsreleases/973

This News Article is brought to you for free and open access by the University Relations at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in University of Montana News Releases, 1928, 1956-present by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.
FOR RELEASE TUESDAY, AUGUST 8

Conservation education programs of five states will be examined in detail at the national conference of the Conservation Education Association at Montana State University Aug. 13 through 16, according to Dr. James W. Gebhart of MSU, conference chairman.

The session on "State Programs to Harness Public Support" will be an event of Aug. 14, Dr. Gebhart said. Other sessions during the four-day meeting will deal with gaining support for federal, private and collegiate conservation programs, he added.

Dr. George Fersh, associate director of the Joint Council on Economic Education, will chair the discussion on state programs. Panelists taking part will be Dr. Leslie Pengelly of the MSU Adult Education Service; Robert Ellingson, superintendent of education, Wisconsin State Conservation Department; Al Bromley, director of education, New York State Conservation Department; Farley F. Tubbs, director, Division of Information and Education, Michigan Department of Conservation, and Denver St. Claire, chief of conservation education, Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Anyone interested in conservation may attend the conference by registering in the Music building at 2 p. m. Aug. 13 or at 7:30 a. m. Aug. 14 and 15, Dr. Gebhart said.