FOR RELEASE WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 30

Montana State University law alumni from all over the country will join Montana citizens for the dedication of the Law School's new building on Sept. 6, Dean Robert E. Sullivan reports.

Out-of-state alumni who have already indicated they will travel to Missoula for the special events Sept. 6 through 9 include Alva C. Baird, partner in the firm of Baird and Holley, Los Angeles, Calif.; Herbert Bloom, vice president of Lumbermen's Casualty Co., Chicago, Ill.; James B. Castles, Textronic, Inc., Portland, Ore.; Frank Jestrab, partner in Bjella, Jestrab, Neff and Pippin, Williston, N. D., and Scott Pfohl, Sinclair Oil and Gas Co., Denver, Colo.

Sen. Lee Metcalf and Rep. Arnold Olsen, both graduates of the Law School, will be in Missoula for the dedication if Congress has adjourned, and Sen. Burton K. Wheeler may also attend, the dean said.

Alumni appearing on the formal program are U. S. District Judges George H. Boldt of Tacoma, Wash., W. D. Murray of Butte and William J. Jameson of Billings; Walter L. Pope, formerly chief judge, Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, San Francisco, Calif.; Capt. Edmund Burke Jr., legal officer, U. S. Navy Pacific Missile Range; Ben E. Berg of Bozeman, president of the Montana Bar Association; William T. Boone of Missoula, president of the Law Alumni Association; attorneys Cale Crowley and Franklin Longan of Billings, Edward Alexander and Emmett Angland of Great Falls and Gene A. Picotte of Helena.

Alumni will be joined in the observance by a justice of the United States Supreme Court, all the justices of the Montana Supreme Court, federal and district court judges, the president of the American Bar Association, the president-elect of the Association of American Law Schools, deans of law schools and Montana lawyers.
