The meeting was called to order by President Nick Jones in the College Inn at 7:10 p.m. Jones introduced Walter Schwank, Director of Athletics for the University, who gave a report on the usage of money for athletics. Schwank said that there is a monthly budget report of income and expenditures. Each department must balance its own budget. The budget is run on a cost-accounting system. Schwank explained that there is an amount of money that he called the General Amount. The largest source of income for this amount is from student fees. The budget is figured on about 91% of the total students. The fee was reduced to $9 a quarter and will continue to go down to $7 with $7 as a minimum. The athletic department was not able to campaign against the fee reduction and hope that with increased enrollment they can keep up a comparable amount of gross income. They must have $100,000 in fees to balance the budget. Gate receipts and guarantees are the second source of money. This includes season tickets, gate sales and guarantees for games. The Century Club is another source with the funds channelled through the University to be used specifically for scholarships. "N" Club money is used for recruitment. Program sales brings in about $1,000 a year and concessions yields a small amount. The Field House and the Athletic Department split the gross gate receipts. In addition the University funds pay the salaries of the Athletic Department. Output of money includes equipment, home game and meet expenses, scholarships, and training tables for football. The student fees used for athletics are not channelled into any specific area but go to the General Amount and are distributed from there. Ninety nine thousand was budgeted for 1963-64. The scholarship costs for 1963-64 is a little under $90,000 with $30,000 being contributed by Century Club. Scholarships' maximum aid according to NCAA includes board, room, tuition and fees, books, and $15 a month for incidentals. The Big Sky rules state board, room, fees and tuition, no books but $75 a year. The University is allowed to give 60 football, 20 basketball, and 10 other scholarships. The 10 for other sports includes 8 different sports. They are allowed 10 full ride equivalents at $1069. The 1963-64 income from students fees was budgeted for 51.96% with 54.46% in 1962-63. Schwank broke down the budget into Century Club: 62-63—9.96%, estimated 63-64—14.44%; programs: 62-63—.5%, estimated 63-64—2.5%; concessions: 62-63—.21%; gate/guarantee: 62-63—.88%, 63-64—32.80%; indirect expenses: 62-63—13.31%; travel: 62-63—28.3%, 63-64—23.3%; home game and meet: 62-63—21%; equipment: 62-63—8.69%, 63-64—5.9%; training table: 62-63—4.04%, 63-64—4.27%; and scholarships: 62-63—32.3%, 63-64—40.35%. The teaching staff earns $57,000 a year part from the Physical Education and part from the athletic budget. The work program is not required unless the athlete receives tuition and fees, room, board, and the $15 allotment. Next year the requirement will be 150 hours a year for full board and 75 hours for half board.

Is the All School Show really an all school show i.e. are all students participating in it? 2. Are the student of ASMSU merely underwriting the All School Show to subsidize the Fine Arts curriculum? 3. There are difficulties involved in working with the Fine Arts School.
