FOR RELEASE TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 28

The latest word on tax deductions for travel and entertainment will be passed along to the Montana State University Tax Institute by a high ranking Internal Revenue officer, according to Prof. Lester R. Rusoff, institute director.

David Koenigsberg, chief of the Technical and Uniform Audit Function of the San Francisco regional office of the IRS, will cover the topic in a presentation Friday, Dec. 1, Prof. Rusoff said.

Koenigsberg, a certified public accountant, has been with the IRS since 1935. He has served on the staffs of tax institutes sponsored by the National Association of Accountants and other organizations.

Institute sessions on campus will begin Dec. 1 and continue through Dec. 2, according to the director. Registration will open at 5:30 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 30, at the Florence Hotel. Also scheduled from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. Thursday at the hotel is a party for speakers and registrants, and their wives, sponsored by the Union Bank and Trust Co., Helena.
