Course in introduction of the arts to children at Montana State University

University of Montana–Missoula. Office of University Relations

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/newsreleases
Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.umt.edu/newsreleases/1572

This News Article is brought to you for free and open access by the University Relations at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in University of Montana News Releases, 1928, 1956-present by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Parents, as well as elementary teachers, will be offered a course in introduction of the arts to children at Montana State University July 8-21.

Methods of introducing the arts, including painting, sculpture, dance, drama and music, will be discussed by experts in each field, according to Dean Charles W. Bolen of the School of Fine Arts.

The two-week course will include lectures in the arts, education, psychology and philosophy, and demonstrations of various arts by children. Three theatrical productions including "The Threepenny Opera," a Montana Masquer play and a musical at the Big Fork Playhouse will be studied.

Emphasis in the course will be on conditioning children to appreciate beauty, the necessity of the arts and their cultural heritage.

Instructors for the workshop will include several MSU faculty members, and guest lecturers, Katherine Kayser, University of Denver; Virginia Tanner, University of Utah; Carol Hill, University of Wichita; C. W. Anderson, Minneapolis Public Schools; Arnold Randall, University of California, and Richard Reinholz, Great Falls art supervisor.

Workshop registration information is available from Dean Bolen.