FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MISSOULA--Four more great Montanans will receive recognition when they are called to the Order of the Grizzly in Washington, D.C. ceremonies Feb. 3. The four tapped to receive the award will bring a total of 14 to the Grizzly roster.

The four candidates include Presidential Adviser Charles A. Horsky, News Analyst Chet Huntley, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Political Author Clarence K. Streit. All except New Yorker Huntley are located in the nation's capital.

University of Montana President Robert Johns initiated the award last spring to honor persons whose accomplishments reflect credit on the University or Montana. He will head the Missoula delegation making the presentation.

The roster now includes Robert C. Bates, executive director of the Rockefeller Brothers Foundation; Lew L. Callaway Jr., publisher of Newsweek magazine; William Forbis, senior editor of Time magazine; Robert O'Brien, president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; Norman J. Holter, research physicist; Paul E. Hoover and Louis B. Lundborg, California bankers; Peter H. Odegard, political scientist; Walter L. Pope, senior Federal circuit judge in San Francisco; and Harold C. Urey, Nobel laureate in chemistry.

The recipients will be presented with a cast bronze grizzly bear, traditional mascot of the University and symbol of Montana. These little bears, measuring 7½ inches high by 9 inches long, were sculpted and cast at the University under the hands and direction of Rudy Autio, the University's distinguished ceramic artist and sculptor.

Horsky, who hails from Helena, is adviser to President Johnson on National (more)
Capital Affairs. He received his undergraduate education at the University of Washington and his LL.B. degree from the Harvard Law School in 1934. A member of both the New York and District of Columbia bars, Horsky was associated with the Washington, D.C. firm of Covington and Burling for 24 years.

He was clerk to Judge A. N. Hand, New York City, and was an attorney in the Solicitor General's Office. He was also a lecturer at the University of Virginia Law School for six years. Horsky was director of the Attorney General's Committee on Bankruptcy Administration and has served as member and chairman of the National Bankruptcy Conference.

He was president of the Washington Housing Association for seven years and worked in the office of the Chief of Counsel for War Crimes and as assistant prosecutor at Nurnberg, Germany, after the Second World War.

He published "The Washington Lawyer" in 1952. He is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and holds memberships in the American College of Trial Lawyers, the American Bar Association, Federal Bar Association, American Judicial Society, International Law Association, Selden Society and the National Lawyers Metropolitan Club in Washington, D.C.

Huntley, NBC news commentator and analyst, was born in Cardwell, Mont., to P.A. and Blanche Huntley. His parents now live in Reedpoint, Mont. He attended Montana State University at Bozeman, the Cornish School of Arts in Seattle and was graduated with a B.A. degree from the University of Washington.

He broadcast in Seattle, Spokane, Portland and Los Angeles with several stations and networks until he joined the National Broadcasting Company staff in New York in 1955. He has won awards for his news analysis and commentating from Peabody, Du Pont, National Association for Better Radio and TV, Ohio State University and the City College of New York.

Huntley holds memberships in the Association of Radio-TV News Analysts and (more) the Overseas Press Club in New York City.

Mansfield, Senior Senator from Montana, was born in New York City and attended the Montana College of Mineral Science and Technology in Butte, the University of Montana at Missoula, from which he won an A.B. degree in 1933 and an A.M. degree in 1934, and the University of California.

He was a miner and mining engineer, 1922-31, and a professor of history and political science at UM from 1933 to 1942. His professorship was reinstated by the University in 1965.

Mansfield was a member of the 78th through the 82nd Congresses as a representative of Montana's western district. He was elected U.S. Senator from Montana in 1952 and has served in that body ever since. From 1957-61 he was assistant majority leader and since 1961 he has been the Senate majority leader.

He has been a member of the Committees on Foreign Relations and Appropriations and has chaired the Democratic Conference, the Policy Committee and Steering Committee. In 1944 he was a Presidential representative in China.

He was a U.S. delegate to the Ninth Inter-American Conference in Columbia, 1948; the Sixth U.N. Assembly in Paris, 1951; the Southeast Asia Conference in Manila, 1954; and the 13th U.N. General Assembly, 1958. He was a member of the U.S. Army, the U.S. Navy and the U.S. Marine Corps at different times between 1918 and 1922.

In addition to the honorary reinstatement of his professorship, Senator Mansfield was honored by his alma mater, the University of Montana, with a LL.D. degree in 1956.

Streit, a political author, was born in Missouri, but came to Montana and was graduated from the University of Montana in 1919 with an A.B. degree. Subsequently, (more) he studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and at Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar.

He began writing for the Philadelphia Public Ledger in 1920 at its Paris bureau and went on to cover the Turko-Greek War, became that paper's Rome correspondent and then its Constantinople correspondent.

He went over to the New York Times in 1925 and for the next 14 years reported the Carthage excavation, the Riff War, became Vienna correspondent, joined the New York staff, became League of Nations correspondent, and was at the paper's Washington bureau.

In 1939 he became president of the Federal Union, Inc., and in 1946 he became editor of the "Freedom and Union." Three years later he was made a member of the board of the Atlantic Union Committee and in 1958 he was elected president of the International Movement for Atlantic Union.

Streit has authored a long list of publications and has received honorary doctorates from the University of Montana, 1939; Colby College, 1941; Oberlin College, 1940; and Hobart College, 1941.

He holds memberships in the Academy of Political Science, Sigma Delta Chi, Sigma Chi and Phi Beta Kappa. He served with the American Expeditionary Force's Engineers in France in 1917 and was a Sargeant in the Army's Intelligence Service in 1918. Later he was attached to the American Peace Delegation in Paris, 1918-19.
