MINISTER TO SPEAK ON "THE NEW MORALITY"
DURING UM ORIENTATION WEEK

MISSOULA--

William Glenesk, a forward-looking minister who has been profiled in some of the nation's leading magazines, will be the featured speaker during Orientation Week at the University of Monana. Mr. Glenesk will speak about "The New Morality" at the University Theater Wednesday (Sept. 20) at 9 p.m.

As pastor of the Spencer Memorial Church in New York's Brooklyn Heights, he has sought to have his congregation participate both in the service and in weekly dialogues with men and women active in the arts, politics, industry and law.

Performers at the church have included dancers Ruth St. Denis, Paul Draper and Alvin Ailey; jazz musicians Larry Adler; basso Jerome Hines; sculptor Williams Zorach; humorist Jules Feiffer, and director-producer-playwright Joshua Logan.

Mr. Glenesk takes an active role in church performances. To him "Christianity is a dramatic happening, an event for its participants to act out."

A Canadian, he received degrees from the University of Toronto in the Humanities and Divinity in 1952. In 1956 he received his masters in Philosophy of Religion and Ethics from Columbia University. He has been on the faculty of New York University and has lectured widely at colleges in the United States and Canada.
