MISSOULA--

A series of workshops for library trustees and other interested citizens will be presented by the University of Montana, Missoula, and the State Library on Thursday, June 13, in Glasgow and on Saturday, June 15, in Billings.

Program theme is "A Time for Great Things," Montana's plan for total library service.

Featured speakers of the workshops include Dr. Richard Shannon, professor of economics at UM, who will speak on "The Profile of Montana," how economics relates to the program of library development, and Dr. Gardner Cromwell, UM professor of law, who will discuss "Trustee Responsibility Under The Law."

Mrs. Velma Pemberton, chairman of the Montana Library Commission, will present the topic "Montana Trustees and the American Library Trustee Association;" Mrs. Margaret Worden, also a member of the Commission, will speak on "The Trustee in the Legislative Process."

The program recently was presented in both Missoula and Great Falls. Director of the series is Lawrence W. Hodges, associate professor of education at the University. Mrs. Ruth Longworth, state librarian, has planned materials, speakers and local arrangements. The program is supported in part by Title I funds of the Higher Education Act of 1965.
