ESTATE PLANNING SHORT COURSE SET FOR JULY 22-27 AT UM

MISSOULA--

A University of Colorado law professor is one of several lawyers who will participate in a lawyers' short course on estate planning July 22-27 at the University of Montana law school.

The speaker from Colorado will be William J. Bowe, who also is tax counsel for the State Farm Life Insurance Co. He will discuss the marital deduction, disposition of business interests, and life insurance during the six-day estate short course, which is being held under the program entitled Continuing Legal Education--Montana (CLEM) at UM.

The short course is sponsored by the Montana Bar Association and the UM School of Law.

Bowe, who holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Fordham University and a Bachelor of Laws degree from Harvard University, has lectured at many institutes and conducts an estate planning institute at the Colorado school. He is author of several books, including "Tax Planning for Estates" and "Income Tax Treatment of Life Insurance Proceeds."

Robert E. Sullivan, UM law school dean and CLEM director, said the seminar program has been designed to provide lawyers with comprehensive training in aspects of wills, trusts, future interests, conflicts of laws and federal income, and gift and estate taxation useful in estate planning.

Other lawyers participating in the short course will include James F. Farr, a partner in Hausermann, Davison & Shattuck, Boston, Mass., and Dale Forbes, a partner in Church, Harris, Johnson & Williams, Great Falls. Along with Bowe, two other law professors will participate in the six-day program. They are Wendell M. Basye, University of Oregon, and Lester R. Rusoff, UM.

Advance registration for the short course and additional information about the seminar may be obtained through the School of Law at UM.
