GRIZZLY-BOBCAT DUCATS ALL GONE;
FIRST PRE-GAME SELLOUT IN UM HISTORY

MISSOULA---

Anyone planning on coming to Missoula for the Montana-Montana State football game that doesn’t already have a ticket better forget about it.

University of Montana ticket manager Gary Hughes announced that all tickets for the game, including reserved and general admission, have been sold as of Thursday.

Some 11,300 seats were available for the contest, and Hughes said that no tickets will be on sale at Dornblaser Stadium the day of the game, Nov. 2.

Hughes said he was certain that this is the first time in UM history that all tickets for any athletic contest had been sold prior to the day of the game.

Reserved seats were sold out nearly two months ago, and the general admission tickets dwindled rapidly from that time on.
