MISSOULA--

Montana's 1969 football Grizzlies will put themselves before the press, radio and television Saturday, Aug. 23 on the grid practice field behind the Harry Adams Field House.

Jack Swarthout's latest gridiron edition will report to Missoula during the week preceding Press Day activities, and will be on the field at 2 p.m. that day for pictures and interviews. Some 55-60 players will be on hand, with the first practice sessions scheduled for Monday, Aug. 25.

Persons attending the activities will be able to attend training table that evening with the players.

Swarthout and his assistants Jack Elway, Wally Brown, Bill Betcher and Ron Nord were generally pleased with spring drills this year, and are looking forward to trying to improve over last year's 2-7 mark.

"This is the best opportunity media people have to get together with coaches and players," Swarthout said. "We're hoping for some fine attendance from the press Aug. 23."

Persons planning to attend the Press Day activities as a media representative should send the attached information sheet to Bill Schwanke, UM sports information director, as soon as possible. If you have special requests, include them with the form.
