Montana Grizzlies - versus - Army

Among other things Grizzly ball carriers will have to dodge this fall is the draft. According to pre-season calculations, Montana will be minus only two gridsters this fall because of the Selective Service. The Grizzlies are fortunate in losing this small number, but several regulars are in line for call sometime before 1942. While these uncertain army men keep Coach Doug Fessenden growing gray hairs, they'll be doing their best to maintain Montana's defense.

Montana 1941 Prospects

The pigskin picture seen in the crystal ball reveals that Coach Doug Fessenden of Montana State University will field a surprisingly strong team which is both better than last year's club and better than expectations. Although there are a few doubtful items about the prospects for Montana in 1941, several bright factors serve to boost the Grizzly stock and point to a successful year. Montana's pigskin outlook from an early-season standpoint is made risky through national developments but with every man in the roster returning--including 21 key lettermen--the Grizzlies should be well fortified with capable material.

Montana's 1941 squad to be the lightest since 1936, will have veterans at every positions with some good-looking sophomores backing them up. With normal improvement by last year's regulars and the swift development of the promising pea-greens, the Grizzlies will be ready at the season's outset and should have the strength for a fast start. The team will be minus six graduates with the principal loss being halfback Jack Emigh, however, returning lettermen should offset the vacancy in easy manner. Three major features of the coming fall season act as points of promise for a better year than in 1940 and they are (1) better spirit should prevail, (2) defensive play will undoubtedly show a vast improvement and (3) the well-balanced schedule gives the Montana Grizzlies a chance to get hold of themselves.

Briefly, the situation summed up on paper indicates that chances are bright for a good season, and better yet for a campaign surpassing last year's results. One weak spot in the line is the stumblingblock but Fessenden has promising candidates here. The Montana squad should have more speed on offense, it should be tremendously improved on defense, teckles should be stronger and the middle of the line heavier. Other departments--kicking, passing should be at the same high while blocking in the backfield is a slight question mark. Downfield blocking should be better. Providing there is not too much shuffling of players during the season, the Grizzly team will be compact and reinforced with enough reserve power.

Again this fall Coach Fessenden boasts a bevy of backs who need only the right combination to start goalward. Halfback Johnny Reagan's passing and running last fall stamps him as a man "here to stay." Reagan learned a lot as a sophomore and he appears ready for a banner year this fall. Captain Don Bryan steers the team from quarterback. The dashing Don's competition in the ball-carrying role will be keen because of the appearance of two high-stepping sophs--Arnold "Snakehips" Scott and Ben "Judge" Tyvand. Scott and Tyvand whooshed through spring drill with dazzling speed and both will be valuable assets to the Grizzlies.

Fullback is a slight problem but blond soph John Mohland may pick up the trade in a hurry. Eso Naranche, senior, has yet to show his frosh form. Karl Fiske, Dick Kern and Bill Leaphart, all juniors and sophomores; Bob Kennedy and Bob Gulbrandsen will be backfield candidates. Bill Jones, a senior, nifty punter and ball carrier, should be fully recovered from a leg injury to give Montana lots of offensive power.

The Grizzly line, defensively weak last fall, should be much stronger and heavier. All posts except end are well stacked with returning lettermen. Graduation swept away Coley Vaughn and Neil Johnson, regular ends. Jack Swarthout eases the touchy end problem, and if the diminutive fireball is kept there all year, he'll be a thorn in any opponent's side. Bob Ness ranks well up in the fight for the other end berth, with Bill Mufich, senior, Paul Burke, Paul Kempfe and Eddie Novis affording hot competition.

Although Coach Doug Fessenden expects the lightest team since 1936, he'll have plenty of weight at his tackles. Gene Clawson, 215, should be at regular left tackle, and Bill Mather, 212, sophomore "comer" threatens to win the right tackle spot. Tom Duffy, senior, and Ken Drahos and Bill Keig are available. Guards should be stronger than last year if Jim Westwater lives up to expectations. The sophomore giant adds needed weight to the center of the line. Fred Brauer, Ted Walters, Bill Barbour and Roy Strom will see lots of action.

Big Dutch Dahmer, whirlwind center in the latter part of the 1940 season, will be the choice for the pivot spot. John Dretz and Jim MacIntosh should be fashionable replacements.

GRIZZLIES--YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW

by

Ray T. Rocene, The Daily Missoulian
Ace of Montana Sports Editors'

Grizzlies bathed in glory of winning collegiate competition have grasped the opportunity to exploit their gridiron talents for gold in such numbers as to amply indicate the adequate football lessons they absorbed at Montana State University in the era of Head Coach Douglas Fessenden.

Sparkling stars of past Montana teams who are to play or have played in the National Professional Football league, fastest association of the sport in the world, include Paul Szakash of the Detroit Lions, Milton Popovich of the Chicago Cardinals, Aldo Forte of the Chicago Bears, William Lazetich of the Cleveland Rams, Leonard Noyes of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and others who have had brief trials. Archie McDonald, the giant Indian, played with the Los Angeles Bulldogs, John Dolan with Kenosha, Wisconsin, Bob Cosgrove in the strong Canadian circuit. Others were offered professional contracts, Emil Tabaracci, Joe Pomajevich, and more of their mates.

Montana has reason to exhibit this alumni list in professional football with great pride, as only quality succeeds in sticking in the grueling money fall sport. These are stars produced on Dornblaser gridiron in the past, stars on a par with any in the land, where rosters of 600 college squads are raked annually for the best prospects. These Grizzlies have applied the lessons they learned on the Montana football field to such advantage that they have been able to draw the large salaries which the professional circuit pays.

Coaching and teaching has attracted a number of former Montana State University athletes, football players who have proved that they have the brain as well as the brawn to make a future career for themselves. High School Coaches-- Edward Chinske at Missoula, Clyde Carpenter at Billings, Harry Dahlberg at Butte, Ted Hodges at Great Falls, Sam Kain at Helena (returning to the state this fall), Cliff Olson at Shelby, Charles Miller at Townsend (starting this fall), Paul Chumrau at Cut Bank, James Brown at Miles City, Emil Perey at Forsyth, William Hileman at Glendive, William Erickson at Libby, Ted Mellinger at Hamilton, Henry Blastic at Polson, Fred Jenkin at Thompson Falls, Carl Ross at Red Lodge, William Lazetich at Havre, Billy Rohlffs at Park City, Robert Stansberry at Great Falls, William Hawke at Butte, Walter Griffin at Billings, Joe Mariana at Plains, Don Holmquist at Saco, Tom Rolston at St. Ignatius, Glen Lockwood at Townsend--are only a few of the former Grizzly sports aces who have been successful in their professions. They are men who prepared themselves adequately at Montana State University for the work they liked best.

This list of illustrious gridiron greets of Montana State University will grow this fall, as fans see a distinct future for a number of the Grizzlies who will rally September 8 to the 1941 fall summons. Among the best new prospects are Arnold Scott of Plains, John Mohland of Missoula, Ben Tyvand of Butte, Paul Burke of Billings, Paul Kampfe of Kalispell, Bill Mather of Lewistown, Bill Keig and Ed Novis of Anaconda, Ken Smallwood of Columbus, James MacIntosh of Missoula, and half a dozen others, destined to stardom as sophomores. The sidelines also see a bright future for Dick Kern of Livingston, Johnny Reagan and Jim Westwater of Chicago, Bob Ness of Kalispell, Karl Fiske of Outlook, Billy Jones of Livingston, Bill Leaphart of Missoula, and more of last year's squad.

MONTANA GRID BOSSES

For the fifth successive year three closely associated professors of football will teach and direct the fortunes of Montana's Grizzlies. Coach Doug Fessenden and his two reliable aides, Harry Adams and George P. (Jiggs) Dahlberg, have been together at the helm four years and another season rolling around finds the trio more than ever prepared to dish out poisonous concoctions for the enemy. Combined strategy of the three Grizzly leaders has proven fatal to many teams in the past, but their experience together now makes them even still more respected. Calibre of Montana teams in the last four years has been molded by the Fessenden-Dahlberg-Adams regime with each year, including the great club of 1937, bringing brilliant results.

Although three men is a relatively small coaching personnel, Fessenden, Dahlberg and Adams have carried the load well. Last fall Montana defeated all three of her arch rivals, a stunt which hadn't been accomplished since 1936. Working together as they have in the last four seasons, the trio has developed many outstanding players, have won from outstanding teams and have brought the Grizzlies to a higher plane in the college football world.

Doug Fessenden started his coaching career in Texas and his cunning methods produced winning elevens for two high schools in a period of five years. Fessenden won a division title for San Antonio and then shifting over to Brownsville, he piloted these prepsters to an undefeated season in which 426 points were scored to the enemy's two. After getting his degree at the University of Illinois, Fessenden transferred to Chicago to coach Fenger high school.

Fessenden came to Montana University in 1935, succeeding Bunny Oakes. The first year found Fessenden without manpower on his numerically small squad but the Grizzlies were inspired with the fire of the new coach, and consequently gave a good account of themselves. Doug's best season was in 1937 when he won seven games and lost one--and that one dropping Montana out of a shot at a Bowl game. 1938 was a fair season, plagued by many injuries. Offensive power lacked in 1939 but impressive games were turned in by the Grizzlies. Last year the line collapsed, but Doug kept good his annual stunt by beating all three arch rivals, Idaho, Gonzaga and Montana State.

Line coach Jiggs Dahlberg, a graduate of Montana University in 1925, came back to his Alma Mater in 1937. Jiggs coached high school sports in Washington and Montana, winning several championships for the prep institutions in both states. Industrious and cheerful, Jiggs Dahlberg has won the fancy of athletes at Montana. Dahlberg coaches varsity basketball and last year added duties as assistant graduate manager.

Dean of the Montana athletic staff is Harry Adams, a former Grizzly Great himself. Graduating from Montana U in 1921, Harry has engaged in coaching Montana teams since. Was a member of the mile relay team of Montana which held the world's record. His feats as a halfback will be long remembered by sport followers. In addition to coaching the backfield at Montana, Harry directs the intramural program. He is highly recognized for his scout work during the football season. Harry Adams is also track coach, and was recently offered a position at a large school.

GRIZZLIES AND THEIR POSITIONS

CENTER

Henry "Dutch" Dahmer--One year letterman...showed plenty of stuff in last part of 1940 season. Rugged and full of fight, Dutch should be the one to fill the first-string center spot. Weighs 200 pounds and is a wicked tackler on defense.

John Dratz--Two year letterman...has been reliable in past two seasons. Lacks weight but will see lots of action this fall. Accurate tackler and spirited team player. Excellent passer.

Jim MacIntosh--Sophomore...fighting frosh who never quits, Jim is a contender for the center berth this fall. Green, has lots to learn but appears able to come around in a hurry. Light and scrappy.

GUARD

Fred Brauer--Two year letterman...has given good account of himself in sophomore and junior years, many times winning title of team sparkplug. Fast, a deadly tackler, one of Montana's most experienced guards.

Roy Strom--Two year letterman...converted into valuable running guards from fullback position. Hard worker and excellent team player. 1941 season will be Roy's last and should be the best. Weighs 195. Fast.

Ted Walters--One year letterman...diminutive bulldog guard beats any of them when it comes to pulling out or charging. Quick little mite will be handy for Montana many times this year. Experienced, eager.

Jim Westwater--Sophomore...one of most likely-looking new prospects. Jim is big, tough and built like a huge barrel. Excellent blocker, hits hard and can raise himself to furious competitive spirit. Weighs 210 and may surprise seniors this fall. A bright spot.

Bill Robertson--One year letterman...anxious youngster who'll be a contender again. Will have too much competition to break in early this fall. Needs experience.

Bill Barbour--Sophomore...dynamo at guard during spring practice, the tough Barbour won respect from mates. With little more experience, he'll threaten the first-string berth. Likes to play rough, smashing ball.

TACKLE

Tom Duffy--Two year letterman...steady and aggressive senior. Will play lots of tackle this fall. Inspires mates with daring play. Weighs 205, stands 6 feet $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Gene Clawson--Two year letterman...gargantuan Grizzly capable of playing great football. Senior year should be his finest. Has been shifted from right to left tackle to permit heavy crashing tactics to be effective. Weighs 215, stands 6 feet 4 inches. Squad's biggest.

Ken Drahos--One year letterman...a junior forced to lay off last year because of a bad knee. Appears ready to demonstrate improvement. Can play great defense tackle, and is one of team's surest tacklers.

Bill Mather--Sophomore...promising newcomer who may crash first eleven. Gave good spring drill impression. Courageous, will not fold up like many sophs do. Has enough possibilities to have faith in him. Box-car shoulders, blocks well, charges fast. Weighs 210.

Bill Keig--Sophomore...a bad knee put him on shelf last fall, but he is anxious to get in the picture. Has ambition, fire, spirit. Did good work in spring drill but may be a year away.

Jim Collins--Sophomore...will give Keig a rush but will not reach top in tackle scramble. Still a year away, but may show improved form this fall. A good prospect.

Charles and Peter Rigg--Sophomores...middle weight twins lack experience and weight to figure in running this fall. Both may be shifted to guard. Good scrappers. lend team spirit, need seasoning. Identical enough to drive a coaching staff deffy.

END

Jack Swarthout--Two year letterman...should be Montana's most valuable lineman this year. Superb pass catcher and deadly tackler. Tough and agile, he'll be one of main offensive cogs.

Bill Mufich--Two year letterman...senior who shows flashes of good form. Will need every bit of his best ability to beat out some sophomores coming up. Bill lacks weight, height. Tries hard.

Bob Ness--One year letterman...sparkling pass-snagging stunts two years ago are remindful enough to class him as first-stringer. Is good in all phases of game. Fast and catty. Appears ready for banner season, ripening from his soph year.

Paul Burke--Sophomore...sweet looking prospect from sophomore ranks who may be the one to fill Coach Fessenden's empty end spot. Paul showed great form in spring drill. Needs experience, but has the stuff. Built perfectly for end. Rangy, fast and smart.

Paul Kampfe--Sophomore...fastest man on the squad, 195-pounder is another "comer" at end. Will have to iron out several mistakes. Good pass catcher, tackles and blocks hard.

Ed Novis--Sophomore...rugged rookie with potentialities. Heavy and fast, but is inexperienced. Will make merry end fight.

Jim Vaughn--Sophomore...younger brother of Coley, who leaves the touchy first-eleven end spot. Jim has lots to learn, appears a year away. Lack of experience will handicap him.

FULLBACK

Dick Kern--Junior...hard-working, faithful back who should see action this fall. Plays good defensive football, lacks speed for effective offensive attack. Can grab passes with consistency. May surprise this year, although needs more experience.

John Mohland--Sophomore...one of best looking youngsters coming up. Needs experience but hard work in spring indicated he'll come along fast. Big and fast and anxious to learn, Mohland represents a lot of hope for a good season. Blocks well, must brush up on defensive maneuvers.

Eso Naranche--Two year letterman...bruising veteran who should turn in one good season this year. Has not clicked as expected and has not been in too much action. Can pile drive with best of them when heat is on. Showed splendidly late last year. Eso, 190-pounder, should give Montana needed plunging power.

HALFBACK

John Reagan--One year letterman...all-around performer expected to be one of outstanding backs in country this year. Gained much experience as sophomore and is hailed as one to watch. Can kick, run, pass, and do other chores. Good blocker, but others blocking will get him away for long gallops. 190 pounds and fast.

Karl Fiske--One year letterman...should be ready for heavy backfield duty. Was adept line-cracker in many games last fall, also specialized as pass interceptor. Can dangle and catch passes, too. Will bear watching.

Bill Jones--Two year letterman...swivel-hipped senior who adds versatility to backfield. Very good coffin-corner kicker and ball carrier. Injured mid-season last fall, but should be fully recovered. Will be hard to keep off the first string if he is not injured.

Arnold Scott--Sophomore...can be developed into one of Montana's greatest halfbacks. Youngster is a powerful, high knee-action runner who resembles Milt Popovich. An all-american high school player in six-man football, Scotty can kick, pass and run with equal agility. Much depends on how he blossoms into varsity calibre. Given blocking, he'll ride high. Weighs 180.

Ben Tyvand--Sophomore...another shining sophomore hopeful who also has blazing speed. Probably second fastest man on squad. Has great competitive spirit and wants to learn. A dangerous man in any backfield. Weighs 177. Nicknamed "Judge."

Ken Smallwood--Sophomore...rugged, chunky newcomer who may be shifted to end where his defensive skill will be valuable. Hits hard has keen spirit but lacks experience. Dogged youngster who is very promising, will fit somewhere. 190 pounds now but will hit 200 mid-season.

Jack Kennedy--Sophomore...all-around athlete from Dawson county whose fleetness may furnish fireworks in the backfield. The 165-pound wraith is declared a coach's idea of a scampering ball carrier. Hailing from Glendive, Kennedy might push the better-known candidates.

Bob Gulbrandsen--Sophomore...promising newcomer who played steady ball for frosh. A kicker and plunger, Bob may develop quickly into varsity contender. Smart and daring, he might become a future quarterback. Needs experience. Will be pushed by a lot of competition.

QUARTERBACK

Don Bryan--Two year letterman...captain and offensive spearhead. Accurate passer, kicker, and tricky runner. Has stuff to be both good player and inspiring leader. His passes have given Montana reputation for being dangerous. Can turn in best season this fall. Good defensive player.

Bill Leaphart--One year letterman...best blocker on the squad. Tough and industrious, Billy likes the game and loves to lead the interference. Courageous and willing. Montana needs more blockers like him. May be understudy to Bryan this fall as signal-barker.

Bill Swarthout--One year letterman...hard-hitting junior. Can play great defensive ball. Lecks weight but has grand spirit. May see much action this fall as defensive player.

THE SCHEDULE

Montana's 1941 gridiron schedule is not the toughest in the time Doug Fessenden has been coach, but neither is it the easiest program outlined for the Grizzlies in the last six years. Instead, the schedule for this fall presents Montana with an opportunity to set their sights on the tough opponents while playing the less powerful clubs.

The 1941 schedule is colorful as usual, but a close study shows that it is the best balanced schedule the Grizzlies have had in three years. Montana meets nine foes this fall and although each game will be tough, the strongest teams are billed every other week. Yet, Montana's team will be forced to maintain a steady pace through the season without a letup in nine straight weeks of play, not to mention the pre-season training period. The Grizzlies eye four meetings with Pacific Coast conference teams, three with arch-rivals and three night games in an interesting assortment to keep them constantly on the prowl.

Each year Montana Grizzlies expand their list of opponents and this fall another new name will be added to the record books. Montana and Brigham Young Cougars, opening the Grizzly season September 27 for a night game in Provo, will play for the first time in history. Following this clash, the Grizzlies return home to battle North Dakota State, a team which has not played Montana in football since 1921. The Grizzlies that year, coached by Bernie Bierman, won 7-6, and in the only other game in history played against the Nodak Staters, Montana won 13-0 in their undefeated 1914 season.

The third game in a row under the mazdas takes the Grizzlies to California to battle UCLA Bruins October 10th in Los Angeles. Back home the next week-end, Montana encounters an age-old rival in Gonzaga Bulldogs who will be the foe for the annual Parents Day game.

The Fessendenmen next climb the Hill to Butte for their grudge game with Montana State College on October 25th and this clash will be followed by a game in Seattle with the University of Washington.

Homecoming Day brings North Dakota University to Missoula November 8th and the Grizzlies have a score to settle with the Sioux. North Dakota won from Montana 7-0 in their last meeting which was in 1938.

Idaho Vandals are host to Montana at Moscow November 15, and then the Grizzlies windup the campaign with a set-to at Portland against Oregon State.

GRIZZLY GRID CLEANINGS

Figures in the American football statistics annual in far western football show Montana Grizzlies to be up among the best in three different departments--passing, kickoff and punt runbacks. Coach Doug Fessenden's teams have been reeling off heavy yardage in passing during the last two years and in 1940 the Grizzlies placed third among 16 western schools with passing averages. Being one of three teams gaining over 100 yards per game through the air, Montana had a nifty percentage of .446 in eight games. In punt and kickoff runbacks, Montana's stellar Jack Emigh surpassed some of the nation's best with his terrific returns. In kickoff runbacks, Emigh, a graduate, returned 18 kickoffs for 395 yards for an average of 21.94 yards.

Gene Clawson, 6 foot $4\frac{1}{2}$ inch, 210-pound monster and starting tackle for the Grizzlies, submitted to an operation on his foot this summer. Gene stepped on a nail a couple of years ago while wearing shoes with rubber soles. Rubber, driven into the foot, was finally removed. It might take some of the spring from Clawson's jump, and then he might start growing now.

Average weight for the 1941 Montana line hovers around 193 pounds with four likely candidates over 200 included. A starting backfield combination should average 180 pounds.

Coach Doug Fessenden is thinking about using the Rigg twins in one of his new hocus-pocus plays. Pete and Charlie Rigg of Havre are both stationed at guard and its actually impossible to tell them apart. Put in a backfield play, things would be might confusing. The Riggs are distinguished apart on the street by their spectacles--Pete wears the old-fashioned kind, Charlie the newer type.

Leonard Daems, junior guard from Bozeman, is the son of "Belgian" Daems who played guard for Montana Grizzly grid elevens in 1913, 1914 and 1915. Father and son will get together on the campus October 18th this fall when Gonzaga University plays Montana in the annual Parents' Day game.

ooOoo

Montana has a B-ig schedule this year with opponents named Bruins, Bulldogs, Bobcats, Bisons and Beavers. The Grizzlies don't classify these as "B" teams but think of them as teams representing UCLA, Gonzaga, Montana State, North Dakota State and Oregon State.

ooOoo

Although losing Jack Emigh, Grizzly track captain and halfback streak, Montana will have plenty of speed on the team this fall. Three backs and one lineman can do the 100 in 10 seconds flat while a guard and fullback can peddle nearly as fast. Paul Kempfe, an end, Arnold Scott, Ben Tyvand and Karl Fiske are capable of keeping near the 10 second mark throughout the year.

Coach Douglas Fessenden spent the summer at the University of Washington, studying for his master's degree in physical education. The Grizzly coach as been at the Montana grid helm since 1935 and bolstered with a new sheep-skin he may have some new designs for winning this fall.

Perhaps the most unusual summer spent by any Montana gridster was that of Freddy Brauer's. The senior guard was a parachutist "somewhere in western Montana" in forest service forest fire fighting work.
