UNDERSTANDING VOLLEYBALL

Spike: An aggressive attack by the hitter, swinging the arm directly over the shoulder and contacting the heel of the hand and aggressively snapping the wrist over the top of the ball. The tipping motion, a soft contact of the ball, is also considered a spike.

Pass: This is normally the first contact after the ball passes the net on an opponent's serve. The object is to get the ball to the setter in order to set one of the hitters. The ideal position is to have a stable platform with the forearms together. The ball should recoil off the platform, hitting both arms simultaneously. A dig is similar in form to a pass, but is usually the return of a spiked ball.

Block: The first line of defense in volleyball. Blocking is an attempt to intercept a spiked ball on the opponent's side of the net. The blocker is allowed to reach as far over the net as possible without touching the net. The block must occur after the spiker has contacted the ball.

Dive: One of the recovery skills. This is basically a gymnastics maneuver to save the body after the ball has been contacted. The players catch themselves with their hands and slide to dissipate the force of the fall. The dive is used in emergency situations when the player can't get the ball up from the normal platform stance.

Serve: The method with which the ball is put into play. The team can only score after it has served the ball so this is a crucial offensive weapon. The most common serve in power volleyball is the knuckleball. The ball moves in an unpredictable path, making it hard to receive and pass to the setter. The ideal motion is to toss the ball high in front of the contacting shoulder and contact the ball with the heel of the hand and recoil off the ball. It is important to snap the wrist on the serve.

Set: An overhead pass which is put above the net for the spiker to attack. The ball is set simultaneously from the finger pads of both hands. The ball can never rest on the palms and the follow-through is directly towards the area where the ball was set.
