Gordon Watkins, '14, Delivers Commencement Address

The spontaneous applause that greeted the appearance of Gordon Watkins, '14, as he stepped before the large audience in the gymnasium on Commencement day, and the rapt attention with which his address was received by the many who knew him in his undergraduate days, were an eloquent tribute, not only to a great man who has made his contribution to the serious thought of the world, but also to a striking and lovable personality. Although in attendance at the University but a few years, having come with advanced credit from North Dakota, Gordon Watkins impressed himself upon the memories of the people of Missoula and its surrounding cities as a forceful, brilliant speaker, and a thinker on the broadest topics of the day. He was prominent in much of the public work not often undertaken by undergraduate students, and it was clearly to be expected that his Commencement address would bring a real message. This expectation was more than satisfied. He chose for his topic, "Culture and the Future American Civilization;" his theme the place of culture in the stabilization of civilization, now at the crossroads. "There is an almost universal skepticism with regard to the accomplishment of the World war," said Dr. Watkins, rapidly reviewing the ideals of that conflict, "and I suppose nobody doubts that there are new alignments of forces in the old world which indicate the possibilities and probabilities of new slaughters, and in the new world new fears of international strife disturb the minds of the citizenry. . . . The mothers and fathers and brothers and sisters of the dead have not ceased sorrowing, but imperialists speak glibly of the next war and nations again sharpen their sabers for a new test of power. If we were to stop here, the picture of Christian civilization would be a sad one. But there is room for optimism." Indeed, optimism was the keynote of Dr. Watkins' scholarly address. He spoke of the new forces of reconstruction that had been unleashed by the great struggle; of the fall of kingdoms; of the movement toward democracy; of the growth of the desire for peace, economic reconstruction, and stabilized government. "Sometimes I think that the United States enjoys the enviable position of having been born great, of having achieved greatness, and of having had greatness thrust upon her. The meteoric rise of our people into economic power is probably unparalleled in the annals of the human race." Historic ideals are responsible for this rise, said Dr. Watkins. Sheer nerve, hard work, and tenacity of purpose have been more fundamental than even the greatness of natural resources. The genesis of our national life exemplified the so-called "natural rights" of man, and if cheap land was the basis of American civilization, equal opportunity was the cornerstone of its superstructure.

"I think the future safety of all civilization will depend upon the proper direction of intellectual rather than mechanical energies," continued the speaker, after a brief analysis of the dangers of stagnation on the one hand, and of too rapid change on the other; "the just distribution of wealth, rather than the energies of production; democratic control in industry, rather than methods of operation; efficient control of the functions of government rather than its structure—these are the problems that concern the mass of people, and there is a growing insistence that the end of civilization is the maximum of happiness and self-expression for the greatest possible number of people. . . . 'Ideas rule the world or throw it into chaos,' said August Comte, and it is in the realm of ideas that the future of civilization in America and the rest of the world will be determined. Mechanical improvements are bringing increased leisure, and increased leisure is releasing the intellectual energies of men for consideration and discussion of the real issues that touch human relations. The leadership of the future rests with the cultured men and women who each year go forth from our colleges and universities."

Gordon Watkins entered the University of Montana in 1912, receiving his degree in 1914, in the department of economics. Three years later the doctor's degree was conferred upon him by the University of Pennsylvania. He is acting head of the department of economics at the University of Illinois, and the author of four books on economic problems and principles.

THE COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM.

Commencement week began on Friday, June 6, with the School of Music Recital. Saturday morning was given over to the Class day exercises, with mirthful acts, including the reading of the class will, the prophecy in dialogue fashion; the class history embodied in a poem after the "Congo" of Vachel Lindsay, and impersonations of university officials. Open house meetings occupied the afternoon, and a band concert and get-together and mixer in the evening.

President Clapp gave the Baccalaureate address on Sunday evening at the Presbyterian Church. "Is It Worth While?" was the subject of his talk, and in a few brief but impressive remarks he discussed the ideals that have been accepted as the basis of social progress, and the sacrifices their attainment involves.

One hundred thirty-eight graduates received their degrees on Monday morning, a large crowd being gathered in the men's gymnasium to witness the ceremonies. A feature of the exercises was the procession of candidates for degrees, faculty and alumni, with the impressive processional march from "Aida," rendered by the University Orchestra.

The day closed with the President's reception, held on the campus after the faculty-alumni baseball game, which Dr. Clapp efficiently umpired from a rocking chair, and brought to a glorious inconclusion. The reception was perhaps the most enjoyable feature of the day, when alumni and other friends of the institution met informally, and exchanged reminiscences in the sunshine and shade of an ideal June afternoon.

SPAULDING WINS ALUMNI ELECTION IN JUNE VOTING

"Tom" Spaulding, '06, acting Dean of the School of Forestry, was elected President of the Alumni Association by a large majority in the June election. There is probably no alumnus more active in furthering the interests of the University, and more loyal in his faith to it than "Tom." He was responsible for the success of the homecoming of 1922, and the association is to be congratulated upon his leadership.

Muriel Perkins Patterson, '23, was elected Vice-President; Tom Busha, '17, three-year delegate; and Margaret Ronan, '02, Lelia Paxson Hale, '20, and Alberta Stone, '14, one-year delegates.

FIVE MONTANA JOURNALISTS ATTEND DINNER IN 'FRISCO

Five journalists, all one-time students at Montana, met together in San Francisco recently and "put on" a dinner to celebrate the event, according to a letter received from George Scherek, Journalism '20, who is now on the staff of the Illustrated Daily Herald.

"Rosy" Rosendorff, '20, one of the five, is now assistant Sunday editor on the San Francisco Examiner; Seymour Gorsline, '20, is radio editor of the Oakland Post-Inquirer; Harry Flannigan, ex '20, does feature work for various papers; Lloyd Thompson, ex '21, is editing "Gently Brother," and reading copy for the San Francisco Examiner.

The Newest Alumni

The class of 1924 has been an enforcer of rules and of traditions. It has furnished its share of campus leaders and athletes, and has been influential in the furthering of various campus activities.

Under the direction of Roger Deeney, ex, the class rejuvenated the "M" on Mount Sentinel by clearing the weeds away and whitewashing the letters that had been smeared with Aggie blue the previous year. Roger is now with the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, in Butte.

The class has always been prominent in athletics. Its first triumph was when the frosh team defeated Butte Central by a score of 42 to 0, in which game McAuliffe, Nelson, and Dahlberg showed their ability in gridiron action. Dahlberg was the only one of those three to remain at Montana. McAuliffe and Nelson went to Beloit.

The Cubs' basketball team that year was an all-star aggregation, including McDonnell, Tanner, Eckberg, Badgley and McAuliffe. They defeated the Aggie frosh decisively as well as prominent high school teams of the state.

Many men of the class of '24 have borne Montana colors. Gordon Tanner, Ray Kibble, John Shaffer, Grant Silvernale, Kirk Badgley, Ed Taylor, Ted Plummer, Ralph Stowe, and Howard Rottler all have represented Montana in either football, basketball, or track.

The class has been represented on the debating team by Olive McKay, Miles O'Connor and Russel Niles. Miss McKay tied for second place in the Aber Oratorical contest.

Women who have been prominent in campus activities are Helen Newman, President of the Associated Women Students, and May queen; Helen Badger, Prom queen; Margaret Kiely, journalist, and chairman of most of the committees; Helen Ramsey, R. O. T. C. sponsor; Edna Morris, winner of Sentinel beauty contest; Olive McKay, debate and oratory; Solvay Andresen, athlete; Madge McRae, designer of scenery and costumes for Masquers and Vodvil; Victoria Mosby, to whom much of the pictorial beauty of the Masquers' productions has been due, and Marjorie Wilkinson, President of the Y. W. C. A.

Nat McKown was the editor of last year's Sentinel. Burt Teats, who was awarded the Rhodes scholarship last year and who is now attending Oxford College, wrote the accepted manuscript for the May Fete, "The Land of the Shining Mountains," in '22.

Ten members were tapped Silent Sentinel last spring. They were: Ralph Neill, Russel Stark, William O'Neil, Roger Deeney, Stanley Griffiths, Ritchie Newman, Gordon Tanner, Roy Murphy, John Moriarty, and Charles Nickolaus.

SENIOR CLASS DONATES TOWARD ATHLETIC FUND

Forty-seven members of the senior class, of the 80 present at the class meeting, subscribed to the athletic fund of the Montana Alumni Challenge Athletic Fund corporation. The first installments of these subscriptions will be payable April 1, 1925.

The Montana Alumni Challenge Athletic Fund corporation was established during the last Montana homecoming in October, 1922. This class has the distinction of having the largest number of subscribers of any graduating class of the University the total of all subscribers now being 147. The subscriptions amount to $6,686, of which approximately $1,500 has been paid into the treasury.

George Shepard, '22, treasurer of the corporation, addressed the senior class, explaining the fund and asking them to subscribe.

CHOICE OF "CLICK" CLARK GOOD NEWS TO ALUMNUS

That "Click" Clark is to pilot the Bruin eleven next fall "is the best news that has seeped from Hellgate in many a day," writes Mort. J. Donoghue, a graduate of the School of Journalism, now employed on the Los Angeles Illustrated Times. "I have seen every football team in the United States worthy of mention in action, but to me the great scholastic pastime is personified in 'Click' Clark. Clean of thought and action, highly intelligent, lovable, mild of manner, yet relentless when he's playing the game, Clark well earns the distinction of being one of the few western men ever chosen on an All-American team," says Donoghue.

"His super-achievements in the Montana-Syracuse game, when he outwitted and outplayed men whose names were by-words in gridiron history, placed him among the great players of the day. The reputation he established in his collegiate days has expanded with the passing of time until he is now known as one of the most successful and reliable coaches. When he comes back to Montana he will bring with him something that most collegiate coaches lack—love for his Alma Mater. To 'Click,' as always, I wish the greatest success, and to Montana continued progress in her laudable athletic accomplishments."

Mr. Donoghue, a graduate of the class of '18, and a classmate of "Click" Clark, is picture editor and Sunday editor, as well as having charge of promotion and features of the Illustrated Daily Times.

MONTANA ALUMNI COACH WINNERS IN TRACK MEET

Teams coached by Montana graduates won 79½ points at the Interscholastic track meet. Harry ("Swede") Dahlberg's team from Butte took first in the meet and was also awarded permanently the Missoula cup for the team winning the greatest number of points for five years. Steve Sullivan, coaching Butte Central, brought over the winning relay team, which was awarded the Donohue cup, given permanently to the school having won the greatest number of points in the relay race for five years.

Lloyd Madsen, coaching Hamilton, took second place in the meet with 26 13-14 points. Fred ("Cubs") Daylis, with two athletes from Billings, took nine points, winning first and fifth in the 220-yard dash and third in the century. William Jameson, graduate of 1920, coached the winning debate team from Billings.

"BOB" LINE, '10, VISITS "U."

"I don't know whether to introduce him as 'Mr. Line,' or 'Robert,' or just as 'Bob,' the way we all knew him," said Margaret Ronan, Vice-President of the Alumni Association, in presenting "Bob" to the alumni at a luncheon in his honor last April. But Mr. Line says that his little daughter calls him "Bob," so he doesn't see why his old friends shouldn't.

Mr. and Mrs. Line visited the University informally but "Bob" consented to make a few remarks at the alumni luncheon in his capacity as a member of the State Board of Education. Mr. Line is not only the youngest member of the board, but is also the only alumnus of the University represented. The financial situation of the state was discussed briefly, and the attitude of the taxpayers toward the state institutions was gone over carefully. Mr. Line is closely in touch with the interests of the people of the state, and gives a clear vision of the relations that should exist between the people and their institutions.

He also spoke to the students of Business Administration at the University on the principles of good salesmanship. Mr. Line is the owner and manager of a chain of stores in Montana, and speaks with authority on business problems.

Music and Masquers

Maurice Brown in Barry Play.

Missoula had the exceptional advantage on May 24th of seeing Maurice Brown again, this time in the Belmont prize play "You and I," by Phil Barry. The play was first presented at the Belmont Theater in 1923. Professor Baker of the Harvard 47 Workshop, in a long article on "You and I," had nothing but words of praise for the author and for the first production of the play.

Mr. Brown played the part of Maitland White, a whimsical middle-aged business man who should have been an artist. He has lost nothing of the charm that so delighted Montana people in his former appearance here, and his cast supported him well. Mary Fleming gave a finished interpretation of Maitland's wife, carrying the part with the same grave gayety that had made her characterization in "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire" memorable.

Helen Ramsey had the charming role of the maid who wanted to be a lady. She belongs to the class of 1924, and her winsomeness and skill will be missed in future productions of the Masquers. Audrey Allen and Earl Johnson played the young collegians with a delightful verve and piquancy. The lines are ultra-modern and breezy and were very effective; combined with tense situations they give a sympathetic and convincing presentation of the present generation. Martin Hudtloff, a veteran of Masquers and Glee Club, took the role of the solid, unimaginative business man with his usual quiet skill, and Albert Stark, also a veteran, played the middle-aged author, who had preferred his career to the girl who loved him.

The theme is not particularly new, but its presentation has probably never been better done than in this play. It was well presented by the Masquers, with effective stage settings and costuming and was well liked by its audiences.

May Fete a Beautiful Spectacle.

The May Fete this year was more of the old-fashioned May festival than has been usual in recent years—pretty dancers, pretty dances; the merry villagers winding the Maypole, and the crowning of the beautiful queen, together with a thread of a plot. The manuscript chosen on the basis of spectacular beauty, seasonability, and adaptability to outdoor presentation was written by D'Arcy Dahlberg, of Missoula. Its theme, "The Birth of the Flowers," lent itself admirably to pictorial representation. The dances of the Raindrops, Sunbeams, Shooting Stars, Buttercups, Fireflies, South Winds, and of the Bluebells gave opportunity for a harmonious massing of brilliant colors on the oval where simple but appropriate settings had been arranged. The program opened with a solo dance by Nan Walsh, of Missoula, in the role of "Winter," put to flight by "Raindrops," a group dance. "Lord Sunshine," impersonated by Jean Haviland, of Missoula, in a solo dance, brought out the "Sunbeams," at whose touch the flowers, one group after another, came to life. The solo dance of the flower group was "The Wild Rose," presented by Alice Lease, of Great Falls. Helen Newman, President of the Associated Women Students, was crowned May Queen, and the program concluded with a group of folk dances by girls in peasant costumes, and the winding of the Maypole.

The return of the May Fete to the oval, with its natural setting of trees and grass, was welcomed by the many alumni present. The conception of the story was especially happy, and closely in harmony with the spirit of the season. The weather, while not strictly ideal, was favorable, and a large crowd was seated on bleachers and chairs about the oval. The music for the dances was broadcast from Victrolas stationed near Craig Hall.

FOGLE, EX '23, DIRECTING PLAYS.

George L. Fogle has been directing a revival of Bernard Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," in Newcastle, Pa., to be played for the summer in lyceums and under canvas. It played in Newcastle on May 29th, for three days, after which Fogle went to Providence, R. I., to assist in the direction of the E. F. Albee Stock Company. E. F. Albee is the President of the Keith Vaudeville Circuit, and the Stock Company in Providence is one of his pet enterprises, this being the 24th year he has operated it. Fogle is the only man or woman in the company except Chas. Schofield who is not a feature or star player in either moving pictures or on the legitimate stage. Mr. Albee gathers this company together each year to give his home town, Providence, the best that money can buy in both players and plays, presenting such successes as "The First Year," "Merton of the Movies," "The Cat and the Canary," etc. Fogle is a character comedian and stage manager. "I find that the art of living is a pleasant one when you are engaged in the work you most enjoy," writes Fogle.

PARTY OF SEVEN CLIMBS
MOUNT AENEAS ON TRIP

A party of seven students, while on a field trip with Dr. Roy Wilson, '15, in charge, recently made the ascent of Mount Aeneas, one of the highest peaks in the Swan range.

Mount Aeneas is 9,000 feet high, and the party had to travel the last 2,000 feet in deep snow, in one instance using a rope to enable them to pass over a particularly dangerous spot. The whole top of the mountain is composed of Newland limestone, one of the formations of the Proterozoic era, and it was to study this formation that the party made the ascent.

In addition to studying the formation, the party mapped the geology of the Yellow Bay district.

According to one of the students who made the trip, they were able to make out the Glacier Park ranges, some of the Canadian ranges, the continental divide, and counted ten glacial lakes which were still frozen over.

"Apartment 6,
2126 Bancroft Way,
Berkeley, California.

"—After days and days of travel and house hunting, we are very comfortably located in an apartment only a few blocks from the campus," writes Anna Davis Watkins, '15, who spent a week in Missoula at Commencement time reviewing old scenes and acquaintances. "Gordon has an 8 o'clock, so I am learning anew to arise early. Nothing in our journey has been so delightful as those days in Missoula. . . . In Seattle we had a long visit with Bill Long. He appears to be doing well in practice all by himself. He prefers commercial law practice to criminal work. The day after we settled here we were surprised by a call from Leo Horst and his wife, Vera Pride. Leo is enrolled for graduate work this summer. I hope to locate some more Montanans and gather some alumnus news."

George H. Cunningham, ex-instructor of English at the University of Montana, is now chief engineer for the Australian Zinc Smelting Company at Hobart, Tasmania.

Ralph D. Casey, formerly of the faculty of the University of Montana, is closing his second year as associate professor of journalism at the University of Oregon. He has been aiding in the publicity involved in putting on Oregon's campaign for $5,000,000 for new buildings. He and Mrs. Casey will spend the summer in Seattle, where Mr. Casey expects to do some graduate work at the University of Washington. Alumni can reach him by writing care of Beta Theta Pi House, University Station, Seattle.

ATHLETICS

J. D. Lewellen, '26.

Members of the "M" Club, athletes who have won their letters in inter-collegiate sports.

Forming the M: Christie, Silvernale, Rooney, Egan, Newman, Badgley, Ramsey, Elliott, Plummer, McDonnell, Baird, Higgins, Tanner, Kibble, Madsen, O'Neill.

Upper corners: Shaffer, Maudlin.

The Prospects.

Achievements of Grizzly athletic teams for the past year were not so brilliant as the prospects for next year's teams indicate they will be, but the season on the whole was much more successful than the most ardent Montana fan had predicted. Not only did the Varsity teams give better accounts of themselves than were generally expected, but the Grizzly Cub teams set a remarkable record by winning every contest on the schedule in football, basketball and track, taking in all a total of 18 straight contests. Next year with the eligibility of the members of the winning frosh teams, and the return of past Varsity performers, Montana should place some teams on the field that will be a big noise in both Northwest and Pacific Coast conferences.

The Schedule.

Through the efforts of Head Coach Jim Stewart and the wonderful showing of the Cub teams, Montana was admitted to the Pacific Coast conference at a meeting of the executive council of the conference held at Berkeley, Cal., last December. Coach Stewart also succeeded in arranging excellent schedules for Varsity teams in football, basketball, baseball, and track, for the coming year. The football schedule includes games with Stanford, Washington and Idaho. Ten conference baseball games are on the Varsity schedule, five track and field meets, and eighteen basketball games, 15 of which are conference games. The basketball team opens the season at home next winter instead of taking the long road trip, which has usually resulted rather unfavorably for Grizzly teams. Two trips will be made by the team, and the University of Washington basketball team will play at Missoula in the final games of the season. Only one-game series in baseball will be permitted next spring, as a conference ruling made at the Pacific Coast conference meet at Eugene, Oregon, last month barred two-game series.

The Coach.

Earl F. (Click) Clark, former Grizzly end and mentor of Everett high school athletics, will coach the Varsity football eleven this fall. Stewart will remain head coach of the University, having charge of both the Varsity basketball and track teams, besides assisting Clark with the Varsity football team. Clark is one of the most brilliant ends that ever wore a Montana uniform. He will always be remembered by the older Grizzly fans for his playing in the Montana-Syracuse game of Thanksgiving day, 1915. Clark playing end, made Montana's lone touchdown in a game that ended in a 6 to 6 deadlock although the Grizzlies had completely outplayed the powerful eastern eleven throughout the entire contest. Clark graduated in 1917, after starring three years at end. He then coached high school football at Mitchell, South Dakota, where he produced some remarkable teams. Succeeding Enoch Bagshaw as coach of Everett high school, after the latter had taken the coaching reins at the University of Washington, Clark continued producing champion teams. He was appointed Grizzly mentor in April and will report to Dornblaser field early next September to take charge of the team.

The Record.

Briefly summarized, Montana athletic teams hung up the following performances last year:

Football—Varsity, won 4, lost 4; Cubs, won 5, lost 0.

Basketball—Varsity, won 7, lost 8; Cubs, won 11, lost 0.

Track—Varsity, won 0, lost 2; Cubs, won 2, lost 0.

Baseball—Varsity, won 3, lost 9; no games for Cub team.

The football victories include the first conference triumph for a Montana team, the Grizzlies defeating Whitman 16 to 7 last November 3, and the 24 to 13 drubbing administered the Aggies at Bozeman on November 17. Mount St. Charles and the School of Mines also fell victims to the superior skill of the Grizzlies, but games were lost to Washington, Idaho, Gonzaga, and Pacific University.

After losing seven consecutive games on the western trip to start the season, the basketball team braced and took seven of the eight remaining games on the home floor. Dual track meets were lost to Washington State College and Idaho.

The showing of the baseball team was slightly better than the record of last year's team, which won but two of the 12 played games. This year the team won 3 and dropped 9, all of the victories coming at the expense of the Gonzaga Bulldogs. The record of the Freshman teams has already been commented upon enough without repetition here.

John Shaffer, premier Grizzly discus thrower, was sent to the Olympic tryouts at Boston held June 13 and 14, but failed to qualify for the Olympic team. He was an easy winner in the discus throw at the dual meet with Washington State College and the University of Idaho. He also took individual honors at both meets. His best throw in competition was 144 feet 4 inches, made in one of the dual meets. Frequently in practice at Dornblaser field Shaffer heaved the discus over 150 feet, but could not get it out that far in actual competition.

Next year Coaches Clark, Stewart, and Schreiber will have an abundance

1903

Secretary, Mrs. Harriet Rankin Sedman, State University.

H. N. Dion, who attended the University in 1899 and 1900, is engaged in banking in Glendive. He was married in December, 1911, to Grace Hunter of Carleton College, 1904, and has three children, aged ten, nine and six.

Secretary, Mrs. Frank Borg, 321 Daly Ave., Missoula.

Nora Toole, ex, was married in June, 1908, to John Minton Clifton, an Oberlin graduate of 1905. She took her degree there in the same year. Mrs. Clifton lives at 1002 W. Seventh Ave., Spokane. She has five children, the oldest a girl of fifteen, the youngest a girl three months old.

1906

Secretary, Fred E. Buck, State Capitol Building, Helena.

Maud E. Johnson writes from Long Beach that her sister Florence and husband, Dr. J. J. Moore, '07, are building a summer cottage at Miller Beach, on Lake Michigan.

Stella Duncan Maloy writes: "Three and a half years ago I came to Boston, where I prepared for store work at the Prince School for Store Educational work. This school is affiliated with Simmons College, and that year's work entitled me to my B. S. at Simmons, which I received three years ago this June. I am now buying for C. Crawford Hallege, a specialty store (lingerie and negligees). In February I had a nice visit with Margery Maxwell, ex '14, who was here with the Chicago Grand Opera Company. Last week when at dinner at Marblehead, Mass., I ran into Earl Greenough, who was east on business, accompanied by his wife.

Secretary, King Garlington, 630 Eddy Ave., Missoula.

James H. Bonner and wife (Minta McCall, '08) are living at 3420 East First St., Long Beach, Cal. "Jim" is manager of several oil companies in the Signal Hill field and has been very successful there in operating oil wells.

"Dorothy Risley, Kathleen Andrus and Clyde Murphy are former University students who often go with us and other ex-Missoulians to the beaches to dance or swim," writes Florence Ervey Heyfron, from Hollywood. "Molly Kearney, who has taught dancing in Aberdeen, Wash., the past few years, spent a day with us this month. She was going by boat to New York, then to France, to meet her father. They are to visit the Exposition in London, travel in Switzerland, then visit their old home in Scotland. Molly will return to Aberdeen the last of September. We often see Jim and Minta (McCall) Bonner in Long Beach. Jim is always very busy with his oil wells, and their two girls certainly keep Minta busy. When I was at their home recently, they got out the Class Will which Jim read at our Class Day exercises in 1907. We had a good laugh at it and it didn't seem half as long ago as it is. Wishing the Montana Alumnus every success—"

Secretary, Winnifred Feighner, State University, Missoula.

Winnifred Feighner spent the month of June in Portland.

A picture of Arthur Ivanson Morgan, Jr., aged one year on May 21, 1924, was received in the office recently from Mrs. Agnes Fay Morgan, of 1620 Spruce St., Berkeley, Cal.

Secretary, Mrs. Ida Cunningham Bush, 322 Blaine St., Missoula.

"I miss the 'U' just as much as ever, and look forward to a visit some day," writes Montana Buswell Rowlands from Victoria, B. C. "The campus must be wonderful now. Don't U. of M. students ever come to Victoria? I never see one. Phone 6321 if you ever do. Victoria is quaint and worth coming to see. So am I."

Mrs. Charles A. Popkin, who was Margaret Elizabeth Bradford, sends a clipping telling of her husband's oil wells in Sapulpa, Okla. "If this comes in as expected, you may receive a life membership in the association from me," she writes. "The only important things or events in our everyday life are our three children, our oldest girl, Elizabeth, is 12 years old, and a freshman in high school; our boy is in Junior high, and Virginia in third grade. A. Will Craig of Tulsa has called on us twice recently. I did not know him at Montana 'U,' but we have much of common interest."

Jay Morrison, ex, visited in Missoula during May, coming from his ranch near the Wenatchee valley.

Secretary, W. J. Tait, 2718 Floral Blvd., Butte.

George M. Coffey, Junior, ex, took his A. B. degree in 1909 at the University of Missouri, and is now practicing law at Choteau. He was married in 1917 and has twin boys aged four.

Bessie Epperson, ex, married William Carpenter in January, 1920, and has one child, Elizabeth, aged two years. She lives at 1 West 64th St., New York City.

Eugene L. DeMers, who attended the University in 1906-07, is secretary and director of the Arro Oil and Refining Company of Lewistown. He was married in July, 1909, to Ruth Talbot, and has three children, aged 13, 11 and 9.

1912

Secretary, Mrs. Nina Gough Hall, Potomac.

Elizabeth Schilling, ex, who attended the University from 1907 to 1908, beginning in the preparatory school several years earlier, lives at 624 Water St., Lewistown. She was married in 1909 to Fred Anderson, a graduate of the School Mechanical Engineering, 1902, who died in 1910. In May, 1912, she married Burton R. Cole, who was attending the Law School at the University of Montana. He was teaching German at the University at the same time. The Coles have two children, a boy of eleven and a girl of four.

Florence de Ryke, after her return from France, resumed her work as teacher of French in the Cleveland high school. She expects to return to Missoula in August for a visit.

Secretary, Mrs. Florence Mathews Brown, 804 Chestnut St., Missoula.

C. H. Buck, ex, a brother of Fred E. Buck, '06, is construction engineer in smelter work for the Cerro de Pasco Copper Company at Oroya, Peru, where he has been located for the past year and a half. For three years prior to that he held a similar position with the Braden Copper Company at Rancagua, Chile. He writes that he has just returned to Oroya after a month's trip of inspection of smelters through Peru, Bolivia and Chile. He has finished designing, and is now supervising the construction of a $300,000 hotel for the Company's plant at Oroya.

Gladys Hayward Silva writes that her husband is president of the Silva-Pfeifer Company, Forestry and Landscape Contracting, in Cleveland, Ohio. Abbott II, three years old, already shows his aptitude for climbing trees.

A clipping from the World's Work announces: "IS MURDER THE PRICE OF COAL?" by Carl Dickey. "A savage war is being fought to unionize the coal mines of West Virginia; and the public, by paying more for its coal, is defraying the cost of the constant killings and dynamitings. We sent Carl C. Dickey to the mines to bring to the fore the human element behind all the trouble. He established friendships with mine owners, miners, and union organizers, and has gotten nearer to the crux of the situation than any other writer."

Dickey visited Montana in May in the interest of Doubleday Page's new western magazine. He called on various Montana writers while in the state to enlist their services.

"Not much news," writes "Howdy" Pat Keeley. "I am practicing law here with my brother, firm of Keeley & Keeley, Deer Lodge. My brother does the work and I do the practicing. I am running for County Attorney on the Republican ticket. I still beat the drum occasionally, and am Scoutmaster of a local troop of Boy Scouts. When I haven't anything else to do in the evening, I have the boys of the 6th, 7th, and 8th grades playing baseball. During November, December, January and February I taught school in the Powell County high school while the principal was recovering from an operation. Three of the teachers here are Aggies, so I spend my spare time getting them told."

Miles Romney, Jr., of Hamilton, after a trip of 35,000 miles, arrived in Missoula early in June on his return to the Bitter Root. Miles was a purser on the S. S. Edgefield, a freighter which carried its cargoes to the ports of Japan, China, Siam, Panama, Jamaica and Cuba, and also the Philippine and Hawaiian islands. He has been away since September. Romney was deeply impressed by the antiquated methods of production prevalent in the Orient, and by the unsurpassed beauty of the Hawaiian Islands, but concludes that "See America First" is a worthy slogan. "Incidentally, a person could not choose a better place to start than Western Montana with its majestic mountains, tumbling streams, and other natural advantages," concluded Romney.

Ann Skylestead Rhoades, who is en route to Banff, Canada, with her husband, stopped over in Missoula last month.

at the home of Joe, Sr., '06, in the middle of December, at St. Ignatius.

Hazel Hawk Wright announces the arrival of her son, John Philip, at Missoula, on June 15.

DEATHS.

Dorothy Frances Bird deLisle, who attended the University at various times from 1908 to 1915, died in Spokane April 4th. She entered as a preparatory student, later majoring in English and Journalism. She was married August 4, 1917, and went to Seattle to live, where her first child, a boy, was born in 1918. Her second child was born in Spokane two years later. To these two children, and to her husband, the sympathy of her classmates and of the Alumni Association is extended.

Lulu Wright Bennett, ex '16, died in New York City in May, after an illness of several months. She attended the State University in 1912-13, later going to the University of Washington. While in Seattle she met and married Gordon Bennett. They lived for several years at Kobe, Japan, where Mr. Bennett was representative of an American importing company. A year ago they went to New York.

The sympathy of the Association is extended to Lelia Logan Smith, '17, and her husband, who lost their baby boy April 23.

The Alumni Association wishes to express its sympathy for Roger Deeney, ex '24, whose mother died in Butte early in June.

The sympathy of the Association is extended to Margaret Garvin Stone, '18, Luke Garvin, ex '25, and Ellen Garvin, '26, whose mother died in Missoula on June 11. Margaret Stone and two of her sisters were with their mother during her last illness.

Sympathy is extended to Patricia O'Flynn Tatcher, '19, because of the death of her husband, Jack Tatcher, a well-known Butte physician who passed away at his home in Butte after a severe attack of pneumonia. "Patsy" was very prominent in University affairs while on the campus. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Adelaide Kreklau, ex '24, who was employed in the University library, died January 16 in Missoula at the family home, after an illness of several months.
