LAST LECTURE SERIES GETS UNDER WAY AT UM

Four lectures are scheduled in this year's Last Lecture Series at the University of Montana. The free lectures are sponsored annually by Mortar Board, a national senior honorary.

Each professor selected to speak prepares his or her lecture as though it is the last opportunity to talk about his or her area of expertise.

The lectures will be on Wednesdays at 7 p.m. in the University Center Lounge. A question and answer period and a reception will follow each lecture.

The speakers and their topics:

Feb. 6--Gene Schiedermaier, assistant professor of computer science, "2005?"

Feb. 13--Thomas Payne, professor of political science, "The Reconstitution of the American Political System"

Feb. 20--David Strobel, professor of psychology, "A.P.E. Affective Primate Experience"

Feb. 27--Charles Jonkel, director of Border Grizzly Project and research professor of wildlife biology, "Humanism and Ecology"
