Text: Michael Brown, et al. Theories of War and Peace

This course is concerned with various aspects of armed conflict. It does not involve analysis of battles, campaigns or military history. For our purposes armed conflict may be defined as the organized, systematic and persistent use of force for defined objectives.

Requirements:

There will be two hourly exams - October 4 and November 8. The comprehensive final is scheduled for December 15 at 8-10.

The class will be divided into five groups each covering one of the topics (6-10) listed below. The groups will gather information on their respective topics from library and internet sources. The result will be individual reports (5-10 pages) and a brief class presentation. Reports should be submitted on 3 1/2" floppy disk and they will be posted in the Department website where they will be available for class use.
