Statement of intent for As Earth Begins to End

Patricia Goedicke

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/goedicke

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.umt.edu/goedicke/25

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Manuscript Collections at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in Patricia Goedicke and Leonard Wallace Robinson Papers by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.
Sent to Michael  February 28, 1999

AS EARTH BEGINS TO END
by Patricia Goedicke

Statement of Intent

“This book, written almost literally in medias res, springs partly from its involvement in the last days of a passionate thirty year love affair and marriage between two writers. But its overall scope, grounded though it may be in the inevitable death and decay of a single human couple, is intended to be as global as it is local. In poems that would reach out almost to the ends of the universe, the book is an attempt to celebrate and at the same time mourn not only the death of individual love, but also that entropically generated but far too often mankind-assisted loss of energy (shape, body, life) which is a constant of the entire universe. It is an environment in which each one of us – plant, animal, human being, earth itself – is, quite naturally, “ending”.”