The University of Montana in Missoula is located in a mountain forest setting in beautiful Western Montana. It is halfway between Glacier and Yellowstone national parks.

Four wilderness areas are located near Missoula. The natural surroundings offer excellent opportunities for hunting, fishing, backpacking, river floating, camping and other outdoor recreational pursuits. Two excellent winter ski areas are located within minutes of the University. Several other ski areas are only a couple of hours away by car. UM owns and operates its own golf course adjacent to campus.

The University of Montana is one of the West's pioneers in education and was chartered February 17, 1893. The school opened in September 1895, with 50 students enrolling the first day. Located on 201 acres at the base of Mount Sentinel, UM has grown from 50 students and seven faculty members to a present enrollment of 8,500 and approximately 450 full-time faculty positions.

Through its history, the University of Montana has sustained a high standard of academic excellence in teaching, research and service.

UM offers associate of arts degrees in two areas and bachelor's degrees in 58 fields. It offers master's degrees in 54 programs and doctoral degrees in 13.

The College of Arts and Sciences, which is the core of the University, includes a full range of programs and courses in the life sciences, physical sciences, social sciences and humanities. The College also offers curricula in interdisciplinary fields ranging from ethnic studies to interdepartmental studies.

Seven professional schools complete the academic program — Business Administration, Fine Arts, Journalism, Education, Forestry, Law, and Pharmacy and Allied Health Sciences.

The aim of the University is to provide its students with relaxing and meaningful learning experience with the best facilities possible. The administration, faculty and staff strive for this goal.

The University of Montana was recently awarded its 23rd Rhodes Scholar. This ranks UM 19th in the nation of all American colleges and universities. UM ranks sixth among schools west of the Mississippi. Rhodes Scholarships provide two to four years at Oxford University in England. Students are chosen on the basis of scholarships, community and political involvement, athletic ability and personal character.

The Yellow Bay Biological Station, located about 70 miles northeast of Missoula at Flathead Lake, is the nation’s oldest inland station. Among some 70 inland units in the United States, the UM ranks fifth for its program facilities and student population.

KUFM, a noncommercial public radio station operated by the Telecommunications Center, is the only National Public Radio station in Montana.

University of Montana education majors compete very successfully for jobs with 93 percent of those with bachelor’s degrees and 100 percent of those with graduate degrees finding appropriate positions.

The Department of Social Work is fully accredited by the Council on Social Work Education and is the only Montana school that assures its graduates of a year of advanced standing in graduate schools of social work.

The School of Journalism has had 19 of its students selected as Sears Congressional interns — more than any other journalism school in the country. During the four-month internship, students work for a United States Congressman or Senator and also attend classes.

The Department of Art enjoys a national reputation for excellence in ceramics.

The Department of Drama/Dance has a professional theater group — the Montana Repertory Theater — based on campus. The Montana Repertory Theater, which tours throughout the Northwest, is the only professional Actors Equity company between Minneapolis and Seattle.

A University of Montana student has been chosen to receive a Truman Scholarship for six of the last eight years. The national scholarship is given annually to students committed to a government career who have superior academic ability and leadership potential.

The Department of Anthropology has the largest collection of artifacts and records of pre-history in the region.

The School of Business is the only accredited master’s program in Business in the state.

Nearly 47 percent of the business school’s accounting graduates pass the Certified Public Accountant Exam on their first try. This is more than three times the national first-time success rate of 14 percent.

The Department of Geology has an outstanding national reputation. In cooperation with Purdue University, a field station has been set up in southwestern Montana. The department also provides hands-on experience for students in the minerals, rocks and paleontology laboratories at the University’s Seismic Station and in the Earthquake Research Laboratory.

The Department of Geography has one of the region’s best cartography laboratories where students learn to make maps and interpret aerial photography.

The Department of Health and Physical Education is one of a handful in the country that trains students to be athletic trainers. And it is the only program in the state to offer a master of science in physical education.

The Native American Studies program at the University of Montana is regarded by Indian educators as one of the four most outstanding in the nation.

Newly remodeled training facilities in the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders are some of the finest in the region. People from all over the state come to the center for speech, language and hearing therapy.

The Grizzlies have had five Academic All-Americans in recent history in basketball and several All-Big Sky Conference picks. Most recently Scott Zanon was named a second team All-American (this includes all Division 1 schools). Larry Krystkowiak was named to GTE’s first team All-American squad his junior and senior seasons.

Montana has had numerous All-Americans in other sports, including football, wrestling and several all-league academic choices in all of UM’s sports programs.
The art of lost wax casting is almost as old as art itself. Probably the most complex of all casting techniques, it has been used throughout history to capture detail and intricated design in various metals.

When Missoula residents Don Olson and Ron Herron first tried their hands at this ancient technique, they used an old tomato juice can and plaster of Paris. That was in 1970 and both would have to admit they've come a long way since then.

Herron, who has since moved to Helena, has become a nationally recognized artist, famous for both his painting and sculptures, and Olson have perfected the techniques of casting in bronze to the point that artists from around the nation send their work to his Omega Bronze Foundry located in Stevensville.

Watching the technicians work on the two bronze trophies for the Champion Holiday Classic offers a glimpse into the history of this ancient art, a complex and time consuming process which yields works in bronze that cannot be duplicated.

The process begins in wax. The two original trophies, which were sculpted by Herron in wax, were first photographed for reference and then brushed with several layers of latex to create a mold of the wax original. This latex mold is the permanent record of the artist's original.

Next, wax is poured into the latex mold, the wax cooled, the mold disassembled, and in theory what emerges is an exact duplicate of the artist's original. However, it is never that simple.

The wax replica must be transferred to the secondary wax room where technicians, who are artists in their own right, refine and perfect the wax, constantly comparing it to the original in the photographs.

Once the technicians are satisfied that the secondary wax is indeed identical to the artists original, it is fitted with a system of tubes, or sprue gates, which serve as ducts for the molten metal and escaping air. This insures that when the bronze is eventually poured into the mold, it will flow evenly through the piece and into any extremities.

From the secondary wax to a secondary mold. From this wax replica of the artist’s original a silica and sand shell is created by dipping the replica first in a liquid silica and then into several layers of sand. Once the shell is thick enough, the entire piece, which now looks like something that has just been washed ashore, is placed in an oven. The wax, which is sealed inside the shell, is heated and runs out. Thus, the lost wax.

This empty sand shell is then reheated, molten bronze poured into it, the shell broken, and the bronze and metal allowed to cool, then the trophy is revealed.

At last! But not finally.

For now it must go back to the technicians for refining and finishing.

The sprues, which are now made of bronze, must be removed along with any imperfections, such as air bubbles or cracks. Once again, the technician works from the photographs to insure the accuracy of even the smallest detail.

The entire piece is then heated with a torch until it is so hot it actually glows, and a chemical compound is sprayed onto the surface to achieve the finish, or patina.

Finally the piece is baked with a wax coating and then mounted, which brings to an end an estimated 150 man hours in the casting of one bronze trophy.

The winning team and most valuable player at this year’s Champion Holiday Classic will not only be taking home a trophy for their team and school, they will be earning a unique and valuable work of art, the likes of which will not be seen until the process begins again next year, when the fourth in the series of trophies is cast.
The Champion Holiday Classic VII All-Tournament team, L to R: Bill Toole, Kent St.; Ron Simpson, Rider; Bruno Kongawoin, Houston Baptist; Steve Vanek, Montana and Scott Zanon (MVP), Montana.
The birds may be headed South these days as the Montana winter finally shows its wind-chilled face in Big Sky Country—but three basketball teams from other side of the United States are making the trek North for the annual Champion Holiday Classic Tournament.

Teams from Tallahassee, Florida (Florida A&M), Statesboro, Georgia (Georgia Southern) and Ruston, Louisiana (Louisiana Tech), along with the host University of Montana Grizzlies add up to one of the most outstanding fields ever assembled for the "Classic," which celebrates its eighth birthday in 1987.

Tech is 4-2 overall and turned some heads in Montana and around the Big Sky Conference when it trounced Montana State 85-62 in Ruston a couple of weeks ago. MSU was picked in all of the preseason polls to win the Big Sky championship.

Tech may not have Karl “The Mailman” Malone, but they do have three returning starters, led by a 6-8 junior center Randy White, a second team All-Southland Conference pick last year. White averages 16.7 points and 11.7 rebounds a game.

The other two starters are guards Kelvin Lewis and Byron Newton. Lewis led the league in assists last year with 6.3 a game and Newton hit 30 three-pointers a year ago to lead the Bulldogs in that category.

Southern (2-1) also has three starters back from a 20-11 squad which narrowly lost (79-73) at Syracuse in the first round of the NCAAs, but 6-7 forward Brian Newton, the Trans American Conference Player of the Year, has graduated.

Southern beat UNC-Wilmington (60-53) and Savannah State (67-34), while losing 65-57 at North Carolina-Charlotte.

The Grizzlies are coming off a solid 72-62 win over Texas Tech Monday, but will have to contend with a Florida A&M team with a superb one-two scoring punch.

ABOUT CHAMPION

Champion International Corporation is a major forest products company and a pioneer in the building products, papers and paper packaging businesses. Headquartered in Stamford, Connecticut, the company's major domestic divisions include:

— Building Products
— Paper
— Packaging
— Timberlands

The company was formed in 1967 with the merger of Champion Papers Inc. and U.S. Plywood Corporation. The name Champion International Corporation was adopted in 1972.

Champion in Montana

Champion's investment in Montana is a substantial one. It includes 800,000 acres of timberlands; the largest softwood plywood plant in North America; several sawmills that produce a wide variety of lumber products; and the largest pulp and paper mill of Champion's packaging division. All together, there are some 2,100 Montana Champions employed by these operations located in Western Montana.

Champion's desire to sponsor a tournament for the University came as an outgrowth of an existing community interest in college basketball, and a need for additional academic scholarship programs at the University of Montana.

It is intended that any income from the tournament which is not required to pay the expenses of the tournament will be used for academic and scholarship programs at the University of Montana.

This community event enables individuals from divergent backgrounds and interests to have a common interest, that being the University of Montana.

This event is an example of industry and community participation, hosting an athletic event to provide assistance to academic and scholarship programs at the University of Montana.
