FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Gareld F. Krieg, editor-in-chief of the Montana Law Review, will attend the fourth annual National Conference of Law Reviews, February 22 and 23, in St. Louis, Mo. Krieg, a senior law student from Billings, will be the first representative Montana State University has sent to the national meeting.

The Montana Law Review was published annually by students in the Montana State University Law School from 1940-1955. In 1956, the Review began biannual publication and adopted its present format. A book review section and a case note section were introduced with the 1956 spring issue. The case review section, written by law-school juniors, contains brief studies of decisions of recent important cases and suggests the probable effect of these decisions on the law, Krieg said.

Leading articles in each issue are contributed by faculty members and other authorities in the legal profession, Krieg said. Beginning this year, the Review will keep its subscribers posted on current legislation and its implication for lawyers.

Recent changes in the Review reflect the expanded legal writing program in the Law School, according to Dean E. Sullivan. Staff members are chosen for scholarship, aptitude for legal writing, and certain other qualities. Since last year, selected freshmen have been appointed to the staff to insure a reserve of experienced personnel.

Staff members are Calvin A. Calton, Worland, Wyo.; Richmond F. Allan, Billings; Rae V. Kalbfleisch, Shelby; Robert C. Johnson, Missoula; McKinley T. Anderson, Jr., Manhattan; Douglas P. Beighle, Deer Lodge; Jack H. Bockey, Butte; James J. Bottomly, Helena; George C. Dalthorp, Wibaux; Wallace L. Herreid, Williston, N.D.; Earl M. Genzberger, Butte; Robert B. Gillan, Havre; Robert W. Jasperson, Missoula; Ward A. Shanahan, Missoula.
