

2008

Suizenji Joujen Garden, Japan

Jesse Hammond

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/oval>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

---

Recommended Citation

Hammond, Jesse (2008) "Suizenji Joujen Garden, Japan," The Oval: Vol. 1 : Iss. 1 , Article 27.

Available at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/oval/vol1/iss1/27>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Oval by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.

Suizenji Joujen Garden, Japan

I enter this ancient tea retreat beneath fragrant curtains of hydrangeas, heavy bulbs of purple sunshine.

Along the path pebbled in stones, I pass shrines with peaked roofs built to honor the ancestral lords.
Our heads bowed, their spirits awaken to tolling bells and the plink of my copper yen as it lands in a box of prayers.

Later I buy a paper fortune from a woman in a red kimono.
I tie it to a string lined with hundreds of fortune slips, soggy in the slow drizzle.
The oracles of others dissolve in front of me as the words of their futures drip from the delicate paper.

The pond is filled with yellow and orange carp. They sway in murky water, oblivious to the soft rain rippling the uneven surface.
The cherry trees surrounding the pond give away their blossoms.
I steal one from the water and press it against my palm, molding the petal into its center, tenderly closing my fingers around it.

73

j e s e
.
h
a m m o n d