THE WAYS WE WELCOME

A CONVERSATION ON THE EXPANDING POSSIBILITIES FOR WELCOMING REFUGEES AND THOSE FLEEING DANGER

Much has changed since refugee resettlement restarted in Montana in 2016. The number of people forcibly displaced globally has surpassed the staggering number of 100 million, and the United States, grappling with an under-resourced immigration system, continues to fall short of its refugee admissions goals.

Join us for a two-part event:

- Lecture by Kari Hong, seasoned immigration attorney and current adjunct professor at the University of Montana, to help make sense of the many immigration pathways created in recent years and their consequences
- Panel conversation moderated by Chris Hyslop of the Montana World Affairs Council about the outcomes of these policies, lived experience and what we can do to best support displaced people across the world and in Montana.

Wednesday April 5, 6:30 PM
University Center Theatre
32 Campus Drive

John Bazant, Morocco

"During my time with Franke Global Leadership Initiative, I followed the inequality and human rights global theme, this in turn allowed me to study in Morocco at Al Akhawayn University. In addition to all of the usual characteristics that one would likely experience during a study abroad program, I was also able learn and experience the relevance and importance of International Law within human rights and inequality."
