181 Applications for Degrees

Montana Labor Institute Begins on Campus Today

The eighth annual Montana Labor Institute, a three-day discussion of current labor problems, begins today on the campus. Sponsored by the Montana State Federation of Labor and the Montana Farmers Union, the institute will draw farmers and labor union people from all parts of Montana. All sessions are open to the students and public, and will take place in the Old Science auditorium.

John W. Swackhamer, secretary of the institute and assistant professor of economics at MSU, said "the institute is an attempt to help Montana labor men and farmers arrive at some solutions to some of their current problems. It is also an attempt to bring the University to them."

This morning the institute started off with a review of the 32nd Legislative assembly led by Don Chapman, president, Montana Farmers Union; John Emmons, International Union of Mine, Mill, and Smeltermen; Allen Goodgame, Lumber and Sawmill Workers, AF of L; and Sam Rivin, state organizer, AF of L.

This afternoon's sessions will begin with an address by Vice-President R. H. Jesse. An address by Gov. John W. Bonner will follow, and at 3 o'clock a session on industrial hygiene and silicosis, under the direction of J. M. Clark of the IUMMS, will begin.

Later today the institute will adjourn to Pattee canyon for a picnic.

Friday, Prof. Arthur Carstens, assistant director of the UCLA institute of industrial relations, will speak on the economics of control, wages, hours, and working conditions. That afternoon, Prof. Carl Kraenzel of Montana State college will speak on the family size farm.

Friday night, Charles West, Washington, D. C., office of the International Association of Machinists, will address the delegates and guests at a banquet. The banquet is open to the public, and tickets costing $1.75 may be had from Dr. Swackhamer in Old Science. Mr. West at the present time represents IA of M before the national labor relations board and for many years prior has represented that association throughout the eleven western states.

Painter Found . . .

The lost painter has been found, according to the maintenance department. It seems, however, that it is too warm for him to continue painting the steeple on main hall. The maintenance department still has hopes that he will finish the job though, as soon as the weather cools.

A list of 181 applicants for degrees for the summer session was released by Mrs. Dorothy DeMiller, admissions office, Tuesday.

The list, Mrs. DeMiller said, is just the applicants for degrees. It is not official and is not to be construed as being the final commencement roll.

Those applying for bachelor of arts degrees number 107, master's degrees total 74.

Postal Anguish Checks Languish

Are GI summer session students plutocrats? Are they financially independent?

Mrs. Ruth Hughes of the University postoffice has been confronted with these amazing questions. Maybe some of the Sun's readers who aren't in any of the above categories can supply the answers—but soon!

Twenty-five veteran's subsistence checks reposed, uncalled for and apparently unwanted at the postoffice on the first floor of Main hall. They had arrived with either no address or improper address.

This is the dilemma confronting Mrs. Hughes: According to postal regulations, unclaimed mail must be returned to the sender within 10 days.

Veterans awaiting a check from Fort Harrison, who may have moved or failed to give a proper Missoula address when registering for summer session, are advised by Mrs. Hughes to contact her immediately.

Author Airs Novel Fever

A Scotch lass, who grew up on a cattle ranch in Colorado and now lives in Casper, Wyo., spoke humorously and intelligently on the subject, "First Novel Fever" at a joint public-university convocation lecture last night at the Student Union auditorium.

Peggy Simpson Curry, whose first novel, "Fire In the Water" recently won a $25,000 book-club award (Doubleday), provided good entertainment for a large audience.

Mrs. Curry told of the frustration and problems experienced when she changed her field from short stories—for which she had become well known in the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines—to the hard discipline of writing "Fire In the Water."

All of her former experience in the United States, which in addition to cattle-ranching and the range, included a two year stay in the middle west, where she was exposed to harness racing and other new experiences, had to be shelved for the novel, Mrs. Curry said.

"Fire In the Water" required not only a search back to childhood and the fishing village in which she was born, but it required new research among her rugged Scotch ancestors, and considerable study of contemporary life there.

Mrs. Curry is one of the prominent literary figures participating in the 1951 Writers' Conference on the campus.

Master's Exams Set in Education

The final comprehensive examination for students completing their work for the master's degree in education this summer is to be given as follows: Part 1. From 3 to 5 p.m. Friday, August 3, in BE 211. Part 2. From 9 to 11 a.m., Saturday, August 4, in BE 211.

Last Symphony To Be Heard Friday Night

Another concert by the Rocky Mountain Symphony orchestra under the direction of Eugene Andrie, assistant professor in the MSU School of Music, will begin Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Student Union auditorium. This will be the last concert in a series of two. The first was last Friday night.

The first Rocky Mountain Symphony orchestra ever organized, it has been under the sponsorship of the Regional Arts Roundup. The orchestra is composed of music teachers, educators and qualified high school students.

Freedom of the Press vs. Gag Rules

James S. Pope, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors last month that:

"We are beginning to suspect that the biggest uncovered story of our time is the insidious seizure of news prerogatives by public officials."

Now all of you have at one time or another been told how newspaper publishers and corrupt, mindless, and soulless editors have suppressed news. Maybe you've even agreed with that idea.

This is not to say that such things don't happen. That would be as foolish as saying that everyone who teaches a class in a public school is a well trained, conscientious person. But there is a nation-wide situation of news suppression—not by editors and publishers—but by public officials.

In New York City, court records are now being restricted as sources of information. In Covington, Va., newspapers had to go to court to get building permits opened to inspection. In Fort Worth, Texas, the 8th Air Force locked out newspapers from aircraft accident reports. In Ohio a short time ago the army tried to convert civilian areas to martial law for the purpose of keeping newsmen from doing their jobs. This list goes on at considerable length.

The newsmen is facing a time when things are "off the record," or "not for publication," or "confidential." A good many persons stand ready to condemn the press on hear-say evidence without looking at the other side of the picture. The next time you are ready to believe that information is dehydrated, fragmentary, delayed, and colorless, stop and think—it just may not be the newspaper's fault.—G.S.F.

Little Man On Campus

by Bibler

"No indeed! The finals for summer session are very short and very simple. You haven't a thing to worry about!"

Faculty Members

William Maucker is in town this week and is anxious to visit with his friends. There will be a get-together lunch Thursday noon (12 o'clock in the Bitterroot room. The price is $1. If you can come, call your reservation to Jack Cuthbert in the Student Union store, before Wednesday noon.

Letters to Editor ...

Dear Sirs:

I understand that last week you and J. J. Pincus, of Withing, Idaho, had a long talk together. Pincus remarked to me later that you insulted him by not printing one of his letters.

Be that as it may I wish he would write to you concerning this hot weather we've been having.

I mean he should write something about women having the right to wear something more comfortable to classes. Say, something like sunbathing outfits or bathing suits. I think this would also solve the problem of male attendance in classes. Think of the possibilities!

Women would keep cool. Professors would have full classes. The psych department could run tests to determine the male reaction to warm weather attire.

As for men, how about shorts and T-shirts?

Sincerely,
J. J. Withing,
Pincus, Idaho.

Conference to Hear DeVoto

Four nationally-known literary figures will participate in today's session—the fourth in an intensive 10-day series—of the Writers' Conference on the campus.

As a vital part of the Northern Rocky Mountain Roundup of Regional Arts, sponsored jointly by MSU and the Rockefeller Foundation, most of the sessions are being held in the Gold and Copper rooms of the Student Union building.

Top figure on today's program is Bernard DeVoto, Pulitzer prize winning author, critic, and historian. He speaks tonight at 8 o'clock on "The Writer's Purpose and Ethic," in his first appearance at this year's conference.

Earlier today, Peggy Simpson Curry, of Casper, Wyo., winner of Doubleday's $25,000 prize book-club selection, with her first novel, "Fire in the Water," conducted the morning short story workshop. She will be followed at 2 p.m. by a panel discussion featuring Dale White, Robert Struckman and Joseph Kinsey Howard, on non-fiction work. At 3:30, Norman A. Fox, Great Falls writer of many westerns, will conduct a short story workshop.

Tomorrow's session will include: lecture-demonstration on research methods at 9:30 a.m. by M. Catherine White; 10:45 a.m., workshop on western fiction led by Norman Fox; 2 p.m., historical non-fiction workshop, Mr. DeVoto; and an evening concert and film revival.

Saturday and Sunday the conference will recess so that participants may attend a luncheon and informal lecture at Butte, led by R. H. "Bob" Fletcher, the historical pageant at Anaconda, and a tour to Virginia City.

The conference will continue next Monday with Naomi Lane Babson, Bozeman novelist; Mr. DeVoto and A. B. Guthrie, Jr., also a Pulitzer prize winning novelist, and 1923 graduate of MSU's School of Journalism, participating.

At next Tuesday's session, Bert Hanes, professor of English; Helen Everitt of New York, an editor for Houghton, Mifflin company, publishers; and Mr. Fox will preside at campus sessions. A conference dinner will be held that evening at the Hotel Florence.

On August 8, Elizabeth Marion, Fairfield, Wash., newspaperwoman, who is author of three novels, will make an initial appearance, along with Naomi Babson, Mr. DeVoto and Mr. Guthrie.

WANTS AN APARTMENT

A couple want to let an apartment from August 12 through August 27. They are a Washington State college student and his wife—no children. Contact Bob Hedelius, at Dr. Pruyn residence, phone 8052.

Outstanding Coaches Guest Profs

Two of the nation's outstanding coaches, Powden Wyatt of Wyoming university, and Jack Friel of Washington State college, were instructors when Montana State University opened its annual Summer Coaching school July 22. Each year during the regular summer session Montana University invites two of the country's top college coaches to the campus to conduct classes for one week in the field of athletics.

This year Bowden Wyatt, one of the nation's great defensive coaches, instructed the football classes and Jack Friel, dean of basketball coaches in the west, gave basketball lectures, and Harry Adams, head track mentor of Montana University, taught the track classes.

During the week's clinic each coach gave lectures and practical demonstrations pertaining to his sport along with showing and discussing the big football and basketball games played during the 1950-51 year. Highlighting the movies shown was the Gator bowl game film, in which Wyatt's Wyoming team defeated Washington and Lee in the New Year's game 20-7 to climax an undefeated season.

Head of the summer coaching school was Clyde W. Hubbard, athletic director of Montana State University. Mr. Hubbard points out that the courses were conducted with the emphasis on problems pertaining to high school coaches and that these problems were talked over and various solutions discussed.

In addition to football, basketball and track, a special session in athletic training was given by Roland "Kickapoo" Logan. Logan is well known throughout the country for his colorful and humorous lectures. Approximately 90 coaches from high schools and colleges attended the school.

Drama Heads Tour State

LeRoy Hinze of the MSU drama department described his recent tour of the state as very successful. Mr. Hinze accompanied F. A. Buerki of the University of Wisconsin theater.

The pair met five theater groups in Helena, Missoula, Bozeman, Great Falls and Miles City, besides speaking to a drama class at Virginia City.

Music Camp Concert Will End Session

The two-week Montana Music camp will conclude tonight with a concert in the Student Union auditorium featuring the high school chorus, band, and piano ensemble. The program will get underway at 8:30.

A free concert, anyone attending will get punch after the performance.

The chorus will under the direction of John Bloom, the band under the direction of Prof. J. Justin Gray, and the piano ensembles under the direction of John George Hummel.

Grizzly Grid Tilts Listed

The Grizzly football team will start working out about September 1, according to Ted Shipkey, head coach. About 50 candidates are expected to turn out for the pre-season workouts.

The first game of the season will be with the Washington Huskies at Seattle, September 22. This game promises to be a thriller, because the Grizzlies would like nothing better than to knock over the team that is considered by many to be the best in the Pacific Coast conference.

The first home game will be with New Mexico university, September 29, at 8 p.m. at Dornblaser field. This will be the first official game in the Skyline 8 conference for the Grizzlies, and they will be anxious to make their debut a convincing one.

The next game will be with the Denver University Pioneers at Denver, October 6. The following Saturday will see Idaho University at Missoula. The Vandals are anxious to avenge the 28-27 defeat they suffered at Moscow last year, by virtue of the sharp passing attack of Kingsford and Bauer.

The Montana State college game has been moved to Gaton field in Bozeman for October 20. This will knock out the traditional Copper bowl game at Butte.

Then comes Utah State college at Logan, October 27, followed by a big game November 3, at Missoula, with the Cowboys of Wyoming. This is the team that waxed Washington and Lee in the Gator bowl.

November 10 it will be Colorado A&M Rams at Fort Collins and November 17 Washington State college at Pullman.

HS Sophs Get Credit In U Class

A class of 30 sophomores from Missoula County high school earned credit amounting to the equivalent of one subject for a semester by attending sessions every morning in the Forestry building with Charles Mattill, instructor in the School of Education, supervising the program.

The students took instruction in beginning typing from eight to nine under William Donnally. From nine to eleven the class participated in an integrated program around social sciences with conservation as the core, meeting in the Forestry building with Bill Walker in charge.

A valuable part of the program was instruction in a type of art that fits in with wild-life and natural scenes by Missoula County high school teacher Miss Dorothy Tupper.

Betty Berland's program of music included cowboy and hill-billy music and the songs of rural folk.

From 11 to 12 was devoted to recreation in the gymnasium under the supervision of Dick Reed, education major.

In preparation for this demonstration school Mr. Mattill secured over 500 pamphlets on topics of use to the students. Among the pamphlets were scores of different forms obtained from conservation departments of other states throughout the United States.

Commenting on the program, Mr. Mattill stressed the close cooperation of the Forest Service, the conservation groups, and the Forestry library. Mr. Mattill's comments also contained high praise for the "hand-picked cadet teachers who are carrying the ball instead of professional teachers."

The demonstration school was observed by several classes in the University and many teachers dropped in informally to get acquainted with various phases of the program.

Adams Picks All-Time Track Stars

MSU's head track coach, Harry Adams, recently named the Grizzly all-time, all-star track team. In picking his squad Adams has chosen the athletes who have established the best all-time mark in each event. Adams, an outstanding cinderman in his undergraduate days, has been coaching Montana track teams since 1921. During his 29 years' reign at the University he has coached every athlete who has won a berth on the all-time great squad. The iron man of the team is Jack Emigh, class of '39, who has placed first in three events. The 100, 200 and 440 yard dashes. Emigh is also on the record-holding mile relay team. Jack, after being discharged from the service in 1946, accepted the head track position on the Billings high school coaching staff and won Billings' first Interscholastic track title in 1948. Jack retired from coaching to enter private business in 1950.

Montana's most nationally heralded track member, Dick Doyle, holds down the discus title with a distance of 171' 5". Dick was named on the 1950 all-American track team. The youngest member, 19 years old, Bill Rife, won his first-place berth this year when he raced the mile in 4:16.5 at the national collegiate meet in Seattle June 16. Rife is a sophomore at the University. Of the 14 individual events, 4 places are held by athletes of the 1951 Grizzly squad. They are Joe Luckman, broad-jump; Jack Luckman, shot put; Mike Fleming, half mile; and Bill Rife, mile. Adams has also picked and included a second and third all-star team.

"The Gladiator" starring Joe E. Brown is the University Film Society's Friday feature, LeRoy Hinze, drama director said.

This movie will be shown in Simpkins Little Theater, Friday night at 7 and 9 o'clock. Admission is 50 cents including tax.

Fishing, Swimming Good at Flathead

Fishing has been just fair to middlin' with most of the big lunkers being taken in the hard-to-get-at lakes and hidden mountain streams.

Fly fishing has picked up in all the heavily fished streams, with the best luck being noted on gnats, bees, and brown or gray hackled streamers.

Many Missoula anglers have been having a time for themselves at Flathead lake fishing for silver salmon. These shiny little rascals put up quite a fight and are something to see as they come spearing up out of the depths of the crystal-clear water in the lake.

An added attraction noted on the lake last week end was the new water taxi at the Stancraft docks. We took an 8-mile trip in it and must say it is the smoothest ride we've ever had, especially at the about 30-knot speed.

Swimming was good at the beach on the lake just behind the golf course. There is a long pier, a diving platform and a fair diving board. Plenty of shade and grass in the grove fronting the beach.

Marines Set Release Plan

Parents and wives of enlisted Marine corps reserves in "release-priority one" who went on active duty before September 4 of last year can expect them home in August or the first part of September, Thirteenth Marine corps reserve district headquarters announced recently.

Priority one includes veterans of World War II and those who had at least a year of service between September 16, 1940 and June 24, 1948. Also in this category are those who had served three years of active duty before July 1 or who were 26 or over on that date.

Mitted to combat will not necessarily be home by the end of August, but they will be on their way

Release in September or October is expected for officers, other than second lieutenants, in priority one who began their active service before last July 28. Second lieutenants will serve a total of 21 months, including any enlisted time.

JOB OPENINGS

"We have more job openings than students at the placement bureau, Mrs. Kay Reardon, secretary said yesterday. "There are several full-time and odd jobs available to the students."

Any student interested in an odd or full-time job may contact Mrs. Reardon at the placement bureau, Craig 106.

Plays Seen At Simpkins Theater

Members of the MSU Music Camp presented two one-act plays in Simpkins Little theater last night. The plays were under the direction of Bo Brown and Maxine Taylor, students at the University attending the summer session.

"The plays went very well," LeRoy Hinze, head of the drama department said. "The spirit and cooperation of these high school students was outstanding and their productions were very good."

"The Constant Lover," was directed by Maxine Taylor, assisted by Anna Dixon. Miss Dixon will be a senior in the Fergus County high school this fall. Members of the cast were Carol Harn, Miles City; Tom Ellis, Ronan; and Anna Dixon, Lewistown.

The play was about a young man who is always in love but not with the same girl for any length of time. It was a flighty sort of love story.

"Aria Da Capo," the second production, was directed by Bo Brown, assisted by Virginia McBride, Butte. Miss McBride will be a senior in Butte high school this fall.

Included in the cast were Barbara Barthels, Miles City; Bob Bleakman, Missoula; Don Schesler, Laurel; Larry Nitz, Red Lodge; and John Thompson.

"Aria Da Capo" was a fantasy written by Edna St. Vincent Milley.

"We had a wonderful time putting these plays on and we gained a lot of experience," Virginia McBride said. "I learned a lot about the theater and intend to attend MSU in 1952."

"Putting these plays on was an experience," Anna Dixon said. "I think I was very fortunate in being able to participate in drama while attending the Music Camp."

Air Force Needs Women Graduates

The Air Force needs 2,800 experienced business and professional women, with college degrees, for appointment as Air Force Reserve officers. Successful civilian leadership is emphasized over prior military training.

Women from 24 to 32 are basically qualified if they have been accustomed to dealing with the public or have held supervisory or managerial positions. Further information is available at local Army and Air Force recruiting stations.
