WELCOME

We Montanans and our fellow citizens of the United States and other world countries may face serious social and economic problems; but in the springtime, when grass is freshly green and leaves are new on the trees, our spirits are high and our interest is keen for the out-of-doors and for physical competition. Unless one learns sportsmanship in high school, he can never get the most out of college days. Winning in these competitions seems the most important goal of the moment—to be adjudged a star of track or field and master of debate or stage. When competition is keen, only a few may be chosen. The important thing is to do one's best and win or lose with a smile. Montana State University welcomes you to its lovely campus.

GEO. FINLAY SIMMONS,
President.
