points, while her nearest competitor was the Aggies with 44 points, and the game Miners bravely fighting for their 16 units. The score does not show the closeness of the meet. It was a nip

The track was extra slow and rain threatened when the clerk called the first event. After running two heats of the high hurdles, Captain Reid of the Miners had the honor of making the first score of the meet. Jim Annin, of the M. A. C. team took the second, while McElvenny, Reid's team mate, obtained the third. So far the board read: Miners, 6; M. A. C., 3. In the 100-yard dash, Pool was slated to be the winner and brought forth a cheer from the M. A. C. aggregation when he took the coveted five points, while Winstanley and Dobson claimed second and third places, respectively, thus giving the 'Varsity four marks. In the half-mile, Cameron, the 'Varsity's dark horse, trounced in with the first, but was hard pressed by Donaldson of the Aggie team. Taylor, another Montana man, took third.

In one of the prettiest races of the whole contest, Bullerick came up to the University's expectations and amid their cheers, carried his block "M" across the line for first. With sheer grit and nerve, Wells came in for third place.

One of the weak places of the U. of M. team was the hurdles, thereby the Miners were able to earn first and third places in the low hurdles and Annin winning the second position.

Montana got two men entered in the finals of the 220-yard dash against the indomitable Pool. As was expected, Pool broke the tape in the race but he was forced to his limit by Dobson and Winstanley, receiving second and third, respectively.

The grandest race of the whole meet was the quarter-mile. Pool was touted to win it. 'Varsity had strong hopes on Cameron, who has previously won the 880-yard dash, and Fred Buck, capturing a place of lesser figure. At the start "Cam" was boxed up and practically shut out of the race. At a terrific pace the men tore around the speedway with Pool in the lead and Buck coming second and Cameron along toward the end. Just as the men began to make the turn Buck spurred to a position abreast of Pool and Cameron circling the men, fighting for third place, and assumed the third position. Down the straightaway, the grand stand in a veritable uproar, Fred S. Buck, a sophomore in college was running a neck and neck race with the famous Pool—the Pool, the hero of song and story—while Carl E. Cameron, his freshman team mate, was winning a well nigh impossible race. Pool and Buck tied for the first place and Cameron took the hard-earned third. No wonder the Montana rooters went wild for they had practically won the race.

In a walk-a-way race Bullerick, the athlete who won the Montana State Oratorical contest last Friday, won the two-mile as easy as he captured the similar place in the mile, and again O'Rourke repeated the gamy race that Wells had run in the former race.

Annin of the Aggies, Captain Ryan of Montana, and Brabrook of the M. A. C. team, took first, second and third in the order mentioned. The broad jump went to Buck of the 'Varsity, Brabrook of the Farmers and McCool of the Miners, being the first contest where each school won a position.

Through a grievous mistake, Annin was awarded the first place in the shot put; Maclay, second, and Ryan, third.

In the hammer throw, Captain Ryan broke the University record, heaving the hammer 119 feet and 10 3/4 inches.

In the pole vault, Hughes, another 'Varsity freshman, captured the coveted first place. In the discus, "Slim" Maclay whirled the discus for first place.

And in this manner the University of Montana rolled up their 65 points.

DECLAMATORY LAST NIGHT.

The first section of the interscholastic declamatory contest was held in University hall last evening before a large and enthusiastic crowd of high school visitors and local people. The contest was unusually interesting and all of the declamations were creditable and up to standard. The judges will not announce their decision until this evening at the final contest.

President Duniway of the university presided at the contest. Seven young ladies took part and the work of each one was a credit to the school which she represented. The music, which was furnished by the university orchestra and by Principal J. F. Thomas of the Missoula high school, added materially to the evening's entertainment.

The time-honored custom of giving school yells and creating general excitement before the contest by the different high school bodies was well lived up to last night and for half an hour before the speakers appeared in the hall yells and songs came thick and fast.

DOES A UNIVERSITY EDUCATION PAY?

Montana has had many red letter days. But none has been so significant or important, so full of promise and hope, so worthy to be commemorated as the day upon which she established her system of public schools. Unhindered by tradition or precedent, but not unkind of the lessons which history and experience teach, the founders of this commonwealth have built a state upon a system of public instruction which runs in an unbroken line from the primary grades of the elementary schools through the public high schools and technical colleges to the State University, the head of the school system of the state. This system of education and training they made an open way by means of which the poorest Montana boy or girl, might, beginning at the bottom, push on until he or she reaches, without waste or break, the University at the top.

In the elementary schools the child is put in possession of those cultural tools which will enable him to acquire all knowledge and truth possessed by the race. Onto his natural interests and instincts are guided the most useful habits of cultivated life. Every good impulse and tendency is fostered and nourished. The bad ones are supplanted by the good. The teacher plays the role of the wise gardener who knows how to cultivate his flowers and plants. She makes the conditions as favorable as possible for healthy development. She understands the laws underlying his mental and physical growth and does what she can to stimulate the natural unfolding of all his possibilities.

In the high school this broadening work of acquisition and development is continued. The studies are, for the most part, kept general to insure a firmer foundation for the special interests and capacities yet to be developed. All sides of his life are cultivated. His knowledge of humanity and the world are enlarged even while he is acquiring more efficient habits and methods of work.

From the high school, any boy or girl in Montana, may go without tuition to a professional college or to the University. If he goes to a technical school his education stops and training for a definite occupation or profession begins. If he goes to the University, he has the opportunity of acquiring all that is known in any department of learning, or such a part of it as he is capable of mastering. He may learn the languages in which the great literatures of the world have been written. He may learn what the most important institutions of society are, how governments, states, the church, the family, the various systems of education and thought came to be what they are. He has the opportunity of studying all that has been discovered about the vast realm of nature and nature's laws. He may also discover new truths for himself. For an American university is "a society of learned men, each a master in his field, each acquainted with what has been achieved in the past in his own special subject, each prepared to push forward a little further the present limits of knowledge. Each expecting and hoping to clear up some tangle or bog on the frontier of knowledge and to pierce with his own searchlight, if only by a hairbreadth, the mysterious gloom which surrounds the small area of ascertained truth." It is a place "where men think lofty thoughts, where they test for themselves that which seems to be true, where students find their life work, where they go up to the edge of things and look outward into the great unknown."

But the question that comes to every young man and woman over and over again is: Does going to high school and the University pay? Will it pay me? Many decide that it does not, that it will do them little good; that they will never be able to use the knowledge gained; that the courses of study are not practical enough, that it is a waste of time, when they might be making money or learning a trade. As a result they neglect the opportunity which the state places at their door because they fail to appreciate the value of a high school and university course.

How closely one's chances for success in life are related to one's school training is indicated by the following data compiled by Professor H. W. Quaintance from the returns of the last census and the second edition of "Who's Who in America," and reported in a former issue of the Wyoming School Journal.

Total number of persons, 21 years of age and over.....	40,782,007
No schooling.....	4,682,498
Common school training.....	32,862,591
High school training.....	2,165,357
College training.....	1,071,201
Total number having place in the second edition of "Who's Who" and whose school training was reported.....	7,852
No schooling.....	31
Common school training.....	808
High school training.....	1,245
College training.....	5,768

It will be noticed that, although the number of persons in each class having school training decreases with the higher classes, the number of those who have place in "Who's Who" increases with the higher classes.

Assuming that the chance of a person in any class continues constant, we may say that of the 4,682,498 persons having no school training only 31 may be expected to attain that degree of success which will entitle them to a place among the first 7,852—that is, to a place in "Who's Who." The chance for any one of these is, therefore, as 4,682,498 divided by 31, or as one chance in 151,048. Making a similar calculation for each of the other classes, we find the chance of a person of common school training to be as one in 40,671; of the person of high school training as one in 1,739; of the person of college training as one in 186.

Comparing these chances with each other, so as to show the relative chances of persons in these several classes and putting each result in the form of a proportion, we have the following:

Common school-no school—4-1.
High school-common school—23-1.
High school-no school—87-1.
College-high school—9-1.
College-common school—219-1.
College-no school—812-1.

In other words a university trained man or woman's chances for attaining the highest success in any department of work which he may decide to take up are nine times greater than that of the boy or girl who stops when he has finished his high school course; 219 times greater than those who drop out of school when they have finished the eighth grade; 812 times greater than the self-made man who has had no school training at all.

We must, therefore, conclude that a high school and university education pays. Leaving out of account the keen satisfaction which we experience when we make ourselves master of any portion of the world's science and thought, leaving out of consideration the joy and poise which comes from a knowledge of what the race has achieved, not to mention the refining influence which comes from the appreciation of the beautiful and good in nature and art, or the thrill of reverence which a scientific and philosophic interpretation of the universe brings, and deciding our question solely on the basis of worldly success we must conclude that a university education pays; that the state has placed at the door of every Montana boy and girl an opportunity which he can not afford to neglect.

TODAY'S PROGRAM.

10:30. Meeting of Montana High School Athletic association, assembly hall, for the transaction of business.
2 p. m. Montana field. First day of high school athletic events.
7:30 p. m. Singing on the steps, university, in charge of senior class.
8:30 p. m. Assembly hall, second declamatory contest.
10 p. m. University campus. War dance, university students.

The seventh annual interscholastic track meet opens on Montana field this afternoon with 109 men from 19 different high schools of the state taking part. At 2 o'clock the first race will start and from that time on until 5 o'clock Friday afternoon the battle royal will be waged. Never have the auspices been so favorable, never has there been such a spirit, never has there been fairer weather and, more than that, never before have there been street cars to transport the crowds.

The tracks and fields are in the finest condition imaginable. The rain of the past week was just enough to make the newly rolled and cinder covered track fast and if there are not a lot of new records broken today and tomorrow it will not be the fault of the university people, who have had charge of the preparations for the meet.

All Teams Here.

Every team was in Missoula last night. Crum and his fast bunch of Helena athletes and the Butte delegation, headed by Hopkins, the fast little sprinter, arrived at noon yesterday and spent the evening in warming up on the track. The other teams are largely unknown quantities, but those who have been watching them practice on the field since their arrival claim that there are some record-breakers among them and that the meet will be a whirlwind.

Among yesterday's arrivals was Bert Conrad, formerly of the Missoula high school and beyond all doubt the best scholastic sprinter in the state. He arrived with the Great Falls high school crowd and will run in the meet. He should be able to gather in both of the short sprints and possibly the quarter mile and should give Crum a hard run for the individual championship.

At 10:30 o'clock this morning the semi-annual meeting of the interscholastic association will be held in the University hall. The championships in football and basket ball will be awarded at this meeting and the business preparatory to the big meet will be disposed of.

At 7:30 in the evening the students of the university will sing on the steps of the University hall. The seniors will appear in their caps and gowns and will have charge of the singing. This is the last official appearance of the senior class as members of the student body, and henceforth they will be considered as graduates. Following this the second declamatory contest will be held in University hall.

War Dance.

After the contest the first annual war dance of the students of the University of Montana will be held on the campus. This is one of the biggest events of the meet and should prove extremely interesting. It marks the official graduation of the freshmen into the sophomore class. The upper classmen will be dressed as Indian braves and will formally scalp the freshmen, who are to appear in pajamas.

Athletic Program.

The program of athletic events for this afternoon is as follows:

Band.
Pole vault and shot put, followed by broad jump and discus throw. The shot put, broad jump and discus throw will be decided on Thursday. In the pole vault the six best will qualify for the finals on Friday.

M. S. BULLERDICK WINS THE STATE ORATORICAL

Miss Ida Bierman of the Montana Wesleyan Gets Second Place—Bullerdick Will Represent Montana In Interstate Contest at Eugene, Oregon.

"Who Howls Tonight? Who Howls Tonight? Montana!" rang from every part of the campus Friday night after M. S. Bullerdick of the University won the state oratorical contest for the University. The wild cry of the rooters was spent on a good cause, for the contest was a splendid one and the victory was well won.

The contest was the 11th contest of the State Oratorical Association, and was one of the most interesting ever held. The orations were all well delivered, but to the audience it was easy to see that the Montana orator had a slight advantage. Mr. Bullerdick's delivery was remarkably good and his oration was the most typical of all delivered during the evening. It was a type of an oration which showed the influence more than any other of a university training. The title, "The Challenge of the Age" truly expresses the general tone of the oration.

A little more than a month ago Mr. Bullerdick won second place in the annual Buckley contest. He then dropped his work and did nothing more with his manuscript until six days before the contest, when he was informed that Mr. Leech, the winner of first place, had withdrawn and that he would be expected to represent the University. In that short space of time he retouched his speech, polished up his delivery and prepared himself so well that here was no doubt in the minds of all that he was entitled to first place. His victory was well deserved and shows what constant, consistent work will do in spite of the worst omens. Too much praise cannot be accorded Mr. Bullerdick for his victory.

Miss Ida Bierman of Wesleyan University won second place in a very creditable manner. Her delivery was clear and forceful and she made a good impression on the audience. Her oration, "The Philosophy of Music and Its Influence on the World," was of a peculiar nature and was so different from the others that it was hard to make a proper comparison. Her adept method of handling her subject won the audience and created a deep impression on them.

The oration which made the greatest appeal to the audience outside of that of the Montana man was that of Joseph W. Adams of the State Normal College. "The European Immigration Problem From an Americanized Foreigner's Point of View," appealed to the audience with a more than usual interest. Mr. Adams—as his subject implies—is a naturalized citizen, and the deep earnestness with which he took up his subject won the audience.

The representative of the State Agricultural College, Kyle Jones, had a well written oration but fell down in delivery enough to exclude him from the race. His subject, "The Negro Problem," was too technical to make a good impression on the judges.

The program was as follows: Selection, "Robin Hood"—University Orchestra. President's Address—Arthur W. O'Rourke. Vocal Solo, "Sunset"—Mrs. Dwight S. Bayley.

"The European Immigration Problem From an Americanized Foreigner's Point of View"—J. W. Adams, Montana State Normal College.

"The Negro Problem"—Kyle Jones, Montana State Agricultural College.

"The Philosophy of Music and Its Influence on the World"—Miss Ida Bierman, Montana Wesleyan University.

"The Challenge of the Age"—M. S. Bullerdick, University of Montana. Selection, "The Serenade"—University Orchestra.

Arthur W. O'Rourke, president of the association presided and made the president's address.

The judges were as follows:

J. Bruce Kramer of Butte, Rev. H. A. Carnahan of Anaconda, R. G. Young of Butte, Dr. Fancher of Deer Lodge, and G. T. Bramble of Phillipsburg.

As was announced at the contest Mr. Bullerdick will receive his M in oratory and will also represent the University at the contest to be held between the Universities of Washington-Oregon-Montana, on May 27.

Following the announcement of the decision, a reception was tendered the visitors at the University Gymnasium.

CHARLES DIMMICK RETURNS.

Charles Dimmick, a graduate of the state university, arrived home last night and will remain indefinitely. For the last three years Mr. Dimmick has been in the employ of the General Electric company at Schenectady, N. Y., and feels well satisfied with the work and experience he has gained while there. Mr. Dimmick returns to Missoula satisfied that opportunities are greater for success here than they are in the east.

DAN M'GREGOR HOME.

Dan McGregor, who has been at Taft, Mont., estimating timber for the forestry office, came home yesterday and will remain during the rest of the week. Mr. McGregor will be a spectator at the athletic contests at the university Thursday and Friday.

Roy McPhail, '06, Track Captain in 1905 and 1906, and the holder of the University record in the pole vault was here to size up the 'Varsity team. Whenever there is a track meet on the boards, "Mac" can be depended on to be present.

Charles R. Draper is the representative of the Weekly Exponent, the college weekly of the Agricultural College. He is on the field taking all the "dope" for the paper. Mr. Draper at present is the managing editor of the Exponent and has been elected editor for the ensuing year.

Miss Ruth Paxon, the traveling Y. W. C. A. secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement was a guest at Woman's Hall for a few days this week. Miss Paxon is on her way to the convention which is to be held at the Breakers, Oregon.

William Wallenstein is back on the campus this week. It has been four years since "Bill" has been in our midst. He reports that since last he was here the 'Varsity has grown to a livelier, bigger and better college.

Miss Florence Catlin is spending the week with the members of the Kappa Alpha Theta fraternity. Miss Catlin who has been ill at her home for some time, has quite recovered her health and will return to college next year.

Mrs. E. P. Matthewson and Grace Matthewson and Lucinda Stephens of Anaconda, are the guests of Miss Alice Matthewson during the track week.

Mrs. W. H. Duke and daughter, Letta, are track guests at Woman's Hall. Miss Duke is representing the Chinoook High School in the declamatory contest.

Charles S. Dimmick, '07, arrived at the 'Varsity just in time to join the rooting squad.

Mrs. Fred Suhr of Butte, is visiting her daughter, Hazel Lyman at Woman's Hall.
