MONTANA STATE UNIVERSITY – MAY 22-23, 1964 – MISSOULA, MONTANA

1964 Program Dedicated To ... RAY T. ROCENE

This official program of the 58th annual Interscholastic Track and Field Meet is respectfully dedicated to Ray T. Rocene, sports editor emeritus and columnist for The Daily Missoulian newspaper.

Your "Cinderama" hosts — Montana State University and the Montana High School Association—are proud to pay this tribute to Mr. Rocene, the venerable and popular Dean of Montana Sportswriters.

It is fitting and appropriate to bestow the honor on Ray T. Rocene, for he has "covered" the Montana Interscholastic Trackmeet more than any other writer. The veteran scribe has followed the fortunes of the state's high school athletes since he broke in as a reporter back in 1916. Rocene had come west to Missoula in 1910 from Little Falls, Minn.

Author of the column, "Sports Jabs," Rocene's facile pen has reported exciting sports action on national, state and local scenes. He was there at ringside for the Dempsey-Gibbons championship fight in 1923 at Shelby, and again his familiar hat and cigar profile was seen at the Fullmer-Giardello title bout in 1960 at Bozeman.

In reporting athletic competition, Rocene has established a "modest-and-honest" decorum, always fair to coaches, teams and individuals. Rocene's writings always have been accurate and his memory for recalling events and statistics is fantastic.

Ray Rocene has established himself as a sort of patron saint for the Youth of Montana, a man with vast knowledge of sports and their complexities, and one whose enthusiasm never wanes.

Today's honor is another on the long list for this quiet, amiable and dedicated man. The annual Sportsman-of-the-Year Award is presented in his honor, he has been the University's Homecoming parade marshall and is a member of national football and basketball writers groups.

But perhaps more than all—Ray Rocene symbolizes Montana.

It's Been 60 Years ...

It's been 59 years since that first 1904 Interscholastic Meet at Montana State University when 19 schools and 77 track and field contestants sought honors on the field behind Main Hall.

No Dornblaser Field existed then. The bleachers were attached to the back of what is now the TV and Photo Studio Building a few yards north of Dornblaser.

Six or seven hundred spectators crowded into the stands in 1904 and watched those 77 high school athletes run, jump, and throw. The remainder stood around the outside of the track or perched themselves on the side of Mount Sentinel.

Few houses were in the University district. A board walk ran from the south end of the Higgins Street Bridge directly to the campus. Main Hall dominated the University scene as it does today. Several other buildings surrounded Main Hall and the structures stood out conspicuously on the bare prairie with few trees or houses nearby.

All Missoula business establishments were closed for the final day of Interscholastic, and the entire town turned out to observe the event.

Small Schools Do Well

Since there were only 19 Montana high schools entered in Interscholastic, no competitive classes had been organized. The boys from a town of 200 competed against those from a much larger community. One lad named Wiles from Virginia City, which was then credited with fewer than 30 souls, entered the mile and two-mile races and won them both. Today, as then, many of the smaller schools still have the most outstanding athletes.

The student University newspaper, the Kaimin, reported the events dutifully in the popular journalistic style of yesteryear. More concerned with the doings of several literary societies than news and sports, it did report a tale of how one group of contestants was treated to an automobile ride around the Oval. Another group received a pleasant jaunt four or five miles into the wilds of Montana to Fort Missoula.

Interesting Contestants

Those early contestants were an interesting lot. Most track and field competitors had never seen or worn spiked shoes. Some took their mother's shears to an old pair of pants and made knee-length shorts. Shirts were colorful and ranged from dad's old undershirt to a turtle-neck sweater that may or may not have come off at race time. A versatile lot, pompadours were popular with athletes who used the extra shock of hair as a football helmet in the fall.

The 1904 Interscholastic had three events that have not been included in Interscholastic for some years: the hammer throw, 50-yard dash, and two-mile run.

The hammer throw was eliminated in 1915 and replaced with the javelin in 1916 because the sturdy young lads who heaved the lead ball on the end of the steel chain often had poor aim. Frequently it would head toward groups of spectators or participants, far from its intended target.

The two-mile race was dropped in 1907 because the racers often ended the contest in total exhaustion. They literally ran their hearts out and endangered their health.

The 50-yard dash was discontinued in 1928. The contestants often finished the race in a dead heat with many claiming victory, perhaps justly.

Uncooperative Weather

Uncooperative Montana weather then, as now, was always a problem in the first Interscholastics. Rain, snow, hail, thunder storms, mud, cold and sleet have all given Interscholastic officials plenty to worry about over the years. The pleasure of the weatherman, however, has little to do with the excitement or success of the meet, and records are as likely to be broken in unfavorable weather as on balmy days.

Every year we hear the remark: "Oh sure, it will rain this week; it's Interscholastic week." But people have a tendency to remember the years it did and forget the Interscholastics that were sunny.

Not All Serious

Not all was serious in those early Interscholastics. Grandparents and the fathers and mothers of today's contestants participated in many joyous activities that bring back pleasant memories.

A news story in the May 11, 1922 Daily Missoulian shows that there were plenty of night activities at bygone Interscholastics:

"Two large delegations of high schools students spent the night on Mount Jumbo, guarding the letters, 'M. H. S.,' which have been placed there by Missoula High School students. One delegation went on shift at 7 o'clock and remained until 2 . . . the second guard was posted . . . until 8. . ."

Those first Interscholastics are a far cry from the Interscholastic you will see this weekend. However, the spirit is stronger than ever. The athletes may or may not be better, but the faster times and countless broken records since 1904 indicate that they are.

Many Events Added

Since those first meets, many events have also been added to the Interscholastic. Today, more than half of the participants come for events beside track and field: speech, journalism, drama, golf and tennis.

In 1914 University President E. B. Craighead wrote in the Interscholastic program that the Montana Interscholastic was the "third largest event in the United States." The next year, in 1915, it was labeled the second largest, and largest West of the Mississippi.

We can't make such extravagant claims today. But, nevertheless, the annual Montana State University Interscholastic is heralded throughout the West and is looked forward to with expectation.

Entertainment On The . . . . .

You will probably have little time this weekend for entertainment and relaxation. But if you do have a spare moment or two, you may wish to take advantage of MSU's recreation facilities and the various activities planned.

UNIVERSITY MUSEUM

On Friday and Saturday mornings from 9-12 a.m. the University Museum on the third floor of the Fines Arts Building will be open. If you're a history fan, make a special point to see this collection of western Americana.

BOWLING, GOLF AND SWIMMING

We also want to remind you that the University bowling lanes and golf course are open. The bowling lanes, located in the basement of the Women's Center, will be open from 4-12 p.m. on Friday, 1-12 p.m. on Saturday. The golf course, about a mile south of campus, is open from sunup until sundown.

The University swimming pool will be open to the public Saturday night from 7:30-10:00. The pool is located next to the Field House.

DANCES

Dances are slated for Friday and Saturday nights at the University Lodge. Bear Paws, a men's student service organization, will sponsor Friday night's. Air Force ROTC Department will give Saturday night's. Both will be from 9-12.

INQUIRE AT REGISTRATION

To obtain a full schedule of what is being planned for you during the 1964 Interscholastic, inquire at the registration table.

MISSOULA AND MSU

Missoula is commonly known as the "Garden City" of Montana, mainly because of its easy availability to excellent Western Montana scenery, fishing, hunting and just plain relaxation.

Missoula is the cross roads between the Mission and Bitterroot valleys and mountains. These two mountain chains have been described by world travelers as the most beautiful in the United States.

RECREATION

Fishing is tops, some managing to catch their limits in a short time. Many prize big game animals are sought. Skiing has been recently emphasized with the nearby Snow Bowl north of Missoula offering wintertime fun on the slopes.

Flathead lake isn't far, as well as a myriad of mountain lakes for fishing and boating. Glacier Park is easily visited on a weekend.

We at Montana State University and Missoula are proud to be located in the middle of this exciting panorama. We hope you come back often to visit, if we may be permitted to brag, the finest school of higher learning in Montana in the finest community in Montana.

Class AA high point winners in 1963 pictured on each side of Coach Lou Rocheleau are Missoula's Ken Jones and Ted Brown. Each scored 13½ points. Jones won both hurdles, establishing a new Interscholastic record in the highs with a time of 14.7. Brown was a double winner in the sprints. Each ran on the winning 880-yard relay team. Brown is back this year with hopes of leading the Spartans to their first state title since 1958.

Class A schools return to the 1964 Interscholastic after one year's absence. Last year, they broke away from the Interscholastic at Missoula for the first time and staged the state meet in Billings.

The competition in class A this season promises to be some of the most closely contested ever. Defending champion Glasgow has a strong team returning including double winners Roy Robinson and Roy Taylor. However, with the expansion of Class A to 22 schools from the 12 that competed last year, the favored Scotties won't win as easily this time around.

With old powers—Libby, Wolf Point, Whitefish, Dillon, Deer Lodge, Hamilton and Columbia Falls all moving up to Class A ranks, the class B race this year may be more wide open than ever. Polson and Malta look like the strongest before the meet but anything can happen in the end.

Polson's Ron Gipe, last year's high point man in Class B with 16½ points, returns to the Interscholastic again in 1964. Gipe a big reason Polson is a co-favorite to capture this division's honors.

DAN MARSH, Sheridan
High Point Man, 1963,
22 Points,
Placed in 5 Events

Class C is always the toughest to predict because so many schools compete. Last year, Sheridan with Dan Marsh (pictured above) scoring 22 of its 23 points, won the team trophy. Marsh is gone this year, but any school with an individual similar to him probably will be the 1964 Class C champion.

Go to the U!!.....

There are many reasons for the graduate of any Montana high school to consider attending his own University for advanced education. This is not just a case of tooting our own horn—we have some important advantages here that should make our school an obvious choice.

One of the important keys to the value of any university or college as a learning center is the ratio of teachers with advanced degrees to total teaching staff. Here, the percentage of Ph.D. degrees to other degrees is excellent. You will find that, proportionally, more classes are taught by scholars than at many another institution of note.

What about the equipment?

ACCOMMODATIONS

First rate for our size. Oh, there are some schools down the coast that have bigger atom smashers; some places have an 18-hole golf course compared to our nine-hole links; some places have more classrooms, or test tubes, or microscopes or books in the library. The point is, we have enough of all those things to accommodate Montana students who come our way.

Some places have a bigger campus, but that entails more elbows to run into; more jamming in the classrooms; a longer sprint to get from one class to another; a king-sized automobile problem and better opportunity for being a nonentity in a vast mass of human beings.

SCENERY

We take a back seat to nobody when it comes to scenery and the delights of the outdoors. This is something we shouldn't have to sell to any Montanan—it's interesting to note that some of the strongest salesmen for our glories are students who come to us from other states.

There are other good reasons for coming to school here. Headliners in the lively arts bring music, drama and stimulating talk to the campus during the year. Students, too, are given wide scope to discover and use their own creative talents outside the classroom.

FINE ARTS SCHOOL

The School of Fine Arts is a center for cultural activity that the whole campus community can share. In addition to presenting visiting artists, the school gives students an opportunity to acquire the poise and polish of seasoned performers. The Music Department draws on the entire student body for talent for various public productions. The Department of Drama also uses students from other departments in its presentations.

The presence of many students from foreign lands gives MSU students a global outlook and an appreciation of other cultures. Cosmopolitan Club, a meeting ground for American and foreign students, sponsors illustrated lectures about other countries, gives parties featuring international cuisine and undertakes other projects to promote worldwide understanding.

VISITING LECTURERS

Another link with the great world beyond Montana is the University's visiting lecturers series, which brings the movers and shakers of contemporary events to the campus to talk on topics ranging from anthropology to Zen-Buddhism.

Add to this a lively program of intramural sports and other extracurricular activities and you have all the ingredients for a broad, liberal education.

Think you'd like to join us? The University catalog will answer many of your questions about the University. You can obtain one by writing to the Registrar at MSU.
