1 REPORT NO. VII - REVENUE AND FINANCE
2 COMMENTS ON STYLE, FORM, AND GRAMMAR
3

4 Section 2. A much more descriptive title was substituted
5 for one which was misleading.

6 Section 3. Rewriting the sentence avoids the error of 7 asserting that "property...shall be...equalized."

8 Section 4. Rewriting serves brevity and clarity and creates 9 consistency with the principle of state assessment established in 10 Section 3.

11 Section 5. Reorganization achieves clarity without changing
12 substance. (As a matter of substance, it should be noted that
13 the state has no power to tax property of the United States, absent
14 its permission.)

15 Section 6. A new title was substituted for one which 16 suffered the twin deficiencies of smacking of the vernacular and 17 misleading. Reorganization achieves clarity without changing
18 substance.

19 Section 7. Rewriting makes plain that people -- not
20 things -- have grievances.

21 Sections 8 and 9. Changes serve brevity and clarity without 22 altering substance.

23 Sections 10, 11, 12, 13. Consultation with the substantive
24 committee revealed that the phrase "subdivisions and districts
25 of the state" did not express that committee's intention. The 26 definition of "local government units" proposed in section 1
27 of report No. XI from the LOCAL GOVERNMENT COMMITTEE is not
28 adequate. Research showed that the words "local", "governmental",
29 and "entity" have been legally applied and construed. Accordingly,
30 the Committee on Style adopted, as expressive of the intention of

1 the substantive committee, the phrase "counties, cities, towns,
2 and all other local governmental entities." That phrase
3 (modified to suit the context) is substituted in each of these 4 sections for the phrase "subdivisions and districts of the 5 state."
