COURSE DESCRIPTION: Includes development of accurate and rapid transcription from taped materials using computers as input devices. Students make formatting and printing decisions relative to various types of business correspondence. Accuracy, spelling, grammar, punctuation, and understanding of basic business writing are emphasized.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OUTCOMES: Upon completion of this course, student will be able to:

1. Demonstrate appropriate operation and use of transcribers.
2. Coordinate listening with keyboarding to maintain an even flow of information.
4. Proofread for correct spelling, word usage, and format using appropriate office resources.
5. Apply proper punctuation using appropriate resources on business writing.
6. Compose grammatically correct, properly punctuated letters and memos given basic information about the content.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE ASSESSMENT METHODS AND GRADING PROCEDURES:

✓ All projects submitted for grading should be fastened into transcription folder. Unfastened projects may be left in folder and will not be graded until completed.

✓ To make this course as realistic as possible, all production work must be corrected as it would be in an office. Points and letter grade for each project will be recorded when corrected. When all editing is complete and faculty has approved changes/corrections, points will be circled to indicate proper completion. Any uncircled points at semester end will be factored into grade average as zero. No editing/corrections will be required for exams.

✓ Points earned for transcription assignments and exams will be recorded on grade sheet. Final grade percentages will be determined by points earned divided by points possible.

✓ Transcription assignments (letters, memos, and other projects) account for 30 percent of final grade. Lessons contain documents worth 20 points each.

✓ Language arts/proofreading textbook assignments should be completed for each lesson to prepare students for exams.

✓ Deadlines for each of the four units of production work and accompanying exams are set out below.

✓ Five points per day will be deducted from late assignments or exams.

✓ To ensure quality transcription with a corresponding high grade, students should proofread and ask questions before submitting work for correction.

✓ Students work at their own pace to complete all production work and exams by the completion deadlines. No final will be given.
