LEGAL APTITUDE TEST SLATED AT MSU

The Iowa Legal Aptitude Test will be given at Montana State University, Missoula, on May 3, according to Dr. Ray V. Phillips, director of the MSU Counseling Center. The test is for students with at least two years of college who want to find out if they are suited to the study of law.

Admission to the test will be limited to the first 50 applicants, Dr. Phillips said. Persons who want to take the test must apply to Dr. Phillips at the University before April 21. There is no fee for taking the test, he said.

MSU STUDENTS VISIT DRUG COMPANIES

Thirty Montana State University pharmacy students, accompanied by Prof. John F. Suchy, are spending this week visiting the plants of the Eli Lilly Co. in Indianapolis, Ind., and the Abbott Laboratories in North Chicago, Ill. Every year juniors and seniors in the School of Pharmacy visit pharmaceutical plants during spring vacation to gain firsthand knowledge of the operations of drug manufacturers.
