Course description:

This course will introduce you to the methods of philosophy through a tour of lively topics that I hope you will find relevant and engaging. These topics will likely include food, bullshit on the internet, democracy, sex, pornography, horror movies, and the meaning of life.

Because remote teaching is a new form of pedagogy to me, I'm going to try to keep things flexible and be ready to make adjustments to the course if something isn't working. Please do be in touch with feedback: What's helping you learn? What's confusing you or otherwise interfering with your engagement with the course? What might help?

Assignments and grading

20% participation: attend class meetings (you can miss three no questions asked), participate in chat and breakout discussions.

50% short writing assignments: There are 8 assignments. You must complete 5 of them. You can do all 8 for extra credit, which can compensate for a lower grade in participation or the paper according to our discretion.

30% final essay.

Academic misconduct:

Do not plagiarize. We will almost certainly catch you if you do, and in any case you are only cheating yourself. Remote teaching already presents special challenges. We're going to do our best to overcome these challenges and give you a solid course, but the course won't benefit you if you don't do the work yourself.

CUTTING AND PASTING FROM UNCREDITED SOURCES THAT YOU FOUND ON THE INTERNET IS PLAGIARISM, EVEN IF YOU CHANGE THE WORDING. ALWAYS CITE ANY SOURCES THAT WERE NOT ASSIGNED IN CLASS.

You are strictly held to the University of Montana Student Conduct Code .

Special needs:

Students with disabilities will receive reasonable modifications in this course. Your responsibilities are to request them from me with sufficient advance notice, and to be prepared to provide verification of disability and its impact from Disability Services. Please email or speak with me after class or during my office hours to discuss the details. For more information, visit the Disability Services for Students website.

- 9/1 Strohl, "On Culinary Authenticity"
- 9/3 Shen-yi Liao, "Bittersweet Foods."

Write a 1-2 page explanation of how your example fits the account of bullshit or echo chambers from the readings. Breakout groups for show and tell and discussion. Each breakout group pick your favorites and email them to me. I will compile them and email to the class.
