UM STUDENT GROUP HONORS HELENA RESIDENTS

MISSOULA --

Two University of Montana seniors who hail from Helena have been honored by the UM Advocates as Advocate of the Year and advocate coordinator.

Emily Hazelton, a senior majoring in psychology, has been named UM Advocate of the Year for 1989-90. Hazelton chairs the Advocates' special events committee and ranked first in participation among the student organization's 75 members. A plaque bearing her name and portrait is displayed in the UM Alumni Center. A 1986 graduate of Helena High School, she is the daughter of Janet Sansoucie of Helena.

Kelly Elder, a senior majoring in economics and secondary education, has been selected for a two-year term as advocate coordinator. His responsibilities include organizing and directing the group's projects. He is the son of Ken and Kathie Elder of Helena and is a 1986 graduate of Capital High School.

The student group assists the university with orientations, registration, recruiting and phonathons. Advocates also serve as campus hosts for Homecoming, alumni reunions and UM Foundation events.
