Jim Brown responded to Crocker's comments about the CIA recruitment seminar.

Amy Jo Fisher encouraged Senators to review the coalition group regarding their partisanship.

Melina Pastos stated that comments being made sound like censorship and an attempt to quell opinions that aren't those of the majority. She indicated it is up to Senate to prove coalition involvement in the CIA incident.

Russ Brown said he feels there is no proof of CIA immoral behavior and that individual rights were abridged by other individuals at the CIA recruitment meeting. He feels if money is given for a speaker on a controversial issue, then money should be given to present alternate view.

Stephan Langdon stated that he feels the Student Coalition supports an agenda of discontent with the government and is a social movement. He indicated that the CIA has been banned on several campuses and that maybe this should be discussed. He supports ASUM giving money to bring in speakers.

Shauna Ryan feels that rights have been abridged with the attack on individuals demonstrating against the CIA on campus.

Barry Stentiford feels that individuals have a right to peaceful assembly and that the University should welcome differing views.
