Dear editors, news directors and reporters:

Japanese Consul General Masaki Saito, Japanese economist Yukio Noguchi and former Montana Gov. Ted Schwinden will visit The University of Montana Monday, Sept. 12, for a 1 p.m. symposium on the relationship between the economies of Japan and the United States. All three will gather in the University Center's Mount Sentinel Room at 12:40 p.m., providing an interview opportunity before the symposium begins.

Also on Monday, a Japanese mini-consulate will be established in the University Center with business and travel brochures, displays and videos. Consulate representatives will be on hand to explain their services to local citizens. For more information, call the Mansfield Center, 243-2988.

I hope you or someone from your office will be able to attend the symposium and interview opportunity.

Sincerely,
