MISSOULA---Montana trainer Naseby Rhinehart Sr. is one of 71 men nominated for the Silver Anniversary football team selected annually by Sports Illustrated magazine. The team honors men who have distinguished themselves in public life in the 25 years since they played collegiate football.

"I can think of no finer candidate for this honor," was the comment of MSU Athletic Director George Dahlberg. "Naseby is one of the finest gentlemen I've associated with, and his achievements are so noteworthy that I'm sure he will be a strong candidate for the Silver Anniversary team."

A national board of judges will announce the 25 team members sometime in December.

The Grizzly trainer is a member of the Montana University Football Hall of Fame, and also was a strong basketball and track performer for Montana in the early 30's. He is one of 15 men in the history of the University to win nine varsity letters during his career.

Shortly after graduating from MSU in 1935, Rhinehart took over the training job at the University. The personable Grizzly tape-and-injury man has since built up one of the finest training facilities in the west. In the opinion of fellow trainers throughout the Rocky Mountain area, his excellence as a trainer is second to none.

Rhinehart also has been a personal friend of hundreds of MSU athletes and students in his 25 years at MSU. One example of the high regard others hold for him was a "Naseby Rhinehart Night" put on at a basketball game in 1956. Some 300 former athletes and students honored him by contributing to a fund for purchase of additional training equipment and gifts for the Montana trainer.
