UM STUDENT TAKES TOP REGIONAL FOOD SERVICE HONOR

MISSOULA --

A University of Montana—Missoula student, lauded by campus food service supervisors for his outstanding work performance, has been named Student Employee of the Year in regional food service competition.

Doug Eisenman, a sophomore in health and human performance from Shelby, was chosen for the Region VIII honor by the National Association of College and University Food Services and NutriNet Corp. Region VIII is comprised of colleges and universities in Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Eisenman, who worked for UM Dining Services’ Cascade Country Store during the academic year, will compete with students from eight other regions for the national Student Employee of the Year title. The winner will receive a trip to the NACUFS annual conference in Albuquerque, N.M., in July and a $1,000 scholarship.

"Doug has demonstrated the attitude and desire to succeed in both his job and his education," said Ravi DeSilva, manager of the Cascade Country Store. "He consistently provides leadership and a positive outlook to those around him."
