

4-15-2017

We Never Saw The Sky Fall

Megan Jessop

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/oval>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation

Jessop, Megan (2017) "We Never Saw The Sky Fall," The Oval: Vol. 10 : Iss. 1 , Article 12.

Available at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/oval/vol10/iss1/12>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Oval by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.

WE NEVER SAW THE SKY FALL

MEGAN JESSOP

We started in constellations.
It rained so thick that night,
we could hardly see the stars.
We felt them instead.
Falling on clay skin leaving traces of cold puddling at our feet.
Captivating my own quiet since.

You never were beautiful.
I fell in love with every imperfection.
I wasn't blind. Rather too aware.
Everything anyone could not see.
You kept them hidden well. I loved you for all things, in spite of too.

There is a box I carried with me,
containing songs, photographs and conversations.
I placed it for a time upon my blazon sleeve, before dropping it knowingly, into embers.
All burned finally,
ashes—a sacred form
of letting go.