MISSOULA---Montana University gridders will have 10 games on the schedule in the fall of 1960, including resumption of football relations with the University of Utah, Athletic Director George Dahlberg and football coach Ray Jenkins have announced.

The Grizzlies will meet Utah Nov. 12 in Salt Lake City, with the Utes scheduled to play in Missoula in 1961. The teams did not meet in 1959.

Montana's Oct. 1 game against the University of Idaho has been designated as the Homecoming weekend at MSU, according to George Caras, president of the Missoula chapter of the University Alumni Association.

The complete schedule:

North Dakota University at Grand Forks, Sept. 10; Wyoming University at Billings, Sept. 17; Utah State University at Missoula, Sept. 24; Idaho University at Missoula, Oct. 1; Denver University at Denver, Oct. 15; Brigham Young University at Missoula, Oct. 22; Colorado State University at Fort Collins, Oct. 29; Montana State College at Missoula, Nov. 5; Utah University at Salt Lake City, Nov. 12; and New Mexico University at Albuquerque, Nov. 19.

MISSOULA---Montana University football coaches Ray Jenkins and Hugh Davidson returned Sunday (Jan. 10) from the National Coaches' Convention in New York City, a three-day annual meeting that was attended by virtually every major college coach in the nation. Both reported considerable interest among coaches in a resumption of liberalized substitution rules. Whether or not two-platoon football returns to the college scene will be determined by vote of the NCAA Football Rules Committee later this month, they reported.
