EXPECTATIONS

Attendance

Orchestra members are expected to attend all rehearsals. If you must miss a rehearsal, arrive late, or leave early, you must notify Dr. Millán and your section leader as early as possible.

Active Participation in Rehearsals

Orchestra members are expected to be active participants in the constant improvement of the ensemble. You are expected to:

- Bring a pencil to every rehearsal.
- Use the pencil every rehearsal to write in the conductor's comments and mark sections you need to practice on your own.
- Fix your own mistakes. Do not wait for the conductor to tell you which sections need work. Mark sections you need to practice on your own. When the conductor is working with another section of the orchestra, silently practice fingerings, rhythms, bowings... anything that can be fixed without disturbing the other musicians.
- Always play musically.

Practice

- Be ready for every rehearsal by checking the weekly schedule and practicing those works to be rehearsed.
- In addition to practicing for upcoming rehearsals, you must also practice sections of pieces worked on in the previous rehearsal to reinforce the technical and musical aspects addressed in the rehearsal.
- Immediately begin working on the most difficult sections.
- Play your orchestra music for your studio teacher early in the semester.
- Practice slowly and accurately. Your goal should be consistency. "Don't practice until you get something right, practice until you can't get it wrong."
- Get together with your colleagues in mini-sectionals outside of scheduled rehearsals.
- Listen to recordings of the works with your part or the score. Recordings of the works can be found on YouTube, Spotify, and the Naxos Database (available through Mansfield Library.)

Collegiality

Orchestra members should support each other both in and out of rehearsal.
