Freeing the Apes in the New Savannah

FREEING THE APES IN THE NEW SAVANNAH

Goodbye swinging tire. Goodbye shelf of many dreams.
So long muraled forest, urine straw, lettuce heads.
There goes your little family: father, mother,
baby so often flung through your walls
like a pipe-cleaner toy.

A truck backs into the new savannah.
Guards open the doors, head for the hills.
Slowly the apes step down:

They stand together in a moonless night.
A strange grass pokes through their toes.
Here comes a little wind. Here comes the smell of buffaloes, zebras, goats, llamas, Skippers, McDonalds, the Guadalajara.
A plane slits the sky. Rain pelts their backs.
Their flat feet are sinking in mud –
they’re up to their knees adapting:
bone still, slope skulled, shivering,
shivering, rolling their pearly eyes.
