MISSOULA---Montana University golf and tennis teams, still looking for their initial victory this spring, meet visiting golfers and netters from the University of Utah this Friday in Missoula. Indications are that both MSU squads will lose their fourth straight Skyline match of the season.

The golfers under veteran mentor Eddie Chinske probably have the best chance of upending the visitors. Last weekend the Grizzlies showed some improvement in losing a close $10\frac{1}{2}$ - $7\frac{1}{2}$ match to Brigham Young University. Medalist Ted Hodges fired a 74 to lead the Silvertips, while Ray Maidment, Roger Norgaard and freshman Jim Bryngelson showed some flashes of good form. Golf action this Friday opens at 1 p.m. on the MSU course.

Aside from a sparkling performance from sophomore ace Mike Hogarty, net coach John Love had little to crow about after his racket-wielders lost a 6-1 match to Brigham Young last weekend.

Hogarty trimmed BYU ace Richard Dixon by a 6-1, 6-3 margin to win his third singles match in four Skyline starts this season. Only other Grizzly forcing his foe to three sets was number three man Steve Kirk, who lost the deciding set. Other Grizzlies scheduled for net work this weekend are Don Hubbard, Bill Corette and Carl Lehrkind. The matches will get under way at 2:30 p.m. on the MSU courts.
