10-6-1998

Butte students follow the letter of the law

University of Montana--Missoula. Office of University Relations

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.
Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/newsreleases

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.umt.edu/newsreleases/15663

This News Article is brought to you for free and open access by the University Relations at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in University of Montana News Releases by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.
Missoula--

Three students from Butte entered The University of Montana-Missoula School of Law this fall.

Christopher Morris, Cory O’Neill and Wade Zolynski of Butte were chosen from an applicant pool of more than 400.

Founded in 1911, UM’s law school has drawn national recognition for its effective integration of legal theory and practice into its curriculum. Students are required to apply their book knowledge to hands-on experience, law Dean E. Edwin Eck said.

“University of Montana students not only study the theory of contract law, corporate law and estate planning law, they also apply their knowledge by drafting contracts, creating corporations, and preparing and probating wills,” he said.

Students in their third year of study represent clients in one of the school’s 12 legal clinics. In addition to their regular studies, some students research and write law review articles and help prepare legislation for the Montana Legislature.

###

PS
Montana Standard
Law98but.rl