BROWNING STUDENTS HONORED AT UM RECEPTION

MISSOULA--

Three Browning students were among those recognized at a reception held recently for American Indians in the Graduate School and School of Law at The University of Montana.

Annjeanette Belcourt-Dittloff, Pat Calf-Looking and Scott E. Carlson were honored for their academic achievements at the annual reception, which took place in the Davidson Honors College lounge.

The guest speaker was William Old Chief, chairman of the Blackfeet Tribal Council. Other guests included Carol Meyers, director of the Missoula Indian Center; Janet Robideau, project director of Indian People's Action; UM President George Dennison; faculty and staff; and friends and family members.

Belcourt-Dittloff, a 1992 graduate of Browning High School, is pursuing a doctoral degree in clinical psychology. She earned a bachelor of arts degree in psychology from UM in 1996, minoring in Native American Studies and graduating with honors. She and her husband, David, have two young daughters. She hopes to return to the Blackfeet Reservation to work as a clinical psychologist after graduation.

Calf-Looking is pursuing a master's degree in biology and ecology. He earned a bachelor of science degree in microbiology and medical technology from UM in 1993. After he graduates, he hopes to assist the Blackfeet Nation in protecting its natural resources.

Carlson is pursuing a master's degree in environmental studies. He earned a bachelor's degree in Native American Studies from UM in 1998. He and his wife, Patricia, have a son and a daughter. His future plans include enrolling in law school or a doctoral program.

Forty-five Indian students are enrolled in The University of Montana's graduate and law programs.
