General Introduction

This experimental course is constructed in an attempt to introduce students the Chinese culture through films. The major aspects to be covered are: the Chinese mythology of creation, chronological outline of the Chinese dynasties, the fundamental religions and philosophies underling the Chinese culture and the modern China. The course will be carried out in two formats: film showing and seminars.

Students Learning Outcomes:

1. To get familiar with the Chinese cinematography of the 20th Century, the major works and ways of presentation and expression.
2. To learn and understand the beliefs and values of the different segments of the Chinese culture, and how they are reflected in their behavior, their multi social roles and lives as shown in the films.
3. To understand the complexity of the patterns of relationships governed by the believing system between people and government; poor working class and upper elite class; between people to people and people to nature.
4. To learn to be able to observe and critique China's current political, economic, cultural and social issues, and also the issues in its relationships with the rest of the world.
5. To enrich the students in their appreciation of the Chinese films as a form of art and representation of the history and culture.

Evaluation

1. Attendance and class participation 20 points
Students are expected to attend each class and actively participate in class discussion or group presentations. Three absences are allowed for the semester. Each absence thereafter is subject to point deduction in the grading.
2. Three response paper, 30 points
Every four weeks, students are expected to submit a 2-page paper in response to one of the films watched in class.
3. Group presentations 20 points
Students are expected to work in groups and three class presentations.
4. Cultural tests (2) 15 points each.
5. Extra Credit. 6 points
Film report (2), 3 points each.

Further Important Information:

1. This course uses pluses and minuses in its grading. The lowest credit-receiving grade is D minus,; the highest possible course grade is a straight A, not A+.
2. Note that you need to select the traditional grading option if you are planning to have this course count toward fulfillment of the Chinese Minor and/or General Education requirements.
3. Auditors: Anyone auditing the class must formally enroll as an auditor.
4. Anyone with a learning or medical disability and in need of special arrangements must inform us of this fact at the beginning of the course. People with such disabilities must provide documentary proof of their status.
