MONTANA KAIMIN

STATE UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA, MISSOULA, MONTANA

TUESDAY, JUNE 8, 1926

VOLUME XXV. NUMBER 62.

BACCALAUREATE SERVICES WILL TAKE PLACE SUNDAY

Gymnasium Will Be Used for First Time as Scene of Ceremony

Baccalaureate services will be held Sunday, June 13, at 8 o'clock, in the men's gymnasium. This is the first time that the gymnasium has been used. It has been the custom in the past to hold the services in one of the Missoula churches.

The University orchestra will open the program with the Processional March. The "March from Athalia," by Mendelssohn. The Reverend O. M. Grimby of Missoula will give the Invocation. The Festival, De Deum, will be sung by the University Choral Society.

Scripture reading will be by Reverend D. E. Jackson, and the choir will give the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name." Two selections by the orchestra will follow.

Clapp to Give Address
Dr. C. H. Clapp, president of the University, will then give the Baccalaureate address, using "The Bliss Philite" as his subject. His talk will be followed by two hymns, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Come Thou Almighty King."

The Reverend H. H. Kummick will give the benediction and the University orchestra will close the exercises with the Postlude.

The Commencement address will be Monday morning, June 14, at 10 o'clock in the men's gymnasium. Dr. Edward O. Sisson, former president of the University, will give the main address. Each graduating senior is allowed three reserved tickets for relatives or guests in the special section reserved for them. The seniors may get their tickets from Helen Newman at Main hall.

Mrs. Hepper is a member of Alpha Phi and Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalism fraternity. Mr. Hepper withdrew from school at the end of the fall quarter to take up active journalism work in Walla Walla and later Seattle. He will complete his work in the School of Journalism, which he has been taking by correspondence, this quarter. He is a member of the Templar and Sigma Delta Chi fraternities. While at the University he was advertising manager for the Montana Masquers, Managing Editor, Business Manager and Advertising Manager of the Kaimin in turn.

ESTHER DAVIS WEDS MINNEAPOLIS MAN

Miss Davis is a member of Kappa Delta sorority. She withdrew from the University at the end of the fall quarter this year, and since that time has been attending Carlton college in Minnesota.

SPANISH CLUB DONATES TO LITTLE THEATER MOVEMENT

Another financial boost was given the Little Theater fund when the Spanish club turned over $28, the proceeds from their play "Zaraguet," to the Masquers. This was the first concrete evidence given of the unusual interest being displayed in the Little Theater and has increased the fund, to this time composed of the profits from the Masquer's productions, to more than $200, and provides funds for the first production to be given next fall.

Alpha Xi Delta Wins Championship

Alpha Xi Delta won the inter-sorority baseball championship from Phi Beta by a score of 13 to 15, in the last game of the series Friday afternoon. A close score throughout the game featured the plays, and at no time was it a definite score for either side. Margaret Sterling, president of WAA, umpired.

SCHOLARSHIP BOOKS ARRIVE AT LIBRARY

Books for the Duniway Honor Scholarship have arrived at the library. There are seven books offered this year, the departments receiving them are Economics, Education, English, Fine Arts, History, Library Science and Foreign Language.

Whenever President Duniway made a speech for which he was paid, he turned the money over to this book fund. Students excelling in their work in the various departments were to receive a book each year as a prize. It was Mr. Duniway's hope that succeeding presidents would follow his example, thus increasing the fund, the income of which would be sufficient to buy all the books desired. This plan failed and at present it is necessary for the departments to alternate in the years in which the prize is offered to the students. The names of the students receiving the books will be announced at Commencement.

There will be faculty members present to hand out the papers as usual. Because Commencement is to be held in the men's gymnasium Monday, examinations will be solely in the women's gymnasium on that day. Otherwise, only the overflow will be handled in the latter building.

Trees have been planted that will be suited to growing conditions in eastern Montana and will serve as windbreaks and for wood lots. A large number of ornamental trees have also been set out.

When the seedlings have reached the proper stage of development they will be furnished to farmers at the cost of transportation. It is believed that a large number of small trees will be sent to various schools throughout the state.

The stock consists mainly of spruce, pine, cedar and maple.

At the conclusion of the program, Donald Stocking and George Huber were awarded the Dimond and Ulvestad trophy offered to the winners of the club's horseshoe tournament.

Bob Warden, editor of the 1926 Sentinel, has received a very flattering request from the 1927 Blue Print, annual of the Georgia School of Technology at Atlanta. They wish to buy the scenic section of this year's Sentinel for their annual next year.

Warden said that they would not sell the plates because of the copyright. As the cuts will be used for advertising purposes for the school, they are not to be sold. He said that they might rent the plates to the staff of the Blue Print, although this is tentative.

HOELSCHER PLANS DIVISION IN BAND

"Next year Montana will have two bands," said A. Hoelscher, director. "In order to take care of the large number of men turning out each year, in a satisfactory manner, two bands will be organized; the first band will include the better musicians, and the second will take care of the overflow and will supply the first band with fillers when needed."

Mr. Hoelscher has found the larger group unwieldy for good work and decided on the above plan. In this way, a better brand of music can be turned out, and at the same time, reserve band men will be trained.

JORDAN ACCEPTS POSITION

Miss Rachel Jordan, who graduated with honors in English in 1923, has accepted a position to teach school dramatics in the literature courses during the summer session of Montana state normal college, at Dillon. ## President C. H. Clapp Inspects Parade, Review of Battalion

Swinging across the oval to the military cadences of the music of the band, the ROTC made its final parade and review of the school year last night. President C. H. Clapp, ex-officio commander-in-chief of the corps and Major Smith inspected the regiment. New officers received their appointments and took their posts for the final review.

At 5 o'clock the regiment drew up in the road on the north side of the oval. A few minutes later the band marched to its position at the head of the column and the companies were called to attention. Inspection followed the reports of the captains and then the retiring officers reported to receive their papers from Major G. L. Smith. ## UNIVERSITY LIBRARY RECEIVES NEW BOOKS

"More than 1000 new books have been received during the last three or four weeks," said Miss Gertrude Buchkows, librarian. "These books will be on the shelves by next fall," she continued. "Due to the small cataloging staff, which consists of one regular and one part time cataloguer, progress is slow; in a college library an average librarian can catalogue about fifteen books a day—that is approximately 400 books a month. In a public library where a great deal of the material is fiction, cataloguing can be done much more rapidly," she concluded.

Girls' Interclass Baseball Starts

Chicago Bound

ARNOLD GILLETTE and Coach Jim Stewart departed for Chicago this morning, where Gillette will represent Montana in the annual National field and track meet which will be held there June 11 and 12.

Russell Sweet, Montana's other entry, was unable to go to the meet, because of the injury he sustained at the Coast conference meet last month. It was hoped that Sweet would recover in time to attend the big meet, but in a trial heat on Dornblaser field Saturday afternoon it was proven that his leg had not healed sufficiently.

It is indeed very regrettable that he could not make the trip, for had he been in shape no doubt Montana would have placed very high in the national affair.

Gillette will run only the mile race at Chicago. This is Gillette's best race, no one having made as good time in that event in collegiate competition this year. Montana feels sure that the little miler will come through with a win. Good luck, Arnie—we will be watching the reports.

A Good Start

MUCH favorable comment has been made in regard to the Little Treater idea which was started on the campus a short while ago. The plan is worked out by the Montana Masquers is sure to be a successful one, and is deserving of student co-operation. This interest has already been shown by various student organizations who have contributed toward the fund.

The Little Theater on college campuses is a new thing, and very few schools the size of Montana can boast of such an organization as this. Next fall should see the plan materialize and it is the desire of the members of the Masquers that students interest themselves in the movement and give it their support.

Education does not mean teaching people what they do not know. It means teaching them to behave as they do not behave. It is not teaching youths the shapes of letters and the tricks of numbers, and leaving them to turn their arithmetic to roguery, and their literature to lust. It means, on the contrary, training them into the perfect exercise and kingly continence of their bodies and souls. It is a painful, continual, and difficult work to be done by kindness, by watching, by warning, by precept, and by praise, but above all—by example. . . .

—John Ruskin.

hasn't it. Her shame and humiliation on discovering the trick leads her to forever all fads in future.

"The Suicide" is the story of a girl who is about to kill herself because of a dream of love. She is saved and awakened from her dream by a stranger who takes the place of the dream.

"The Forsaken Temple" is a story of the love of one woman for another. The jealousy of one and the unthinking callousness of the other nearly leads to tragedy. The one woman finds that the love for another woman is not for her nature after all, and returns to her husband, after surmounting the difficulties thrown in her way by the other.

"Miss Jones and the Masterpiece" is the story of a priggish little model who makes the artist destroy the picture of a famous courtesan (the masterpiece) for love of her, and then announces that she has promised to marry another man.

Black Sunlight.
By Earl Rossman.
Oxford University Press (American Branch).

Within the brief limit of 231 pages, Earl Rossman, in "Black Sunlight," presents to the readers his impressions that he has retained from his first visit to the Arctic; his experiences with the Eskimo, their habits, traditions, and manners of dress.

Mr. Rossman was one of those newspaper and film men who were in Alaska at the time when the deceased President Harding paid his visit to Juneau.

While taking a pleasure jaunt to Taku Glacier, the author meets with an accident in which his film, but not his cameras, are ruined. He is induced by two of his Alaskan acquaintances, both prominent in the administrative affairs of Alaska, to go north and film a complete cycle of Eskimo life.

Accompanied by William T. Lopp, then chief of the United States Bureau of Education for Alaska, Rossman makes the trip, during which he keeps a diary that later produces the material for this book. A number of illustrations add a great deal to the book, which is instructive as well as interesting.

Science and Religion.
William North Rice.
Abingdon Press, $5.00.

Professor Rice, with the scientist's love for measure, says there are five so-called conflicts between science and religion, and proceeds to prove that there are no conflicts.

Science and religion were always separate and distinct fields, but when it came for either to interpret the world of being, that is where the conflict came in and went—because, as Professor Rice proves in this little volume, the two find themselves of accord when they conceive being as "progressive revelation."

To be exact, the conflicts are between scientific beliefs and a Bible supposed to be inerrant. Proving that they are not a conflict, Professor Rice would thus be quoted: "In that modern conception of a progressive revelation, we behold the Heavenly Father leading his children onward from age to age, to purer conceptions of truth and to nobler life. The inarticulate cry of universal humanity finds its interpretation and its answer in Him through whom we see the Father. And to Him—"The same yesterday and today and forever"—the laboring and heavy-laden bring their burdens of doubt and question, as of sorrow and sin, and find rest unto their souls."

"Out-of-Doors With Jesus."
Bishop William A. Quayle.
Abingdon Press.
Price $1.75.

From out of the great loneliness that is common to all inspired genius, Jesus must have reached out to the quiet, great loneliness He found in nature.

Bishop Quayle says that the immensities of nature became Him.

This kinship between the vast solitude of nature and genius is the heritage of humanity, particularly of inspired humanity—remember Heine sitting on the shore of the North Sea feeding his great loneliness with solace by that which lay moaning before him.

The sea, of course, is only one element of nature. Bishop Quayle interprets the messages of the One Genius through all the elements, to that in mankind which reaches out understanding the great common loneliness that is humanity's heritage.

"Steeple Among the Hills."
Arthur Wentworth Hewitt.
Abingdon Press.
Price $1.75.

There creeps into this—an intimate sketch of the life of a minister in a country parish—a mellow warmth and understanding of self the reader can only envy and reach for. This servant of God has evidently spent ripe years among the hills of his beloved Vermont—the same place year in and year out, but in the same place new and manifold glories unfolded and unfolded themselves to him.

Such a peace and such a quietude the ordinary reader has had in vision but not tangibly for himself. In reading this book, there is unuttered hope in the reader that, by mere contact, the peace that comes to very few in the lonely world, may touch him.

Indeed a book for a peaceful hour.

Treasure Island.
Kidnaped and Catriona.
By Robert Louis Stevenson.
Oxford University Press, American Branch, New York.
Price $1.00.

The two pleasantly, green covered volumes are issues of the world's classics recently published by the Oxford University Press.

All that the reader can say, "Here comes delightfully mellow old wine in new bottles." Of particularly delightful draughts are the introductory sections to these little volumes, especially his essay, "My First Book," appearing in "Treasure Island."

Of course, any attempts at review of these works of Stevenson's would have to be repetition. The highest praise, now, for these books, is that their contents have long earned the praise of the critics and readers. All that is left to say must be said concerning the size of the type, the quality of the paper and size of the page—these are pleasing and comfortable.

Gilbert Porter, '23, Grant Higgins, '21, of Missoula, and Ray Carroll of Spokane were dinner guests at the Sigma Chi house Sunday.

Muscle Bound

He who sleeps feels not the toothache.—Shakespeare.

Where, oh where, are the roller skates we all purchased last spring?

Most of us develop our artistic temperaments when we're too old to be spanked for it.

We read a poem the other day, viz.:
A cautious girl is Mary White,
She never stands against the light.

Not much caution these days.

Free Facts for Frosh
People have been murdered for saying less than "Is it hot enough for you?"

And as the fellow in the Ford said to us the other day, "Here's honkin' at you."

Folks who pass their exams with ease usually get them, too.

If you haven't heard "Always" doesn't mean you were born deaf.

Department Heads Stress Need of Religious Courses

Chairmen of the various departments of the University have submitted opinions as to the value of religious education in colleges to William L. Young of the University School of Religion. Following are their opinions:

"If men and women are to be intelligent in religious matters they must have the advantage of the accumulated race achievements in that field as truly as in any other field of human endeavor. This means study under sound guidance and leadership. I do not see how it can be done in a more efficient way than by courses in religion," said Freeman Daughters, Department of Education.

"Religious teaching and religious atmosphere have been sadly neglected in our public schools and state universities. Courses in religion and right living should be of the utmost importance to the students of any institution of learning."—J. P. Rowe, Ph. D., Department of Geology.

"A scientific study of religion is of value in correlating our spiritual ideas with our purely intellectual culture."—P. C. Phillips, Ph. D., Department of History and Political Science.

"To live religion—that is why I believe courses in religion are of advantage to students."—F. Scheuch, Department of Foreign Languages.

"To leave out of the curriculum the study of religion is to leave out acquaintance with the longest and largest interest of mankind."—J. H. Underwood, Ph. D., Department of Economics.

"There is nothing that has had as much influence on the history of the world as religion, and I believe that the teaching of religion from an absolutely non-sectarian standpoint should have a big place in all educational institutions."—W. E. Schreiber, Department of Physical Education.

"Religion presents a great field for earnest and intelligent study."—C. W. Leaphart, Dean of the Law School.

"Moral and religious development are indispensable in the life of the student."—J. E. Kirkwood, Ph. D., Botany.

"The study of the Bible should be supplemented by a study of the psychology of religion, and the prevailing religions as a safeguard against dogmatic and fanatical religious views."—C. E. Mollett, Dean, School of Pharmacy.

"Religion is as truly a part of man's heritage as is science, art, literature, or politics; hence religious education is, or should be, an essential part of all education."—F. O. Smith, Ph. D., Department of Psychology.

"No leader can study his problems sympathetically and completely without due regard for the religious element. Thus it is desirable that in the training of our future leaders the teaching of things religious should not be omitted."—G. D. Shallenberger, Ph. D., Department of Physics.

"You can't teach people to be religious. But you can, perhaps, help them to see the differences between the passing fancies and theories of religious systems and the permanent devotion and faith of a religious spirit. If you do these things I'm for

Other Campuses

GIMME NICKLE.

Inadequate physical equipment will be a thing of the past for the Engineering School of Princeton with the completion of the $800,000 Engineering Laboratory, for which solicitation of the required funds is now being carried on.

The proposed structure will include three floors and a basement and will provide approximately 70,000 square feet of floor space. Laboratories for several different branches of engineering study as well as offices, drawing rooms, and lecture hall, are provided for in the plans.

Purely Decorative.

The University has awarded a contract to its landscape architects, McCrory, Culley and Cahart, for the development of the grounds of the Colorado general hospital in Denver. Three thousand shrubs, plants and trees are to be planted and a lawn is to be developed. Tennis courts will be built. The program provides for one of the most attractive hospital grounds in the West.

In Memoriam.

Erection of a national memorial to the late Walter Camp, "Father of American Football," is being planned by the National Collegiate Athletic association in co-operation with Yale University. The memorial is to be a tribute not from Yale alumni alone, but from all colleges, universities, and preparation schools where football is played today. A monumental gateway at the entrance to the Yale Athletic Fields is the form chosen for the memorial. Yale fields will be renamed the Walter Camp Fields.

The co-operation of 458 colleges and scores of preparatory schools is called for in the plans for raising the money for the memorial. The undertaking is unique in that it is the first time that all American colleges have engaged in a co-operative enterprise of this sort.

Oh Deah Me!

This describes the parade staged last Friday afternoon on the Ohio State U. campus. Even sophisticated college students were startled to see a group of seven or eight paraders, clad only in water-soaked and mud-covered B. V. D.'s, moving across the Oval. One defied tradition even further by walking for a short distance upon the sacred cement of the Long Walk. And all this while Old Sol was shining his hottest, without a dark cloud in sight.

The participants were some of the latest freshmen victims of Bucket and Dipper Honorary Society which enforces frosh rules. Their unusual appearance was the result of having been surrounded by the muddy waters of Mirror Lake but a few minutes before. They were a radical group, who refused to follow the old custom of dressing in the bushes where they undressed.

Hence, the parade across the Oval to the Gymnasium, where warm showers of clean water awaited them, to be followed by the luxury of clean, dry towels hanging in their lockers.

But for a few minutes they were indeed all wet.

The Ohio State Lantern of the Ohio State College has a column entitled "Styles for the Modish Co-eds." Fashion hints straight from Paris decree the latest in colors and fads that the co-ed should wear.

An auditing committee composed of John Suchy, instructor in the School of Pharmacy; Charles Abbott, Herschel Hoskins, Lindell Keener and Jimmy O'Connor, was also elected.

WRITING CLASS CHOOSES FRONTIER'S BEST WORK

Miss McDowell is from Butte and Miss Rowe from Twin Bridges. Both are seniors in the English department.
