Percy Stone Writes of His Trip Abroad

A. L. Stone, dean of the School of Journalism, recently received a letter from his son, Percy Stone, who is a graduate of the University of Montana, and at present is in charge of the paper of the steamer "Resolute," which is on a world cruise.

Mr. Stone, in his letter, which was written in Gibraltar, told of the trip thus far. He said the ship would stop at Algiers, on the Northern African coast, continue to several Mediterranean ports, pass through the Suez canal and sail on to India and Singapore. From Singapore the "Resolute" goes to China and Japan and then across to San Francisco. After a short stay in San Francisco they continue down the California coast, through the Panama canal and then to New York.

While on the trip, Mr. Stone is sending reports to his paper, the New York Herald Tribune. He is also filling several magazine contracts. Mr. Stone expects to be back sometime in June.

Bonner and Thomas Return From Trip; Win Pullman Debate

John Bonner and Myles Thomas returned Sunday evening from a debate trip to Washington. They report winning the debate at Pullman against Washington State college and losing at Spokane against Gonzaga.

An enjoyable part of the Gonzaga debate was that there were over six hundred people in the audience. This is greatly above the average for attendance, according to members of the Varsity debate squad. There was one judge at this debate. He gave the decision to Gonzaga. Montana had the negative of the question. Resolved, That Prohibition is a Failure.

Resolved, That Democracy is a Failure, was the question at the Pullman debate. Montana had the negative. The decision was given by the audience and was in favor of Montana.

After the Pullman Debate the Team Went to Moscow, Idaho, to Hear a Debate Between Washington State College and Idaho.

Idaho won the debate.

VODVIL TRYOUTS SET AT LIBERTY THEATER

All But Two Organizations Plan Acts; Tryouts Start at 9 o'clock

All of the sororities and fraternities on the University campus with the exception of two have signified their intention of entering the 1927 Varsity Vodvil competition, according to Gus Reely, manager. Alpha Xi Delta and Alpha Tau Omega are the only organizations not planning on participation in the annual show.

Reely has announced that tryouts will be held at the Liberty theater next Saturday morning and afternoon. To prevent the possibility of showing favoritism in the choice of tryout hours, the names of the various campus groups were placed on slips of paper and were drawn for the various time periods.

There will be only one back drop provided by the theater for all acts. Individual properties may be brought to the theater by the participating groups, however, Reely has suggested that these outside properties be as few as possible in view of the fact that all acts will be rigidly held to the prescribed 15-minute limit. At the time of the tryouts the cast members, Vodvil managing staff and the judges will be the only ones allowed in the building.

The schedule of appearance next Saturday follows:

- 9:00—Kappa Kappa Gamma.
- 9:20—Sigma Nu.
- 9:40—Kappa Delta.
- 10:00—Alpha Delta Alpha.
- 10:20—Kappa Alpha Theta.
- 10:40—Phi Sigma Kappa.
- 11:00—Alpha Phi.
- 11:20—Phi Delta Theta.
- 11:40—Alpha Chi Omega.
- Afternoon:
- 1:00—Sigma Phi Epsilon.
- 1:20—Delta Delta Delta.
- 1:40—Sigma Chi.
- 2:00—Delta Gamma.
- 2:20—Sigma Alpha Epsilon.
- 2:40—Sigma Kappa.
- 3:00—Templar.

GEOLOGY LAB DEPARTMENT RECEIVES WOOD MODELS OF MANY CRYSTAL FORMS

An addition to the laboratory properties of the Geology department was received yesterday in the form of 250 crystal models made of wood. The models are slightly larger than an inch in diameter, and are carved so as to give the exact shape in which many crystalline forms of matter shape themselves when cooled quickly after having been held at a high temperature. The crystals, although bought from a New York natural science supply house, came originally from Germany, where they were manufactured.

Although the Geology department already has a great quantity of these models, the ones which arrived yesterday are considered a great improvement, according to Dr. J. P. Rowe, professor of geology. It is likely that another shipment of the models will be ordered for the use of the department within a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Nelson, Winifred Adams, Ruth Merrill were dinner guests at the Templar house Sunday.

BUSINESS AD SCHOOL TO HAVE NEW HOME

Will Have Largest Class Room on Campus; Other Features to Be Added

When remodeled Craig hall will have one of the largest classrooms on the campus. The room is to be situated on the first floor in the west end and it will be large enough to accommodate 100 to 125 people. The School of Business Administration and the Department of Economics and Sociology will occupy the building.

Several features that the department have never had before will be added. One is a seminar room containing current periodicals and books. The room will also be used as a meeting place for student organizations such as Alpha Kappa Psi. There will be two big accounting rooms on the second floor. The offices of the eight members of the staffs of the departments will be in the second and third floors. Enough large classrooms are to be provided so that a greater number of classes can be held at one time. Physics laboratories will occupy the basement.

Funds for the remodeling are the last of the bond issue. The total expense will be about $45,000.

Officers Make Plans for Military Formal

A meeting will be held this week, at which further plans will be discussed. The dance is to be formal, and will be held at the Winter Garden. Sheridan's orchestra has been engaged. In the past, the Military formal has been an outstanding event in the social program, and everything is being done to make the 1927 dance one of the most enjoyable of the year.

It is the last formal of the quarter and the first one after the Co-ed. Tickets will be on sale after today.

"The Co-Ed Formal was a decided success and I want to express my appreciation to all the committees for their co-operation and help, in preparation for the dance," said Alice Lease, chairman of the Co-ed Formal given last Friday evening at the Elite hall.

The hall was artistically decorated in rainbow colors. Large colobes with spiders and vari-colored butterflies caught in them proved a novel effect. Programs which were in the shape of bright-colored, butterflies were hand-painted by students of the Art department. Punch was served during the evening.

STUDENTS HEAR TALK BY KENNETH LINDSAY

Convocation Held in Little Theater Friday Afternoon; Education Is Theme

"In the United States 65 per cent of the students in higher education pay their way through school," said Kenneth Lindsay, well-known London lecturer and welfare worker, when he spoke on "Progress and Educational Waste," at a convocation at the Little Theater Friday afternoon. According to Lindsay, working one's way through school is not done in England or other parts of the country due to the motility of labor.

Mr. Lindsay declared the English system of education was much different than ours. In England after a youth is 14 years old, he enters the factories to work and so his education ends there, while in the United States the children are really just beginning their education.

Industry demands three things of education, according to the lecturer. They are (1) equality of opportunity; (2) doing the world's work; (3) adult education. Mr. Lindsay then explained his points. He declared that over here politics is a degrading business while in England it is an honorable profession. He claims civil service in England to be incorruptible.

He said the reason the recent strike there failed was because of their civil service system. Lindsay believes Socialism is necessary to economic and eugenic life. The Englishman considers the United States a socialist and Bolshevik country.

Mr. Lindsay has written a book on "Social Progress" because he thinks England needs a book like that. There has only been 50 years of public education in England, according to the speaker.

Lindsay, who was brought here under the auspices of the Open Forum, was introduced by Rev. J. R. Hahn. Before leaving Missoula, Mr. Lindsay addressed the public at a meeting at the University avenue church. His topic there was much the same as given at the University.

LITERARY COMPOSITION COURSE TO BE GIVEN

Students interested in English 72, a literary course in literary composition, to be given next quarter, should see Robert Fitzgerald, assistant professor of English. The class will be limited to 16 students and in order to be admitted Mr. Fitzgerald must be consulted.

Dr. Rowe Makes Short Field Trip

Dr. J. P. Rowe of the Geology department made a short field trip during the past week-end. He was in the Flint Creek valley, making observations between Philipsburg and Maxville.

Montana Masquers to Present Spanish Production in Professional Manner

Jose Echegaray, writer, dreamer and Spanish dramatist par excellence, achieved the height of his literary career with the writing of "El Gran Galeoto," according to critics of Spanish literature. The translation of this supreme work of the master was arranged for production on the American stage a few years ago and is of interest to Montana people generally and Montana University students particularly, from the fact that it is to be produced on the campus this week.

Translated and retitled, it will appear here on the nights of the 17th, 18th and 19th, with the possibility that it may be run another night if present indications of the advance ticket sale hold good. At this time the tickets for the three scheduled nights are going in an unprecedentedly rapid manner, according to John Bolton, business manager for the show. The advance sale through the mail, opened a few days ago, has brought in a bulk of reservation seats never before equalled in University dramatic history.

Students Praise Show

"The World and His Wife" will furnish an unusually large amount of satisfaction in dramatics for those who attend, according to Philip Ring, head of the Masquers. Ring further states that he bases his conclusion on the fact that the play itself carries a brilliant and interesting plot and that the cast chosen by the director is one which seems particularly fitted for the production.

"Theatergoers will not be disappointed in the sets and general stage effects employed," said Harry Hooser, stage manager, in an interview. Members of the class in dramatic presentation have been employed for the past two weeks in securing the proper scenic and decorative effects and these, combined with the flexible light combinations now possible with the new switchboard apparatus, will make for a more finished type of production than has ever before been possible on the campus.

"The World and His Wife" will be the first serious play of the 1926-27 school year. The theme of the production is built up around the lives of an ordinary family. An otherwise peaceful life is marred by the entrance of scandal. Gossips take up the cry and make a grim offense of an act which never had existence. The end of the play is a masterpiece of dramatic art, in the opinion of a wide number of critics. In the conclusion there is present a queer mixture of happy and tragic ending uncommon in the theatrical world. The audience is never allowed to lose track of the action for a single instant throughout the entire performance.

BASKETBALL TEAM SPENDS $331.85 ON BOZEMAN TRIP

Expenses for the party of 16 men who went to Bozeman for the basketball game with the State college last week-end amounted to $331.85, including the expenses of Walter Sanford's trip. The yell king was allowed $20, so only $321.85 of that amount went for the team's expenses. The amount advanced to Coach Stewart by the athletic board was $325.

Push a Little

ORDINARILY the average student body is more or less desirous of student power. By power is meant the desirability of more control over student enterprises, such as examinations, honor systems, convocations, traditional holidays and many other affairs which may directly or indirectly effect the student.

Colleges and Universities the country over are becoming more democratic in this respect. They are granting the organizations more privileges, and at the same time placing more responsibilities upon them.

The true western University should react with this freedom, but after one surveys the situation, the fact is revealed that many western schools have less to say about their own affairs than do many of the eastern institutions. Of course, the schools of the east are much older and their student bodies have had more time to realize the desirability of student control.

To bring the whole affair closer to home, the University of Montana student body enjoys as little freedom as any in the west. Frankly admitting, however, that the students have had the opportunity to take upon themselves a little responsibility last spring, when they voted on student self-government. The fact remains that the students are not compelled to sit with their hands folded and let things just "go as they are."

At Montana, it is our belief, that students will find the faculty and administration behind any movement that is for the betterment of the institution. The president of the University expressed this when he spoke to the students at a convocation not very long ago. All it takes to put across an idea or a plan is to work on it a little. Then after the work is done, work a little more. Nothing in this world comes easy, and it's a cinch students' self-government and other student enterprises are not going ahead on their own.

Our Dormitory room hasn't been clean since the old janitor went to Europe. The new janitor thinks he's doing us such a big favor just to make our bed that he won't even consider using a mop or dust-cloth. We ushered him in the other day and ran our fingers over the window ledge, wall-molding, and picture frame. He said, "Yes that was dust. We suggested that he do a little work, as the old janitor had done."

He said that was why the old janitor went to Europe. He had worked so hard he had to go back to Italy to recover.

We showed the new janitor a cobweb in the corner of the ceiling, telling him in a properly grieved tone of voice that it was the first one that we had ever seen in the room; What was he going to do about it?

He said he'd have to set a trap for the spider.

We told him that the trouble with him was he was too intelligent to do any work.

He said, Exactly so, some day he was going to get his Ph. D. and join the faculty. —The Daily Princetonian.

Tanans will be seen about the campus today and tomorrow selling little red tags, bearing on them, "I Support the Band." The tag sale is for the purpose of raising extra funds for the activities of one of the best organizations on the campus. The band may always be found on the job, no matter what the weather or what the time. Give the band your support—and buy a tag.

Afternoon Classes to Be Excused for Charter Day Talks

Students! Remember that Thursday is the 34th Charter Day of this institution, and show your loyalty and spirit by attending the general convocation which is to be held in Main hall at 1:30 that afternoon, as your predecessors have done for more than 30 years. Chancellor M. A. Brannon is to be the main speaker of the day, and he will have a message of interest to all of you. Some good music is promised by the University Symphony orchestra and the men's Glee club. Then, don't forget the reception in honor of Miss Frances Corbin in Corbin hall at 3 o'clock. For those of you who have not been inside the dormitory, this will provide an opportunity to inspect the building, and at the same time do fitting honor to one of the faculty's oldest members. If there are any of the other buildings on the campus with which you are unfamiliar, Charter Day is the day on which to visit them, as every classroom and laboratory will be cleaned and open for inspection Thursday afternoon.

The basketball game with O.A.C. in the gymnasium that night, and the opening presentation of "The World and His Wife" will provide a fitting close for a day which has long been known as a get-together day for students, faculty members and townspeople, who are especially invited to attend all the events on the program of the day.

Classes will meet as usual in the morning, but will be dismissed in the afternoon, so that everyone may turn out for the convocation. This is rather to inform the freshmen that they should attend the program than it is a reminder to the upper-classmen, for they know what Charter Day means, and will be out in full force.

Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Schenck, Dean and Mrs. T. C. Spaulding, Harry Adams, and R. L. Housman were dinner guests at the Phi Sigma Kappa house, Sunday.

Kappa Psi, national pharmaceutical fraternity, was host at a dancing party Saturday evening in the club rooms of the University church. Mr. and Mrs. John Suchy and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Schied were the chaperones.

Residents of Craig hall entertained informally at a fireside Saturday night. About 25 couples attended. Mrs. Belle Turner chaperoned.

Fewer Men Receive Winter Yellow Slips

Students who have made a grade below passing in their subjects so far this quarter are fewer in number than last quarter, according to figures given out by the registrar's office today regarding the number of yellow slips sent out last week. During the mid-week of the fall session, 335 poor work slips were sent out, and last week 289 slips were issued by the instructors.

This quarter, 139 men received 213 slips; last quarter the number was higher, 157 men receiving 247 slips. Sixty-three women were sent slips, both this quarter and last. During the latter session, however, 88 slips were sent to the 63 women, and this quarter only 76 to the 63 recipients.

Ernest Anderson was confined to the isolation hospital Thursday with scarlet fever.

Indor Nelson withdrew from school and returned to his home in Valier.

Jack Baker was confined to St. Patrick's hospital Friday with a cold.

The Red Gods Call.
C. E. Scroggins.
Bobbs, Merrill Co.
Indianapolis.

Scroggins, a dealer in small town real-estate, who, after meeting an adventurer from the tropics, thought that he heard the call of the wild and wanted to answer it. He was dissatisfied with his home town, Milo, Indiana, a one-horse, peaceful, mid-western town. He wanted adventure—something new and different. (All of us do even if we don't admit it.)

Answering the call, he set out for Central America, where he found this so-called adventure, which he later tells us is nothing more than a romantic name for trouble. Revolutions drove him from the country—but something, he said it was the Red Gods, always seemed to call him back to this "Country of Old Men"—to the land where "they all come back"—the place where men talk of home but aren't satisfied to stay there.

The book is divided into several chapters, each chapter relating some particular incident, which Scroggins is able to recall quite vividly.

Alice; an asphalt lake; an old line of Spanish royalty; Ben Murchison, an old soldier of fortune, and many other interesting topics are dealt with in a most remarkable way.

All in all, the book is well worth the time spent in reading it.

Walter Powel.
Harford Powel, Jr.
Little, Brown and Co.
$2.00.

Too often a biographer over-eulogizes his subject—not intentionally but because he has such a deep feeling of regard for the person whom he is writing about that he fails to see what effect his finished work will have on the reader. Eulogization of Washington and Lincoln in the past has led to attacks during the present day of people who are tired of hearing about the hatchet and the cherry tree and "Honest Abe's" many-mile hike to give a woman the change which was due her after purchasing some goods at the store where he worked. These attacks seem uncalled for but are carried to no greater extremes than the eulogization which draws the criticism forth.

Harford Powel, Jr., a graduate of Harvard University, seems to over-eulogize the great Yale coach in his book, "Walter Camp." The first part of his work reads more like a "How Tom Won the Game" novel than it does a biography of one who is probably the greatest figure in the athletic history of the country. But along with all this Powel has built a history of American football that seems authentic and exceedingly entertaining to those who are interested in the game.

Powel deals with Camp's life in three phases, the first as the "father of American football," its greatest player and coach; the second as a business man, still deeply interested in the game which he founded, and third as the originator of the famous Camp's "Daily Dozen," which he invented during the war as a means of keeping soldiers and sailors fit for service, but which he soon afterwards gave to the nation as a means of reducing waistlines and building up flat feet.

During Camp's years at Yale, both as player and coach, that school carried a string of victories in every sport that any present-day college would envy. Camp knew athletics as few coaches do and always seemed to be a step ahead of every one else.

As a business man and writer, Powel points out Camp to be as great a success as he was in the coaching field—a clock manufacturer, a magazine writer and department editor, author of many novels and writer of sport histories—he handled all capably.

Powel's book seems to be an over-worked eulogy of a great sportsman. A. C. C.

Grizzly Hoop Squad Boast Many Reserves for 1928 Contests

There are several men on this year's floor squad who, although they failed to play in any Varsity contests, will be strong contenders for the 1928 court team. These men, hampered by inexperience this year, should improve greatly before the next season. Many of them are members of the football squad and are consequently at a disadvantage because of the conflicting training periods.

Pierce and Huber, the midgets of the Grizzly squad, are both capable, fast performers. Possessing a stature that is an extreme handicap to most floor candidates, the "wee" ones of the Montana team are nevertheless dangerous against many opponents. Next year should bring about a great development in these small members of the team.

Davis and Whitcomb are not bothered in the least by limited proportions. Both are sturdy and big, capable of taking as many bumps as usually happen during a floor contest. They are members of the football squad and are faced with the necessity of adapting themselves to an entirely different pastime in a very short time. Both these men will make determined bids for Varsity positions next year.

Flightner, another elongated member of the squad, faces an excellent

Rare Book Is Added to Lawyers' Archives

"David Smyth of Methven, Esquire," makes a noise like the name of someone important. Such a name set under a delicate steel engraving of a family crest makes a noise that smacks of fame. When the Latin "Medis Transquilis in India" surmounts the whole thing and there is actually a leaping dolphin and an armored head among the trinkets on the crest, Smyth hells like the name of someone we really should know.

But David Smyth would be unknown now had his taste in books been different. He chose solid law books and in each of them he neatly pasted his bookplate so that the thoughtless borrower would be reminded to return them. One of these books was ambitious and of good stuff (moral) and it found its way from David's shelves, through many paths to the Law Library at the University of Montana.

This book was printed in 1665 and bound by hand in clear calfskin. The skin was put on green and well polished when it had dried. It is laced with tendons, perhaps from the calf that furnished the hide, and sewn with a fine seam and laborious knots. The whole is still very strong and could stand another 262 years of use. The paper, however, is getting a little thin and a bit brittle and charred at the edges from the effects of the slow fires of time.

The title, translated from the Latin in which it and the whole book is written, is "A Book of Natural and International History Written According to the Hebrew Revelations." It is complete as modern works, with "Prefatio" and indexes for each of its seven parts. There are many quaint pictures, all delicately done in steel etching. The author, Joannis Selden, was a scholar and expected his readers to be so as well for he uses Arabic and Greek quotations freely and in their respective letterings and tongues. There are 927 pages in all.

It has "that sage and dignified smell of old books" and has absorbed humanity from long handling. May it fare as well in its new berth.

HUSKIES ARE VICTORS IN CONFERENCE GAME

Grizzlies Rally in Second Half, But Are Unable to Overtake Washington Lead

Reversing the form that they displayed in the first half, Montana completely outplayed their opponents, and the Washington Huskies were forced to play "hide the ball" to keep the Grizzlies from gaining a conference victory. The final score was 35-27.

The game started with both sides using a great deal of caution. A number of personal fouls and a few neat baskets by the Huskies gave them a 14-2 lead before the Grizzlies were able to solve the offensive play of the Washington cagers. Coyle and Kain tossed a basket apiece to awaken the Grizzlies chances, but neat pivots and a snappy bounce-pass game worked the ball in close for a number of easy shots for the Purple and Gold and a long 24-8 lead at half time.

Grizzlies Start in Second

A rejuvenated Grizzly quint stepped out on the floor at the beginning of the second half and completely outplayed their opponents, who seemed unable to get through the defense of the Montana cagers. The new Graham-Kilroy guarding combination covered well any scoring combination that Coach Hec Edmundson sent into the fray. The whole Husky guard failed to check the offensive play of the Grizzlies and the Washington team was forced to pass the ball around underneath their own basket to keep the Grizzlies from overtaking the basket in the second half, while the Huskies were unable to connect on their attempts, and the Tri-color quint scored 19 points to their opponents' 11.

The Washington cagers seemed rather dead, probably from their road trip, and very likely because it is hard for them to swallow the defeat that they received from the Idaho Vandals. Although Montana hasn't shown the speed and fight that they have displayed in other battles on the local floor, yet they completely mastered the situation in the last period. Snider and Schuss are a neat pair of forwards and their pivoting, fake passing and neat dribbling gains them a number of closeup shots. It is self explanatory how Snider, a first year man, could beat a number of veterans out of a berth.

The weak spot on the Purple and Gold quint is the center position, but although Montana got almost every tipoff, the Huskies foxed the Grizzlies and most of the times succeeded in getting possession of the ball from Kain's tipoff.

The lineup and summary:

Washington	Montana
Snider (12)	Overturf (5)
Forward
Schuss, c. (13)	Coyle, c. (8)
Forward
Jewell (4)	Kain (9)
Center

Substitutes—Washington: James (1), St. John, Brobst, Hack, Bolstad and Gritsch. Montana: Miller, Kilroy (5), Graham and Pearce.

OREGON FARMERS WILL MEET MONTANA THURSDAY

GRIZZLIES WILL MEET O.A.C. IN GAME THURSDAY NIGHT

Montana Has Good Chance Against Oregon Forwards; Idaho Plays Here Friday

With two games remaining to be played this week, which will complete the 1927 basketball schedule, Coach Jim Stewart will center his attack against the Oregon Aggies in an effort to place the Grizzlies in the win column in conference competition. Idaho university will be here Friday night for the last game.

Barring mishaps and tough luck, the Grizzlies have a splendid opportunity to send the Oregon Farmers home with an empty hayrack. Although the Orangemen are still in the race in the Northern division of the Coast conference, they haven't shown anything of championship caliber so far this season. Up to the present time they haven't met the leading teams of the Northern division.

Their conference record so far is two wins and one loss. They won most of their pre-season engagements but they lost their first conference struggle. The Idaho Vandals defeated them on their coast invasion. They were victors in their other two conference struggles, Montana and W.S.C. being their victims. In their battles with the Grizzlies and Cougars the Beavers had a tough time, last-minute spurts with long shots gave them the contests.

Coach "Bog" Hager had to build a new aggregation, having only two veterans left from last year's quint. Their play so far this season has been ragged and at times the coach has had to send in his whole squad in an effort to try and bolster the quint to keep them from losing an almost safe lead.

Coach Hager's probable lineup will be Mathews and Hartung, forwards; Savory, center; and Captain Grapp and Burr, guards. Both of the guards are veterans, Burr being an exceptionally neat shot.

FROSH WIN CONTEST FROM IDAHO TECH

Accurate shooting on the part of Linville was the prime factor in the Cubs' 25 to 21 victory over the Idaho Tech Tigers, last Friday evening. "Bud" caged the ball eight times besides doing clever floor work in leading the yearlings' attack. Jenkins, a substitute for the Tigers, carried the brunt of the Idaho rally just before the final gun.

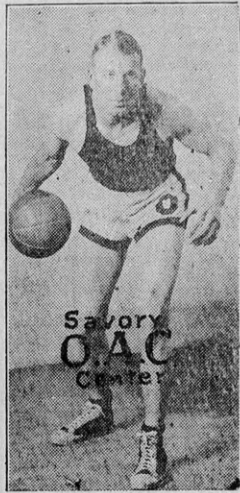

The Tigers scored the first basket but soon Linville retaliated with three baskets in rapid succession. The Idahoans returned with a vicious attack during the last five minutes of the first half which ended 15 to 8.

Rankin Plays Well

The stellar work of Rankin at guard repelled the furious attack of the Tigers. Rule, burly center, came in for his share of honors. Mitchell and Miller played a good game but the latter had a run of tough luck in getting his usual quota of points. Richey of Idaho was always threatening with his one-handed tips, with Jenkins pitching the ball often during the game.

Richey opened the scoring after four minutes of playing with one of his clever one-handed shots. Linville converted a neat throw, then came back with two dribble shots. Richey again scored. Linville repeated. Rule missed two free throws; this was the only personal foul of the half. Miller Cages a side shot. After doing some clever passing, Linville got a closeup. Williams scored from the side. Linville gets a high rebound. Rule scored on a long pass under the basket. Jenkins played sleeper to tally. Half ended 16 to 8.

Williams snapped in a running shot. Miller counted one of two free awards.

Rule registered a short toss. Linville caged a neat side shot. Richey scores on a rebound. Miller failed to tally on three shots, for the ball refused to be caged. C. Mackrill snapped in a side throw. Miller got a closeup. Linville came in to get a rebound. Jenkins scored on a follow-up. Richey tossed a foul. Thompson tolled from center of floor. Cubs take time out to stop the Tigers scoring. Jenkins made a long shot from the side.

The frosh will engage the Varsity All-Stars as a preliminary to the Grizzly-O.A.C. game Thursday evening. The All-Stars are composed of ineligible Varsity material and former Grizzly veterans.

BOBCATS WIN TITLE FROM GRIZZLY FIVE

State College Gets Early Lead; Montana Plays Hard to Finish Fast Game

Losing the second game to the Bobcats on the Bozeman floor gave the State college quint undisputed possession of the 1927 state basketball title. The Grizzlies were unable to stop the Blue and Gold sharpshooters and the Bobcats won the second contest by a 51-32 score after taking the first game at Missoula two weeks before.

The Bobcats expected the same opening rush that they met at the Grizzly camp, so they started the game fast and registered six field goals before the Tricolor quint found the hoop for their first basket. Thompson, the fast Bobcat forward, again evaded the Grizzly guards and scored 22 points on 10 field goals and two free throws for high point honors. Ward, the tall Bobcat center, gathered 14 points for his teammates. Coyle was high point man for the Grizzlies, annexing 11 tallies on five field goals and a free throw.

The Bozeman quint had a lead of 30-11 at half time but in the second half the Grizzlies played on even terms with their rivals, each team annexing 21 points. At one time during the second half the Bobcats held a long lead of 42-18 but the Grizzly forwards found the hoop and some neat baskets by Overturf and Coyle brought up the University total.

Inter-College Tilts Will Be Played Soon

Arrangements have been made to continue the sport program under the supervision of intra-mural by staging an inter-college basketball and free throwing contest.

The following schools are entered in the tourney: Arts and Sciences, Business Ad, Journalism, Law, Forestry, and Pharmacy. These teams must get organized and appoint their captains immediately, who must submit an eligibility list to Harry Adams by Wednesday noon, February 16. The free throwing contest is open to all students except members of the Varsity and former Varsity basketball players. A gold medal goes to the winner. Qualifying rounds will take place February 21, 22 and 23. Basketball experience is not essential. Constant and careful practice will enable anyone to make a high percentage of free throws. Hand in your entry to Harry Adams and get out and practice as soon as possible. Entries must be in by February 18.

Marian Finn, Bessie Wallace and Charlotte Sullivan spent the weekend at their homes in Butte.

BOXING TOURNAMENT PROMISES INTEREST

Men Are Working Hard in Preparation for Annual "M" Club Event March 11

"With the largest and scrappiest enrollment we have had in several quarters, the men who win their way to the finals in the 'M' club tournament are going to be of a caliber that will give real exhibitions of the manly art," said Joe Cochran, boxing instructor in the Physical Education department, yesterday. "It is impossible to ascertain this far in advance who will survive the elimination tournaments, as the men are pretty much of the same type of fighters. It will be no cinch for any man to get into the tournament. Every man who fights the night of March 11 will be almost a veteran in ring-scraps."

Another feature of the tournament will be a fencing match between two men who survive the fencing elimination series. According to Edwin Koch, instructor, there are several men who loom up as strong contenders for the final championship match. Leydig, Shearer and Eugene are showing up well at present, and there are others who will be in better form by the time of the tournament who will give a good accounting of themselves.

"Doc" Schreiber, who is in charge of the wrestling classes, states that there is considerable good material to be seen in his groups, and that by the time of the tournament the "falls" are apt to be fast and furious.

Tickets to the annual boxing and wrestling tournament of the University, as sponsored by the "M" club, will be placed on sale Wednesday, according to Andy Cogswell, president of the club. They may be obtained from any member of the club, and will be on sale in various places about the campus. The tournament will be held in the men's gymnasium March 11.

Mrs. Nellie McFadden, who has been visiting her daughter, Marguerite, since Friday, returned to her home in Whitehall Sunday night.

SPORT GLIMPSES

Although we lost the basketball title of the state to the Bobcats still we have them bested in football and track. Who will come out ahead in baseball this spring?

Idaho university will play here this Friday night instead of Saturday, February 26. An agreement has been reached between the two institutions and the date of the game has been moved up.

This is a good thing for Montana. Coach Stewart will be able to give all of his time to his track squad and the tracksters that are on the basketball team will be able to get out earlier.

Al Schuss, who played here last night, performed under difficulty. He played his last two games with a broken rib. He has not missed a game since he received the injury but it has slowed up his play.

Stanford university never finishes playing football. Before their last game on the 1926 schedule was played the coach announced the date when spring football would start and two weeks after the 1926 schedule was completed he had his men working out for the 1927 schedule. They ought to be good.

If the ground hog wouldn't have to hibernate for those extra six weeks we might be able to see our track and baseball squads working outside in the near future.

The California Bears open their 1927 track schedule on March 5 against the Alumni All-Stars. On March 26 they have their first conference meet against the University of Southern California Trojans. We merely mention this to show what a start some of our competitors have on us and still we clean them. Sounds good for Coach Stewart and his track artists.

The Huskies are all hot over another champion rowing crew. As long as the Montana legislature wants to form so many branches of the University we suggest that they move Montana university up to Flathead lake so that we can have a rowing eight.

Two more games left on the basketball schedule. O.A.C. plays here Thursday night and the following evening Idaho comes for a return game. This will complete the 1927 schedule.

All of the University fans should be out for these last two games and especially for the game against the Oregon Aggies. The Grizzlies have a fine opportunity to grab the contest from the Orangemen and a lot of good cheering will help them do it.

Major Frank Milburn has the opportunity to give to Montana a winning baseball line providing that he gets any material to work with. Coach Milburn has had 20 years' baseball experience and was coach of an army nine for 13 years. Here's hoping that he can revive the diamond game at the University.

When the Husky baseball coach began to make preparations for this season he found that his championship nine was gone and the chances for repeating are slim. Only one regular is left from last year's team.

The Stanford University baseball nine starts their conference season this week. They have already played a number of pre-season games. We are just mentioning this to show you what a tough time the Montana coaches have to get conference winners with such short seasons and still we hold conference records. Something for the crabbing fan to think about.

Washington State college is no longer in the running for the Northern division basketball championship. Her recent losses to O.A.C., Washington and Oregon on the road trip and her loss to the Huskies on Saturday night put the Cougars and the Grizzlies in the same boat.

We are wondering whether young Milburn will be a Grizzly baseball player or a gridiron star. If he doesn't follow in his dad's tracks he might become a club artist and help Coach Stewart 20 years from now.

In looking over the basketball contests played with the Bobcats it shows that in this sport they have us outclassed but in all of the rest of the sports they don't look so good.

Track started at W.S.C. Friday. Coach Schlademan took charge of the squad after his return from the coast with the Cougar cagemen.
