FOR RELEASE TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12.

The Fifth annual edition of the Directory of Montana Broadcasters has been published by the Bureau of Press and Broadcasting Research and the School of Journalism at Montana State University.

The directory, compiled by the Radio Television Studios at MSU, contains ownership, technical and facilities information for each radio and television station in the state.

About 200 copies of the directory have been sent to members of the Montana Broadcasters Association and other special interest groups in the state and surrounding areas. These other groups include advertising and public relations firms, members of the state legislature, the governor's office, and the offices of other national, state, and local officials.

Additional copies of the directory are available to interested persons according to Philip J. Hess, assistant professor of journalism and acting director, radio-TV studios.
