Fall 1986

The Dead; Finality

Michael Pfeifer

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/cutbank

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Pfeifer, Michael (1986) "The Dead; Finality," CutBank; Vol. 1 : Iss. 27 , Article 32.
Available at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/cutbank/vol1/iss27/32

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in CutBank by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.
The Dead

They gather for a moment
like the wind on a street corner animating leaves and scraps of paper.
On the bus they sway like angels against the shining bars.

Michael Pfeifer

Finality

My friend, there is no finality.
Of that I'm sure.
Call it richness of loss
instead. Everything is replenished.
Each year small blue and purple flowers redeem themselves amid grass like slivers of memory.
I don't pretend to know how.
You and I will be dust
chasing a comet's tail
and still this will be true.
As proof, I left the apartment this morning, sounding through dense fog, passing from shadow to shadow.
The trees loomed gently,
soft columns reared to inexplicable victory.

Michael Pfeifer