Gore Brought To Light For Big Razz Fest

Dirty Sockettes To Appear Night of Hi-Jinx, Telling All on the Men.

Dirt unearthed by dirt-sleuths, gore uncovered by gore-diggers, will all come to light on the night of Hi-Jinx, but not on the stage, for the pen is mightier than the spoken word. Men on the campus will read about their brother that which he'd never believe did it not appear in black ink on a yellow sheet called "Dirty Sockettes."

Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalism fraternity, met Tuesday night behind closed doors and planned how best to keep the plentiful dirt dug up from the masterful man. It is done, but not by Theta Sigs alone, for women sleuths are calmly going about their business on the campus every day, and campus "eds" will never know the truth about themselves until the night of Hi-Jinx, when "Dirty Sockettes" will emblazon it before the eyes of everyone. The latest and richest gore is being dug up, and once it is discovered no man can save himself.

After disposing of "Dirty Sockette" problems, Theta Sigma Phi turned to other important matters of business. Blanche Coppo tendered her resignation as president of the fraternity, and Hildegard Mertz was elected to fill the vacancy.

EUROPEAN ART ON EXHIBITION

Display Will Remain Up Until November 30.

Those who have not seen the International Art Exhibit illustrating methods of teaching art in Germany, Switzerland and Austria, may still do so. The exhibit will be up until November 30 contrary to previous plans.

The exhibit is of special interest to those planning to teach art and to psychologists in that it gives examples of work by different types of children.

This group of pictures includes work of children from 6 to 18 years of age, showing their improvement with each year of training. Some of the selections show real talent.

The exhibit came from Wyoming and will be sent to the University of Washington after November 30.

Deadline Set for Supplement Copy Is November 27

The first issue of the Kaimin Supplement, for this year, will be published December 8. Former students know what the Supplement embraces. It is another medium for creative writing of students, short stories and sketches are welcomed. The work will be judged entirely on its own merits and the best will be published. Contributions should be sent to the Kaimin office or placed in the Kaimin mail box at Main hall. All copy must be in by 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Nov. 27. An effort is being made to have this a monthly feature of the Kaimin and the response to this first issue will determine the frequency of Supplement publications.

CHINA ON DISPLAY IN HOME EC DEPARTMENT

Thirty-five makes of china have been collected from townspeople and department stores by Miss Helen Gleason and Eleanor McArthur as a project for Miss McArthur's work in Home Economics. The collection includes 60 pieces among which are antiques, heirlooms and modern pieces of china.

Among those of historical interest is a piece of Japanese porcelain 300 years old, several pieces of the famous Willow pattern which was originated in the sixteenth century by the Chinese; a piece of very old luster ware, a duplicate of which is to be found in the British Art Museum; and a cup of old English pottery which is three generations old.

Other pieces in the collection are of Irish Belleek, Minton, modern Maiolica, Wedgwood, Rookwood, Dresden, Spode and Satsuma, one piece of Quimper from France and pottery of Japanese, Chinese, American and Italian make.

Box for Absence Slips Discontinued

All students having absences must come before the absence committee which meets on Monday afternoons from 4:30 until 5:30 every week. The box for the absence slips of those who were not in school because of illness which was reported to Mrs. Leclair, or the proper people listed on the bulletin board, has been discontinued.

Students have been turning in slips at the rate of 20 a week improperly filled out or which should not have been placed in this box. The method of having the box in the hall was begun last year merely for the convenience of students as the committee meets regularly every week and remains the whole hour regardless of the fact that there may not be any students wanting cuts excused.

Carelessness in turning in slips partially filled out, giving the wrong dates, asking excuses for reasons other than illness, without duplicates, and with the illness unreported has caused extra work for the absence clerk, for the recorder, and for the student himself. Hereafter students have to come before the absence committee no matter what their reason may be to have their cuts excused.

Law Library Gets New Book Shipment

Three Different Sets Are Received Last Week.

According to Miss Charlotte Russell, law librarian, the Law school received a shipment of new books Tuesday. The books are the latest editions and contain current material for law libraries and law study.

The value of the new books is estimated at over $100. The shipment contains three different sets. The largest is Willoughby, "Constitution of the United States." Another book which has recently caused comment in law circles is Osborn's "Questioned Documents." The 1927 and 1929 "Income Tax Procedure" by Montgomery were also received. Another important set acquired by the law library is "Federal Forms" by G. Bender. According to Miss Russell the book "From Physical to Social Sciences" by Rueff is already popular in the Law school.

NEW SONG FOR "U" GLEE CLUB

DeLoss Smith Composes Music to "Our Alma Mater."

Music for a new University song especially adapted for the use of the Men's Glee club has been composed by DeLoss Smith, dean of the School of Music.

The new song, "Our Alma Mater," with words by R. Burt Doan, a former classmate of Professor Smith at Eureka college, Illinois, is livelier than "College Chums," and fills a needed place in the University song book as the concluding number on campus programs. The two verses are as follows: "Mid the mountains of the West, O Montana, By thy sylvan bowers blest, O Montana, We have come to blynn the lays Of our Alma Mater's praise, And our hearts in thanks we raise For Montana.

"May thy future glorious be, O Montana; Choicest blessings rest on thee, O Montana; To the world the fairest fame Of thy loved and honored name Shall thy children e'er proclaim, O Montana.

LITTLE IN NEW YORK.

Professor G. D. Shallenberger received a letter from Dr. Edward Little who was assistant professor of physics at the University of Montana last year. Professor Little is now doing research work in the Bell Laboratories of the Western Electric company in New York city. Little states he is enjoying his work very much but misses Montana and the mountains.

Mrs. Bibler of Darby was a guest of her daughter, Carolyn, at North hall Wednesday.

'Graph' Mixer Scheduled For Turkey Game

Second Dance To Be Given For U. C. L. A.-Grizzly Contest.

According to Bob Hendon, the second grid-graph mixer in Montana history will be given on the afternoon of Thanksgiving day when the Grizzlies finish their football season against U. C. L. A. at Los Angeles.

The mixer will be run off on the same plans as it was formerly. The returns of the game will come in over Western Union wires and will be announced between the short dances. The music will be furnished by a five-piece orchestra not yet selected. It will probably be held in the Women's gymnasium.

The grid-graph mixer was introduced to the campus this year when it was first held for the Montana-University of California game. About 320 students attended the opening. The admission will be 25 cents.

NOTED LECTURER TO SPEAK HERE

"Unspanked Generation" Is Subject of Address by Dr. Gratz.

College students will be given an opportunity to hear themselves analyzed when Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, of Evanston, Ill., speaks on "This Unspanked Generation" at the Methodist Episcopal church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The program will include, besides the lecture, musical numbers by the Wesley club quartet and a trombone duet by Kaye and Eldon Coney.

This will be Dr. Gratz's first visit to Missoula. However, many students have heard him speak in other Montana cities, and they are enthusiastic in praise of him. He was for many years general secretary of the Epworth League, and he is at present editor-in-chief of the Epworth Herald, a national magazine published weekly in Chicago. Besides his lecture Saturday night, he will talk on "So Big" Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the Presbyterian church. All University students are invited to attend both lectures.

Dr. Gratz, whose visit here is being sponsored by the University Christian Union, spends most of his summers teaching at different institutes, usually in Montana or Texas. He taught at the Epworth League Institute at Nehart, Montana, in 1921, and again last summer. During his visit to the state last summer, he visited, besides the Nehart meeting, various Methodist sessions in Glacier Park and at Livingston. His wife and two daughters accompanied him in his car on the trip. One of the daughters also lectured at the institutes.

Dr. Gratz will arrive in Missoula tomorrow evening, coming directly from meetings in Portland, Seattle and Tacoma. He will leave for Chicago a few hours after his lecture Sunday afternoon.

After undergoing a rigorous initiation Thursday evening, nine persons became active members of Phi Lambda, local chemical society. They are Lewis Ambrose, Eldon Coney, Robert Dussault, Robert J. Brown, Alexander McBride, Eugene Sunderlin, F. A. Long, T. E. Strange, Helmer Hansen. The initiation was related to chemistry in its entirety.

ROBERT YOUNG ADDRESSES PHI MU EPSILON MEETING

"The Deviation of Light Through a Prism" was the subject of a talk given by Robert Young at a meeting of Phi Mu Epsilon, honorary mathematics fraternity at Craig hall last night. Young developed a formula for the angle of minimum deviation for all values of the indices of refraction.

E. O. Polk, instructor in physics, was elected to membership in the fraternity.

Phi Mu Epsilon fraternity meets twice a month, and has been an active organization on the campus since 1925.

APPEAL ON CENSORED ACT HAS NOT YET BEEN ACTED UPON BY BOARD

Rehearsals of Hi-Jinx Still Progressing in Expectation of Settling Matter in Near Future.

No Decision has been reached on the question of whether or not the one act of Hi-Jinx, which was banned by the women's censorship committee, will be presented. The committee, composed of Margaret Brown, Peggy Angus, Fathie Shaw, Helen Maddock and Hazel Mumm, have passed on the script of the rest of the razz production, but the deadlock has not yet been broken in the case of the objectionable act.

NINE DEBATERS ARE SELECTED

Teams Will Be Picked to Meet Coast Schools.

Nine men were picked for the Varsity debate teams following the tryout held in Main hall auditorium last Tuesday evening. The men picked for the squad are Donald Cheveling, John Ludlow, Esmond Riberdy, Owen Loftsgarden, Joseph Sherrick, Charles M. Johnson, George Martin, Edwin Bullis, and Theodore DeBord.

Carl McFarland, Russell Smith and Harold Fitzgerald who were members of the team which met Oxford were not required to try out for this quarter's debate squad.

From these 12 men will be picked four two-man teams, one of which will meet Idaho here, another to debate Idaho on the Moscow campus, the third will meet the University of Oregon in Missoula, and the fourth will travel to the Northwest to meet the University of British Columbia, the University of Washington, University of Oregon and Willamette university.

Quadrans to Choose Senior Women's Garb

All Senior Women Urged To Be at Meeting Tuesday.

Quadrans, senior women's organization, held a meeting in Main hall Thursday afternoon to examine and discuss senior women's garb. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday to decide upon the characteristic garb which senior women will adopt, according to Vivian Lewis, president of the organization.

Boone Rossiter, chairman of the garb committee, reported on the various garbs, and examples which had been obtained were examined at the meeting yesterday. According to Vivian Lewis the group at the meeting was not truly representative of senior women and she urges that everyone be at the meeting next Tuesday at 5 o'clock in Main hall so that the matter of a representative garb for the class can be decided.

Open Shelf Replaces Old Books With New

Following the policy of having on the open shelf only the books which the students like to read, last week the open shelf committee removed all books which had not been taken out and substituted new ones in their place. The open shelf was innovated last fall as a place in the library where students might have the opportunity to select books for personal pleasure, and has since become a regular feature of the library. It was originally stocked by ten members of the faculty who donated ten books apiece. At the beginning of last winter quarter these books were replaced by some from the library stacks.

The open shelf committee composed of Lucia Mirrieles, Dr. William Breichman, Robert Struckman, Paul Treichler and Jesse Cambron, is responsible for the selection of books placed upon the shelf. The collection is extremely cosmopolitan in the types represented. "Alice in Wonderland" rubs shoulders with the essays of Santayana. Adventure, poetry and philosophy, old and modern, are likewise to be found. Among the books on the open shelf are the latest added to the library which include some excellent literary essays and biographies.

The Students' Store under the direction of Morris McCollum is carrying out the open shelf idea by placing modern books of fiction and biography on the shelves of the students' rest room in the A. S. U. M. building.

Rehearsals are still progressing in the expectation that matters may be settled by compromise or by either the men or women giving in to the other faction in the near future.

The question has been taken to the deans of men and women but both have declared that they will take no hand in deciding the controversy.

In a statement from the Dean of Men's office a definite hands-off policy is expressed:

To Hi-Jinx Committee:

When Hi-Jinx was revived a definite plan for censorship was provided. We are leaving the matter entirely to you. You must settle it for yourself.

Burly Miller.

The Dean of Women has declared the same policy.

Hi-Jinx Committee:

The Dean of Women's office is resolved to leave the censoring of the Hi-Jinx manuscript entirely to the women chosen by Mortar Board. They must regard their decision.

Mrs. Mildred Stone, Acting Dean of Women.

Men's Hi-Jinx committee, which is composed of Russell Smith, Jamesbert Garlington, Carl Rankin, Frank Curtis and Lloyd Callison, have declared that on no account will the script of the show be changed.

Russell Smith, financial manager of the production, issued the following statement:

"Production will go on as before. We intend to put on a good show, just as it is written. The women must reconsider."

"I cannot understand the attitude taken by the women. We hesitate to stop the show and yet if the spirit of Hi-Jinx is to continue the censorship must be restricted to that which is personal," said Jamesbert Garlington in regard to the difficulty.

Frank Curtis, a member of the committee chosen by Silent Sentinel for Hi-Jinx, said concerning the censorship: "We resent the attitude taken by the women's committee. They are trying to destroy one of the best acts in the show not because it is obscene but because it smacks too much of the truth."

As yet no definite agreement has been reached by the committees and the situation remains much the same as it did early in the week.

Arnie Gillette, '27, At Yale University

Given Complete Charge of Fall Production at "47 Workshop."

Arnold Gillette, '27, is now working in the School of Drama at Yale university, called "Baker's 47 Workshop." Gillette was well known on the campus, being an outstanding athlete and captain of the track team in '27. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta and was chosen for Silent Sentinel. While attending the University he did some excellent work in connection with the Montana Masquers.

Gillette was given complete charge of the big fall production of the 47 Workshop, an honor rarely given a second year student. He also holds a scholarship given within the department to the most promising student. In addition to his other duties he is assistant costumer.

During the summer months he worked as stage designer for a New York stock company playing at Stockbridge, Mass. His work was considered exceptional by the managers of the company.

Aftermath.

ROBERT EDGREN, nationally known sports critic, believes that the recent investigation of college sports by the Carnegie Foundation accomplished nothing, in spite of the great amount of publicity the newspapers gave it. Edgren believes that the charges were based upon rumor and not upon actual conditions.

"It is ridiculous to say that an athlete must have a fortune of his own to be eligible for competition in another sport. . . . It is just as absurd to charge 'professionalism' to an athlete because someone helps him get a job to work his way through college," is part of his comment after summing up the results of the investigation.

We agree with Edgren that the Carnegie Foundation did no great amount of good with its investigation. We also think that "Bulletin No. 23" attempted to make a mountain out of a mole hill. It is no doubt true that athletes are proselytized, but only to a minor degree. The report stated that 81 colleges out of 112 investigated had "subsidized" athletes. Since the bulletin was published several of the more important schools on the black list have proven beyond a doubt that such conditions have not existed on their campuses for several years. So what is to be done? On the one side we have the supposedly accurate findings of a three-year search for facts. On the other we have outright denials of these findings, with proof offered that the findings are fiction and not fact.

We are fairly well acquainted with the situation on this and other campuses, and are inclined to favor the accused ones. Most of them, we believe, had a right to become indignant in their denials. We think that many other phases of athletics in college need a change more than does the "professionalism" angle.—D. J.

Yeah

Hope Missoula children enjoy Rio Rita more than we did.

—yeah—

Had not the cause been such a worthy one we would have left the theater with an awful gripe.

—yeah—

We, as a rule, leave a musical show with a glow that lasts for days and hum (after a fashion) the tune 'til the household is all but mad. Rita, however, leaves nothing but a negative feeling. There were possibilities in the music. It may have been the orchestra or the lack of voices.

—yeah—

We were more or less pleasantly reminded of our first Elk Minstrel show by the frequent cracks about Bonner, Milltown, Stevensville and such. Expected the finale to consist of the Star Spangled Banner and waving of flags by the ladies of the ensemble attired in red, white, and blue.

—yeah—

The old wheeze about the producers numerous in-laws was brought to mind.

—yeah—

And the Texas Rangers—just to prove it—said a nasty word.

—yeah—

Ellen Eckler scored the only earned run of the game with her dance in the second.

—yeah—

Masquers enter the field to compete with Hi-Jinx for novel publicity stunts. Withholding press passes from the staff of the campus publication constitutes the cog around which the ballyhoo was to arise. And we can't resist rising to the bait (so did Tha Bird) which proves the maneuver is a good one. How the so ever passes were distributed among the staffs of the downtown papers. Seems kinda out of proportion—considering the campus sheet kept them on page one since the opening of school and that A. S. U. M. is owner and publisher of that paper. Also a goodly proportion of the audience will be members of the A. S. U. M.—The old game of drop the bread to find out which side is buttered.

—yeah—

And Hi-Jinx. They're having lots of fun with arguments among the committees. We still think it's publicity and nothing more. So have a good sleep, and on the Night of December 7 we will see the annual razz fest which promises to (even) surpass past shows.

—yeah—

Beginning to sound like a reviewer's column and we only know one. But he's good and still an undergraduate and shows promise.

—yeah—

The wind on the bridge makes us wish we were athletes.

—yeah—

Justifying the We refer to the old song, Me and the G. F.

Rio Rita; what a dame she turned out to be.

Especially the Aztec Goddesses, and just then our binoculars went on the bum.

Down on the right hand side of West Front street there is a little store that is quite the collegiate place. One of its uses is for renting field glasses and telescopes for use from the back rows of the Wilma.

After climbing to row U in that theater, we feel that the climb up Sentinel to the M is a mere step, and Mount Everest, not so much.

Last night the Masquers led forth their Major Production for the fall quarter. We don't know if it was good or bad; our passes didn't arrive.

This poor old individual used to review things according to the dictates of his conscience. Now that we are old, and some say bitter, we are pushed into the cold. Shed a tear for cast-off play-reviewers.

We never told an actor he or she was punk, and sometimes there are punk actors. We only left them out of the review. We never missed a joyous chance to compliment anyone on a good piece of work, and the Masquers produce many such.

While we are on the subject of the dramer; just view the communication from the Missoula High School.

Adverse criticism never hurt anything, and there is nothing as useless as flattery where flattery is misplaced. We learned that from women.

Believe it or not, the review of

Dear Editor:

Missoula High sends each year almost one hundred students to the State University. These students are usually prominent in activities and scholarship at the U. Missoula High students have opportunities through the Music Meet, conventions, state contests and other meetings in towns of Montana to praise the University and its desirability. High school students in other towns almost invariably ask us what the University is like. If our replies are favorable, the undecided may decide in favor of the U. The attitude of the high school student toward the U at Track Meet also is influential in helping the out-of-town student to decide to enter college here. "The Konah" has given many inches of space to publicity matter on the Masquers' plays, and other University activities; Members of the staff have even taken school time to advertise these productions.

Last Monday the opera, "Martha," was brought to Missoula through the efforts of the high school. The tickets were very inexpensive, yet members of the University faculty and U students were conspicuously absent from the audience.

"Martha" was more entertaining than the show.

After the invective above, we believe we are bitter. At least we didn't again mention the ice on the sidewalk in front of the SAE house.

It is only common sense and efficiency that these two schools should hang together and work for the good of each other. Yet in "The Kaimin" the next morning following the presentation of "Martha" a very belittling article on the opera appeared. Has the high school ever failed to support enthusiastically the U activities? Should not, then, the U do its part toward us?

Yours for bigger and better cooperation,

OF COURSE, my dear, I was BOTHERED over what to GIVE everybody for Christmas, because, you KNOW, dearie, there is NOTHING worse than giving the same old things OVER and OVER again, and I didn't know WHAT I was going to do, when I had a perfect GEM of an inspiration, and I decided to buy some of those ELEGANT boxes of stationery at the MISSOULA DRUG COMPANY and spread Yule cheer to no END, which I'll enjoy just AWFULLY, I mean I ACTUALLY will.

edell Exhibit leases Many At Lewistown

Professor Sends Exercises to Fergus City.

Among the exhibits which Prof. C. Riedell is sending out over the one sent recently to C. B. Colomew of Lewistown proved successful in drawing a large number of spectators. Bartholomew says that the exhibit was greatly enjoyed.

The exhibit was composed of 72 pieces drawn by Professor Riedell, showing the steps art students go through during the course in drawing. Work begins with reproduction of pictures in pencil, then in ink and in the next step includes drawings of life, beginning with pencil sketches, then pen and ink, and color work of the ink. From this stage the artist sketch character poses, then a drawing of life with caricatures for finishing.

Bartholomew studied art under Professor Riedell during one summer session, making a good record. Professor Riedell says he is both a student artist and an excellent teacher. He is now in charge of the art department of the Lewistown school and has a class of 54 students.

"Dying for Money" Proves Masquer Audiences In Favor of Farces.

We saw "Dying for Money" last night, the first major Masquer production of the year. It was a good show except for a slight let-down in the third act which is only to be expected on the opening night.

The cast was uniformly good and for the most part the play ran smoothly. The show opened a bit slow but as soon as the early nervousness of the actors passed off the players settled down to work.

We are all in favor of the Masquers doing more farces. The audience thoroughly enjoyed this one and at times their laughter drowned out some of the lines. Several of the players were making their debut in the Little Theatre and did some excellent work.

Albert Erickson as Aubrey Allington, the lead, carried off high score for the evening. His pantomime was all that could be desired. We got a terrific kick out of his bounding around from pillar to post in three different roles.

Playing opposite Erickson was Betty Torrence, a new comer in Masquer plays. Miss Torrence has a pleasing voice, a nice stage appearance and was a good foil for Erickson's farcical antics.

A small bit that attracted much attention was the playing of Helen Maddock as Miss Benita Mullett, a rather deaf old maid.

But why go on mentioning names. We liked the entire cast though one or two of the minor characters showed the thing up at times. We are prejudiced, too. But then it was an all-University show and deserves a good hand. Judging from the comment we heard at the end of the show everyone enjoyed it immensely and it should draw good houses for Friday and Saturday nights.

And may we add a word about the set. It was the neatest thing we have seen in the Little Theatre in four years. It made an excellent background for the players and created a nice impression with the audience.—D. T.

French T. Ferguson Addresses Scribes

Missoula Newspaperman Talks on History of Words.

French T. Ferguson, managing editor of the Daily Missoulian and the Missoula Sentinel, spoke to the Press club on "The History of Words" at the club meeting in the Shack Tuesday evening.

Previous to Mr. Ferguson's talk, Bill Kelly, president of the Press club, told the members of the annual banquet which will be held next Tuesday night at Bonner, stressing the good time which everyone always has at the annual gathering. He urged everyone to go because of the fun "you'll miss if you don't." Tickets for the banquet went on sale that evening.

Ferguson's talk, one of the most interesting the Press club has heard this year, took into account the same words in the different tongues and showed their connection.

As an example, the word "water" was traced from the ancient languages into the modern names of rivers in England and the United States, as well as some of the continental countries. Mr. Ferguson also stated that most countries have two names, one by which others know them and one by which the people know themselves. It is interesting to note, he said, that almost always the name by which they know themselves means "THE people."

To those who read the poems in the little blue book, "And Then Re-Mold It," by Mary Brennan Clapp, they will bring a breath of the unaffected sincerity and love of living which is characteristic of Mrs. Clapp's work. To the faculty and students on the Montana campus who have the opportunity of coming in contact with the rare personality and quiet forcefulness of the author, the book will have a still more intimate charm. significance in knowing that the wife of our college president who is closely interested in the life of the student body possesses the buoyant understanding of life and youth that is revealed in her poetry. Those of us who have had the chance to know her personally recognize her as a leader of capability and imagination who guides her work with efficiency and insight. We find greater strength in her poems for the reason that their delicate beauty has a sure foundation. Mrs. Clapp's volume has a wide range of thought, bound together by an underlying grace of expression. From charming pictures that shape themselves in a halo of brightness from the happiness of the thought,

"Pale and slow and fleetingly sweet,
Like a cool breath in too much heat," the lines turn to love, and death, and delicate cross sections of the experiences of one who seems to have reached joyously and tenderly into the depths of perception of all things beautiful in life, and to have translated her findings into her poetry. Melody rippling exquisitely over a bed of pearl tinted stones, come in some lines:

"Answering the singing winds
With a sheen-like song—" and then again,

"A crowd of little birches
Silver, green, and cool
Filter spangled shade and sunshine
On a forest pool."
"Little trees of gladness
Virginal and bright,
Reach fulfillment through no passion
But to seek the light."

Full of fanciful, naive simplicity, other bits of the collection bring a pang in their wistful appeal:

"Down along a little way
A cemetery shines
All white and silver gray
With hundreds of little Shrines."
Build me a tomb there
Looking out to water where
The white waves spume;
Looking out to water where
The great gales thunder,
And big boats shudder
And little boats go under;—"

There is poetry in this collection that was written to be lived, not merely to be read, and that is perhaps the sincerest tribute that can be paid to poetry.

GRIZZLY GRID SQUAD PREPARES FOR THANKSGIVING DAY GAME

Four Montana Players Still on Injured List.

Disregarding the freezing temperatures of the last few days, the Grizzlies have labored until dark all this week in an effort to get into tip-top shape before leaving for the Thanksgiving game with U. C. L. A. The team will leave here on the Milwaukee at 12:21 Monday. Going via Butte and Salt Lake City they will arrive in Los Angeles Wednesday morning about 8:30.

There are still many Grizzlies on the injured list, but most of them are expected to round out all right before the game. Wald Ekegren, Emilie Percy and Jerry Ryan all have trick knees, while Bud Burns is forced to wear a specially constructed helmet to protect his head from any further bad knocks.

Passes have added many yards to the Grizzlies' total this season, but at Los Angeles they meet a team that features the aerial attack almost entirely. Scouts from the Oregon-U. C. L. A. game report that all they needed was glue on their hands to have defeated the northern school.

The Grizzlies, besides polishing up their own passing attack, have sought to perfect a defense against the tosses of the Bruins. The Cubs have used the formations of the Los Angeles outfit all this week in scrimmages with the varsity, and the air route has had lots of business.

The Montana line, which has looked like a stone wall at times this season, is expected to give a good account of itself in the approaching struggle, practically all of the men being in fairly good shape. When big boys like Walker, Peterson, Mublick, Murray, Spencer and Lewis are working right they can not be stopped by the best on the coast. The backs showed in the California game that if they are given half a chance they are good for plenty of yardage. Jimmy Morrow at quarter and W. Ekegren and Clyde Carpenter at halves are the lads that wriggle for long gains, both through the line and in the broken field.

Montana is playing its first game against an opponent that is younger in the Pacific Coast conference than itself, and has a good chance of breaking into the win column this year. Comparative scores, although an extremely unreliable method of picking winners, all point to Montana as the better prospect for victory.

The California-Stanford game tomorrow should bring out some new tricks, as well as a large crowd. It may also bring disappointment to many of the young athletes.

Kaimin Reviews 1929 U. S. Gridiron Season

Four of the big teams of the country are head and shoulders above the crowd as the race for national honors goes into the home stretch. Purdue and Notre Dame spiked Iowa and U. S. C. on the turn, and Pittsburgh tripped up Carnegie Tech to get further toward the finish. Way out in the Rocky Mountains the University of Utah is also undefeated and untied, but has not met the stiff opposition offered the eastern and coast schools. Tulane in the south has all victories to its credit.

On the Pacific coast last Saturday there was considerable consternation in the camps of some of the favorites after all the scores were made. Stanford took a wild one on the chin from Santa Clara and Idaho was tipped over by Gonzaga. California had all kinds of trouble with Washington and was extremely lucky to win, 7-0. The same was true of W. S. C. in its tilt with Montana. Oregon took its state championship game from O. S. C., but lost its star, Kitzmiller, for the rest of the season.

In the east the Yale-Princeton struggle was the big event of the day and the Bulldogs won, 13-0, with Albie Booth on the sidelines. Tulane remains on top of the pile in the south, having stopped Sewanee Saturday while Tennessee was eliminating Vanderbilt from the select few.

Tomorrow will see some more big spectacles, but the majority of the super-attractions will be pulled off next Thursday, Thanksgiving day. Stanford will attempt to make it a three-way tie for Pacific coast honors by taking California tomorrow, and Washington State will try to redeem some of the prestige the conference schools lost last week. The Cougars will go into the arena with the Gonzaga Bulldogs, who kicked the Idaho Vandals all over the field last Saturday. Idaho meets U. S. C. in the only conference clash outside of the Stanford-California big game. Oregon faces Hawaii and Oregon State attacks the University of Detroit.

The east's only claim to fame is the Yale-Harvard clash, although both teams have had to look up to several of their opponents this year. Yale's Booth may not play, but the Bulldogs have uncovered other sensations in their last two games who can carry on.

Purdue, with the Big Ten championship already in the icebox, faces Indiana tomorrow. Notre Dame meets another one of the strong teams on its schedule at Northwestern. Tulane will attempt to keep a clean slate in its Louisiana State game. That rounds out the list of big-interest clashes, except for the Nebraska-Kansas Aggie game which will clinch the Big Six title for the Cornhuskers if they win. They have not lost a conference game this season, though they have bowed to outside teams.

Stanford-California Feature Coast Game

Stanford and California will clash tomorrow in what has come to be known as the "big game" of the Golden State. This year the game is not as big as it might be, inasmuch as Stanford has been beaten twice and California has been tied by a much smaller non-conference opponent. Nevertheless, the struggle is attracting lots of attention outside of the state since Stanford has it in its power to squeeze into a big tie for first place in the Pacific Coast conference. That is what will happen if the Cardinals defeat the Golden Bear tomorrow, and it is not at all unlikely. If such a thing comes to pass, then St. Mary's college will be the only undefeated team in the far west, and will have a good chance of furnishing one half of the excitement in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena New Year's day. St. Mary's has not had its goal line marred this year, and has only its scoreless tie with California to hold it out of the all-victories column.
