JAZZ MUSICIAN TO WORK
AT UNIVERSITY IN APRIL

MISSOULA -

Joseph Hart, Missoula, a professional jazz musician, will be working on the University of Montana campus during the month of April under a grant from University organizations and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The grant is intended to support the presence of a professional jazz musician on the campus for the period of a month to refine the skills of student performers in jazz.

Hart, who grew up in New York City and Chicago, plays the trumpet and is a jazz composer and arranger. He has played with a number of leading jazz musicians, including Hampton Hawes and Ornette Coleman.

Hart's one-month stint at UM will be jointly sponsored by the UM Department of Music and the Program Council of the Associated Students of the University of Montana (ASUM) with the aid of the endowment.

The project is under the direction of Dr. Joseph A. Mussulman, a UM music professor and director of UM Jubileers, and Lance Boyd, director of the UM Jazz Workshop, a campus jazz band.

Hart will work with the Jubileers and Jazz Workshop as well as one other group selected from the University at large on the basis of an audition. Any campus rock or jazz group that does not play professionally may audition.

Hart will also be available to coach individual instrumentalists, vocalists and jazz arrangers from the University campus in the art of jazz improvisation. A student need not be affiliated with the Department of Music to work with Hart. Students will be chosen on the basis of auditions.

Interested individuals should contact either Dr. Mussulman, Boyd or Dave Gorton, ASUM program director.
